ITALIANS WIN BIG VICTORY

U.S. MUST FEED ALLIES OR WAR HERE—HOOVER

Atlantic Seaboard Is in Peril, Says the Food Chief.

The fact is that this is our war as much as their war, and unless we can keep the women and children of our allies fed the western line will surely be thrown to our Atlantic seaboard and it may be thrown in an infinitely more dangerous quarter, in the ransom of Canada as penalty for England's defeat.

Out of our abundance and our waste we should do our part to a world suffering with us to maintain an ideal.

On our normal consumption, and despite all promises of an abundant harvest, our supplies are far below our combined necessities.

We face a race of people under a government intent upon mastery of the world. As surely as we were fighting for freedom in 1776 we are fighting for our national existence. —FROM SPEECH BY HERBERT C. HOOVER.

Herbert C. Hoover, federal food administrator, told the farmers of the nation yesterday the part they are asked to play in helping the United States and its allies win the war. He outlined the agricultural features of the administration's policy and gave a forecast of the difficulties which must be faced to solve national food problems.

Mr. Hoover made his statement in the Hotel Sherman, where he spoke before representatives of 126 farm journals. After he closed his address he answered questions and explained points regarding which further information was asked. An informal reception followed.

In the evening Mr. Hoover went to the Blackstone and conferred with his representatives who have been conducting investigations into the food supply. He had intended to catch an early train last night back to Washington but failed to do so.

BEEF PRICE REPORT DENIED.

During the evening he issued a statement in which he denied the food administration intends to fix the price of beef or pork. The recent conferences, he said, were for the purpose of finding a way to stabilize the live stock industries and to stimulate production, as well as to eliminate speculative profits.

Intelligent coördination of all the forces of the country is the greatest need of the hour, Mr. Hoover said in his talk. After giving his views in detail, he said:

"It is no loose statement that we face a race of people under a government intent upon mastery of the world. The war seems far away to most of our people. But as surely as we were fighting for freedom in 1776, we are fighting for our national existence and our national faith this day and month, 1917. If our loose democracy, if our ideas of individual liberty and action cannot be coördinated in such a manner that we may defend ourselves, our independence will surely not survive for another twenty-five years."

FOOD PROBLEMS OUTLINED.

In outlining the food problems, Mr. Hoover said that the basic facts were that production in Europe had been greatly diminished because of the diversion of millions of men into the armies; that the world's markets had been thrown so out of gear that Europe would need 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from this country, instead of the normal 80,000,000 bushels, and that exports of other cereals must be increased to 400,000,000 bushels. He also pointed out the depletion of the herds of cattle in Europe. He showed how the warring nations are placed upon rations in an effort to prevent waste, but that the chief sufferers are the women and children.

Production must be stimulated, he asserted, and waste eliminated so the women and children of the allies may be fed, otherwise the war will be brought to this side of the Atlantic.

An increase in the production of live stock and a decrease in exports of bread and fodder grains were declared to be necessary. The food vacuum in Europe, he declared, has caused the

IT'S OUT AT LAST; BIG BILL WANTS TO BE PRESIDENT

Germans, Pacifists, Socialists Expected to Boost Him.

Burgomaster Wilhelm von Thompsohn is placed in the field (again) as a candidate for president to succeed President Wilson by his newspaper organ, the Republican, which made its weekly appearance yesterday.

In addition to suggesting Von Thompsohn as presidential timber on an anti-war and anti-Wilson platform, the paper is filled with gloating over the pacifist sentiment, and by innuendo and suggestion hammers President Wilson, attacks England, and says a kind word for Germany.

The leading editorial also calls upon the Republicans in congress to oppose the president and the war and, thereby, make up a record on which the Republican party can capture the next congress and then, presumably, recall the troops from France and make peace with Germany on Germany's terms.

Must Please the Germans.

The paper declares the Republican congressmen who are supporting the administration and the war will be defeated next year unless they change their attitude, and that it now is their duty to the Republican party to turn about face and help establish an anti-war record that will appeal to the anti-administration forces throughout the country, by which, it is understood, is meant the Germans, pacifists and Socialists.

After denouncing Republican congressmen and senators who have upheld the president the editorial leader closes with this warning:

"Surely, the time is ripe for the Republican members of congress to get together and agree on a party program with America first as its foundation. They already have been sufficiently warned of the danger of not doing so; and if they fail to heed these warnings they will have only themselves to blame for what is certain to happen, namely, a dangerous increase in the Socialist vote everywhere."

O! Just a Step to the White House.

Von Thompsohn's presidential possibilities are announced in a downstate paper. This is understood to be the beginning of the "boiler plate" campaign that is to be waged in behalf of the burgomaster for United States senator next year as the "stepping stone" to the White House. Harry Ward, of Du Quoin and Chicago, brother of Charley, has charge of this end of the campaign.

The Granville (Ill.) Echo breaks the ice in an attack on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and a defense of Von Thompsohn. It prints a statement from the burgomaster setting forth his undying loyalty to the Stars and Stripes, and adds:

"If a knock is a boost then there is nothing to keep Mayor Thompson of Chicago from succeeding Wilson as president."

Bill's a Popular Guy.

It is understood that this article, which goes on to say that the "downstate readers (of THE TRIBUNE) are in hearty sympathy" with the burgomaster, will be reproduced and used as the first batch of boiler plate to be sent out to friendly papers downstate.

Newspapers supporting the administration and the war are characterized in a group as "the commercialized press" and public officials are warned that this press cannot save them in the forthcoming elections if they do not get on a platform of opposition to President Wilson and all he stands for.

A two page article announces the "real reasons (for the war) at last exposed," under a seven column black headline, reading:

"PEACE CRUCIFIED ON THE CROSS OF COMMERCIALISM."

The allies get the worst of it in this article, which carries throughout a friendly tone for Germany.

Look at the Yankee Advertisers!

W. F. Mulvihill, assistant corporation counsel, was reported to be contributing some of the "heavy articles," but it could not be learned yesterday whether he was the author of this one.

Among the small advertisements printed in this issue are those of the Edelweiss Gardens, Jules C. Eichenbaum, M. & J. Goldenberg, Weil Brothers, Max Tauber & Sons, Henry Kaeders, S. Gumpert & Co., Reding & Hauser, Henry Utpatel, Fritz C. Bitkke, Lawrence Mayer, Trautwein & Son, Christ Vestergard, Wieland's, Wolterding Insurance, Halleman, Desser, Joseph C. Blaha and Frank B. SHIP WITH OATS FOR FRANCE SUNK

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 25.—The torpedoing of the British steamer Trelissick, loaded with 200,000 bushels of oats for the French government, was reported by the officers of a British steamer which arrived today.

The crew of the Trelissick, together with the crew of another torpedoed steamer which they had picked up a few hours before they themselves were attacked, were rescued by an American warship after they had been adrift a short time.

Although the Trelissick was armed, it had no chance to defend itself. It registered 2,647 tons.

MILITARY BRIDE PLAYS SLACKER; FAILS TO APPEAR

Wedding Was to Be Climax of Grant Park Fete.

If Miss Helen Corbett of 3351 Ellis avenue has an idea she interfered with the gleeful fete of the Third Illinois Field Hospital company in Grant park last night, she may guess again. Now, let us proceed.

It was the occasion of the athletic carnival of the hospital company. Thousands gathered to see the sports and hear the bands of the First infantry and the One Hundred and Forty-ninth field artillery. Then, as if by way of dessert for this feast of martial thrills, it was announced there would be a gala open air wedding—time, 3 o'clock. One of the principals was to be Private Allen M. Rowe.

Band Plays and Plays.

Well, 3 o'clock came. Private Rowe appeared and there was a slight hush over the thousands who gathered. Then the band crashed out with a Sousa march. Private Rowe sat at his ease. There was a bustling of managers and shielded whisperings. The band stopped playing and the spectators strained their eyes for a sight of the bride. No bride.

Another band whanged out another tune. It stopped playing. There was another pained hush. A quartet of song boosters produced a melody concerning baby and chicken and one thing and another. The song was concluded. The spectators strained their eyes again. No bride.

Private Rowe waited. The bands waited. The song boosters waited. The parson waited. The spectators, the soldiers, the best man, the worst man, the officers—O, everybody waited. No bride.

Three Months' Acquaintance.

"O, shucks," said Private Rowe, "she's a slacker. Let's go stepping."

It was after 9 o'clock last night when Private Rowe returned to camp. He was reached by telephone.

"Say," said he, "I've known her for three months. She said she was game to go through with the wedding. Of course it would have been a good feature, but we had a swell entertainment anyhow. She's a slacker and just wouldn't do her bit, that's all."

What the Girl Says.

Miss Corbett resented the imputation that she is a "slacker."

"I'll fix him for that," she said last night. "But the truth of the matter is I lost my nerve. There were so many photographers and reporters around here that I am almost a nervous wreck. Maybe the wedding will be later; I don't know."

THE WAR

Rome reports Italians marching to complete victory after the capture of Monte Santo, northeast of Goritz. Austrian defenses broken at several points in this sector.

London reports successes near Lens and in the neighborhood of Lombaertzyde.

Paris reports further gains in the Verdun sector beyond Hill 304. Berlin says attacks in this salient were repulsed.

SLAYS FIGHTING DOCTOR; SAYS HE INSULTED SISTER

Cairo, Ill., Aug. 25.—Dr. E. J. Duncan of Olive Branch, fifteen miles north of here, was shot and killed today by William Wilbourn, son of W. W. Wilbourn, a merchant of Olive Branch, and a brother of Leslie Wilbourn, state's attorney of Alexander county.

Dr. Duncan, who had won a reputation as a gun fighter, was rated as one of the best physicians in this part of the state. He shot a bartender in Tamas a year ago and while serving a jail sentence in Cairo his old patients called upon him in his cell for treatment. He figured in a more recent shooting affair at Thebes.

Wilbourn killed the physician, he said, to avenge an insult to his sister. A few days ago, Dr. Duncan had an altercation with Mrs. Ada Chalmers, Wilbourn's sister, and slapped and choked her.

Dr. Duncan was killed after he had stepped into his automobile at the Olive Branch railway station. His son was cranking the car when he heard a report which he thought was the explosion of a tire. He found his father dead, sitting upright with a bullet through his brain. Wilbourn had fired with a Winchester rifle from a warehouse.

Dr. Duncan leaves a wife and 17 year old son.

Boy Identifies Man as "Black Hand" Slayer

A telegram was received at the detective bureau last night from chief of detectives of Pittsburgh that Angelo Pandolfolo, arrested there in connection with the murder of Charles Renzino, 2320 Wentworth avenue, several weeks ago, had been identified as one of the slayers by the dead man's son, James, 10 years old.

Boy Admits Killing Farmer; Coveted Horse and Buggy

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Ideal Phisena, 14, who, with his mother and sisters, fled to America when the Germans swept through their country, today confessed that he had fired the shot which killed William Kettlehut, 65, a farmer near Yale, for whom the boy and his parents worked.

SKELETON OF NEW ARMY TO CAMP SEPT. 5

Cut First Quota to 5 Per Cent; Exempt Married Men.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Two important orders in connection with the mobilization of the national army were issued late today.

By direction of President Wilson practically every married man upon whom his wife is actually dependent or who has children will be exempted. It is not within the spirit of the law, the new order states, that women should go to work or be dependent upon the support of wealthy relatives in order that the heads of families may be sent to fight for the country.

Only 5 per cent of the men drawn for the army will be sent to camp on Sept. 5, instead of 30 per cent, as previously ordered. Forty per cent of the men will be sent on Sept. 19, 40 per cent more on Oct. 3, and the other 15 per cent as soon thereafter as possible.

CAMPS ARE NOT READY.

The reason given by the provost marshal general's office for this delay in the mobilization of the new national army is that under the old order railroad congestion would have ensued which it would have been hard to adjust.

As a matter of fact, it is learned that the reasons for the delay are these:

1. The camps will not be ready by Sept. 5, as promised.

2. Full equipment for the new national army will not be ready by the time it was hoped to have it ready.

The new order means that the local boards may have five days in which to send the first 5 per cent to camp. The order specifies that the following classes of men shall have precedence in the first 5 per cent: Cooks, bakers, men with some military experience, men with engineering experience, men with medical experience. All must be white men.

TO FORM SKELETON BODIES.

Concerning the first contingent, the order says:

"The object of calling 5 per cent is to place in the camps enough to form a skeleton organization to assist in receiving and assimilating the large contingents. For this reason it is required that local boards send only white men and, so far as practicable, that they send men with some military experience or cooks.

"In making this selection order numbers are not controlling, but great care must be taken not to send men whose order of call is so late that they will not be within the quota of the boards. The careful selection of these men will be of great assistance to the orderly organization of the national army, and it is hoped that local boards will act with this end in view."

MOVE 1 PER CENT A DAY.

"In order that it may not be necessary to make any special railway arrangements and to prevent a congestion of normal railway traffic local boards should be instructed to send approximately 1 per cent of their quotas on each of five successive days, beginning Sept. 5. It is thought that every board in the country will have available at least 5 per cent of its quota by Sept. 5."

Remarkable results in assembling men for the national army have been made, the new order states.

"Opportunity is taken to give to local and district boards the credit that is due them for the overwhelming amount of work they have accomplished in scrutinizing the thousands of cases that it was necessary for them to examine in order to have 30 per cent of their quota ready on Sept. 5," the order adds.

NEARLY ALL STATES READY.

"Reports received from practically every state in the union show that every state would have had ready much more than 30 per cent of its quota on Sept. 5 and the vast majority of them would have been ready with their entire quota on that date. This service has required a month of the most exacting work on the part of the boards. This work was consummated under adverse conditions and in large part uncompensated. It stands as one of the most significant expressions of substantial patriotism and devotion on the part of 15,000 men selected from among the best citizens of the country."

President Wilson's decision in favor of exempting practically all married men undoubtedly will result in appeals to the district exemption boards in many

TRAINING CAMP OFFICER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Capt. Roderick Dew Is Believed to Have Taken Life.

Ft. Sheridan, Ill., Aug. 25.—Capt. Roderick Dew was found dead yesterday in his quarters in the officers' club here. Capt. Dew was in command of the Sixth company of the Illinois Provisional Training regiment at the first officers' camp.

No word of his death was given out until tonight.

He is believed to have been temporarily deranged through worry and the strain caused by the strenuous work of the first camp.

The body was discovered by Capt. Theodore S. Proxmire of the medical staff, who came to the captain's rooms for a chat. It was lying on the floor.

Leaves Two Notes.

In right hand was clutched his automatic revolver. A bullet had penetrated the right temple.

Captain Dew left a note giving the address of his wife, who was in Fort Snelling, Minn., visiting her sister, the wife of Captain Frederick H. Baird, and also the address of his sister, who lives in La Grange, Ill.

No one heard the fatal shot and when the news of the tragedy spread through the club and the quarters of the married officers the keenest sorrow prevailed, for Capt. Dew was exceedingly well liked on account of his soldierly and manly qualities.

The body was taken to the hospital under the direction of the post surgeon. In conformity with military rule in such cases the coroner was not called, but the surgeon issued a certificate which read: "Captain Roderick Dew died Aug. 24 from a wound self-inflicted."

Mrs. Dew Arrives in Chicago.

Mrs. Dew arrived in Chicago from Fort Snelling this morning. The body was taken to the city by the captain's brother-in-law.

Capt. Dew was one of the officers who failed to receive promotion from Washington at the close of the last camp. He had worked hard and efficiently and some of his friends suggest the view that he may have brooded over his non-advancement.

To Be Buried in Nebraska.

Capt. Dew was born in Nebraska in 1881. He was graduated from West Point in 1904. He was assigned to a second lieutenancy in the Nineteenth infantry in June of that year. He was promoted to a first lieutenancy March 11, 1911. He was made company commander in the Fortieth infantry in 1916.

Capt. Dew will be buried at his old home in Nebraska.

FIRE THREATENS TO DESTROY BIG BREWERY PLANT

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—With the packing warehouse of the Anheuser-Busch plant destroyed by fire and the flames still burning, the enormous plant of the brewing company is in danger of destruction.

The fire started shortly after midnight in the packing warehouse, from some unknown cause. Thousands of bales of high grade packing straw were destroyed and caused an intensely hot fire that spread rapidly to the freight sidings nearby, destroying a number of loaded beer supply cars before switch engines could pull other long strings to safety.

The flames spread to the cooperage plant of the brewery, which now is being deluged by firemen. Because of the detached nature of these buildings Fire Chief Panzer believes it will be possible to get the fire under control soon.

CHARGE ATTEMPT TO DYNAMITE A PUMPING STATION

Labor troubles are held responsible for an attempt to blow up the Mayfair pumping station at Wilson and Forty-eighth avenues with dynamite, a report of which was made public last night.

City hall officials said that ten sticks of dynamite had been found with a fuse attached about a week ago, but the matter had been kept secret in an effort to detect the culprit.

The planting of the dynamite next to the east wall of the pumping station is believed to be the outgrowth of a jurisdictional dispute between the millwrights and machinists' unions.

The row started over the setting up of the machinery in the plant. The millwrights, who are affiliated with the Chicago Building Trades council, were doing the work. The machinists claim that it was their job.

But the millwrights are still at work. The machinists are not members of the Building Trades council, but both unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

CUT WIDE GAPS IN AUSTRIANS' ISONZO FRONT

Scale Monte Santo and Swarm Over Enemy Ground.

Dispatches from Rome last night indicated that the victory of the Italian troops on the Isonzo front was greater than the official reports claim. The most significant message sent follows:

ROME, Aug. 25.—The Italian troops on the Isonzo front are marching to complete victory.

At Udine, Salvatore Barzilai, civil governor of the Austrian territory occupied by the Italian army, when informed of the complete victory of the Italians exclaimed:

"At last our soldiers have achieved this magnificent thing; they have freed our soil from the ancient enemy."

The final success of the Italians in winning their greatest battle in this war is thrilling the country as never before. Both the army and the civilians now see the result of two years' suffering and economic hardship.

The victory came unexpectedly, notwithstanding the encouraging bulletins of the last fortnight. It is Gen. Cadorna's rule never to announce an advance until certain that his troops are able to hold new positions.

ROME, Aug. 25.—The second Italian army, under direct command of Gen. Cadorna, after sweeping Monte Santo, eight miles northeast of Goritz, clear of Austrians, is now marching across the plateau to the east.

Wide gaps have been broken in the Austrian line from below Mount Gabriello to a mile or so above Monte Santo, and the Italian reserves are swarming through the holes and pursuing the Austrians, who are offering a stiff resistance, but who are unable to cope with the triumphant troops of the tricolor.

Reports from the front declare that the Italian bombardment of the Austrian positions in this sector have, for a week or more, been of such a violent character that the rocky terrain has been ground into dust, making it impossible for the enemy to hold their positions any longer.

SCALE, WIN MONTE SANTO.

It was yesterday that Gen. Cadorna's gallant troops completed the crossing of the Isonzo river north of Goritz at a point where the Austrians believed such a feat was impossible, scaled Monte Santo, 2,245 feet high, and placed the tricolor there.

Every inch of the ground was bitterly contested by the desperate Austrians.

Italian fliers were in the thick of the fighting and contributed materially to the success of the troops. The Caproni planes bombed close packed enemy troops in the Chiapovano valley and then swept down near the earth, attacking with their machine guns. Of the 238 machines engaged in the fighting only one failed to return.

FIERCE FIGHTING ON CARSO.

On the Carso plateau, where the battle is almost equally desperate, the Austrians are still counter attacking the positions recently won by the Italians a mile and a half beyond Selo, to the north of Mount Hermada.

Reports from the front declare the Italians have placed naval guns at the mouth of the Isonzo river which have carried far beyond Duino, the key to Triest, clear past Miramar, the imperial resort, less than two miles west of Triest.

From unofficial sources, it is declared, the Italians have concentrated heavy guns on the fifty mile Isonzo battle front.

BLOCKED ITALIAN ADVANCE.

Monte Santo in the Goritz sector, now in the hands of the Italians, has been the stumbling block for Gen. Cadorna since 1915 when he overwhelmed the city of Goritz only to find his victory almost barren of military results due to the fact that the Austrians clung to the mountain which they had turned into a veritable Gibraltar, and dominated the region for miles.

Goritz is only 280 feet above sea level, while Monte Santo towered more than 2,000 feet almost precipitously in the face of the Italian advance. In the Italian offensive early this summer Cadorna's troops worked their way up the heights and established themselves on the Vodica, the plateau to the west of the mountain. Here they were halted.

WAY OPEN FOR THRUST.

Now the control of the valley to the east of Goritz has been transferred to the Italians and military experts here believe they will be able to thrust forward a great wedge between Monte Santo and the Carso plateau, a hairpinned shaped tableland which juts up between the Wippach river and the coast.

The strategic results may be far reaching. Military critics always have maintained that if Italy were not hemmed in by mountains and were able to throw her overwhelming reserves into the fight the war, insofar as it concerns the Italian theater, would be lost to the dual monarchy.

NO END OF MUNITIONS.

There is a distinct difference between this Italian offensive and the last.

In the previous drive the Italian munitions gave out and after the infantry advanced the artillery had to husband its shell supply to meet and check the Austrian counter thrust.

During this week, however, a continuous and unprecedented bombardment has been maintained without letup, and any victory Cardona may win may be directly attributed to his batteries.

CUT HEART OF LENS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Aug. 25.—The Canadians tonight are astride the railway in the city of Lens and are in possession of a trench less than 1,000 yards from the station, which now is nothing but a shambles.

The ground in front and behind the Canadians is littered with German dead. The kaiser's soldiers offered stiff resistance to the advancing Canadians and paid for it with their lives.

At only one point were the Canadians stopped. That was at Ivarness copse. As a result of cold blooded sacrifice of men by the Germans the Canadians were forced back a short distance on this battle ground.

Force British to Yield.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Powerfully waged German counter attacks today forced British troops to yield a portion of the trenches recently captured northeast of Gillemont farm.

Field Marshal Haig reported this misadventure in the British general offensive assault in his official night statement. He added, however, that Gillemont farm itself was held, the enemy being unable to make further progress.

Northwest of Lens the British commander in chief reported the Canadians continuing their successful battering into the coal city.

New Gains by French.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—New gains have been made by the French on the Verdun front, rounding out the victory won in the offensive begun on Monday.

The French advanced last night north of hill 304, Paris announces, and captured three fortified works near Bethincourt.

The official German statement, however, says French attacks between Malancourt and Bethincourt, as well as near hill 344, east of the Meuse, were repulsed.

Reports from the front say the French took 7,600 prisoners, 201 of them German officers, since the latest thrust was launched.

The Sixth German division of reserves, formerly ranked as one of the strongest enemy units, was literally wiped out. After the first French attacks the division was reduced to three regiments (approximately 3,750 men), and of these the French took 2,794 men and 69 officers prisoners.

Even the regimental band was taken. The musicians had been forced into the front trenches for fighting.

Teuton Morale Weakens.

The large number of officers captured by the French is striking proof of a decreasing German morale. In the French attack on Verdun Dec. 15 only 208 officers were taken, out of a total of 11,000 prisoners.

With a checking up today of prisoners and German casualties, it developed that of one German regiment the French captured 860 soldiers and twenty-eight officers. This was the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth German infantry.

Prisoners declared today that while waiting for the French attack German officers distributed to them copies of a letter purported to have been received via Switzerland from a German soldier imprisoned at Verdun Dec. 15. It described alleged horrors of the French prison camps and exhorted the Germans not to surrender.

AUSTRIAN TROOPS DRIVEN INSANE BY ITALIAN FIRE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.] A cablegram from Berne received today states that the Austrian command is removing increasingly large numbers of troops to the rear on account of their having been driven insane under the intense and incessant Italian artillery fire.

Entire Austrian units, panic stricken and on the border of madness, have broken and fled under the bombardment.

Veteran Austrians in the Carso were quoted as declaring the Italian fire is the most deadly ever witnessed by them. The war office has rushed reënforcements to the Italian front.

Father Darche Chicago's First Navy Chaplain

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Chicago's first Catholic chaplain in the United States navy, who has been assured he will see service in the danger zone of British or French waters, is Father Harris A. Darche, assistant pastor of Notre Dame church.

Father Darche today successfully passed the physical examination as a chaplain and he was given assurance from Secretary of the Navy Daniels that he will be given an early assignment. He probably will be made chaplain of the destroyer fleet now in foreign waters, as he is of French Canadian parentage and speaks French fluently.

Father Darche was born in Bourbonnais, Ill., June 8, 1888.

Dutch Ships Will Leave for Europe in Few Days

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The fifty Dutch ships in New York harbor will be started to Europe two or three at a time beginning early next week, Chevalier Van Rappard, the Holland minister, stated today. The first to move will be those loaded with wheat for Belgian relief.

LABOR DAY

Gov. Lowden, in Proclamation Naming Sept. 3, Urges All to Join in the Celebration.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 25.—Monday, Sept. 3, was proclaimed by Gov. Lowden today as Labor day.

"This is a day of significance, not to workingmen alone but to society as a whole," the governor said in his proclamation. "For it must not be forgotten that the final test of a civilization is the lot in life of the average man and woman. Whatever tends to improve that lot helps society as a whole.

"Never in our history has it been so important that labor and capital should sympathetically coöperate as it is in this crisis which the war has brought upon us. I think I see a better understanding between capital and labor coming out of the common sufferings and sacrifices of this war. Then let our people generally join in the celebration of Labor day. I urge that all business be suspended in order that all men and women, whether they employ others or are themselves employed, may participate in the exercises of the day."

$550,000,000 Subscribed for New Treasury Notes

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Heavy oversubscription of the treasury's latest offering of short term certificates, issued in anticipation of the second Liberty bond issue, was announced tonight by Secretary McAdoo. Today's receipts of $250,000,000 brings the total thus subscribed up to $550,000,000, the previous issue, $300,000,000, also having been oversubscribed. The increased size of the two offerings of certificates over the offerings made in advance of the first Liberty bond issue is regarded as presaging a larger offering of Liberty bonds in the second issue than the $2,000,000,000 of the first issue.

Mt. Vernon Honors Men Entering National Army

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—One of the largest crowds in the history of Mt. Vernon assembled today to honor the young men recently drafted and those who have already entered the service in various capacities in the army, navy and aviation corps, of whom there are twenty or more. A parade was the feature, and between 600 and 700 registered and first call men took part. In the parade also were veterans of three American wars.

PLACES WHOLE BLAME FOR WAR ON ALLIES' FOES

LONDON, Aug. 25.—"I see they again are talking in Germany about how England started the war," remarked Lord Robert Cecil, minister of blockade, in his weekly talk yesterday with the Associated Press. "It is an old song, but I think the time has come, particularly in the United States, when it is well to restate briefly the facts regarding the beginning of this great conflict.

"Frankly, I do not think any one anywhere can honestly believe that England began the war. If any person in this country two weeks before the war had asserted we would be plunged into the greatest international conflict the world has ever seen the speaker would have been regarded as a dangerous lunatic.

"It is true that some of our people had been saying for a year or more before that time that Germany intended to attack us, but their warnings fell on deaf ears. Certainly we did not start the war. Who did? I think the answer is unquestionable. For at least a year before the war began Germany had definitely made up her mind to fight."

Britons in the U. S. Await Congress Action

Several British citizens in Chicago have written to THE TRIBUNE for an explanation of the act recently passed in parliament in reference to the enlistment of Britons now in the United States. Parliament's action is legislation merely preliminary to the convention between England and the United States and awaits the action of the American congress on the subject. When congress acts a joint convention will decide what will be done with English citizens now in America. In the meanwhile British citizens, who desire to do so, may enlist voluntarily at the recruiting headquarters, 56 West Adams street.

County War Board Will Stop Gary Peace Meeting

Gary, Ind., Aug. 25.—The Lake county council of defense will take steps to prohibit the holding of a peace meeting at Turner hall next Thursday night. A call for the meeting was issued by James H. Dolsen, in behalf of the Chicago People's council. No move will be made by the local office of the department of justice to prohibit the meeting, it was stated, but arrests will follow if disloyal utterances are made. It is reported that a local vigilance committee is being formed to stop the proposed meeting.

Shortage in Small Bills; Money Factory Speeds Up

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—A shortage of $1 and $2 bills, acute in many sections, exists throughout the country. Banks, looking to the treasury for relief, are unable to have their full demands satisfied because of the low reserves of these denominations in the vaults.

Prosperity of the country, it was said, is the primary cause of the condition, with the crop movements and other seasonal demands as contributing factors.

The bureau of engraving and printing, working at top speed on Liberty bonds, has been unable to meet the demand.

French Review 1,100 Slav Volunteers from America

MARSEILLES, Aug. 25.—Eleven hundred young Slav volunteers, just arrived from America, were reviewed this morning by Gen. Drude and Admiral Allemand. The review was a brilliant spectacle, each company marching by a stand from which floated one or another of the entente flags, while a dirigible circled overhead.

WITH BABY IN ARMS, FATHER LEAPS TO DEATH

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Women and children in front of 305 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street heard a crash of glass over their heads this afternoon. They looked up, to see a man falling with a screaming two year old child in his arms. They made way for the two bodies, which crumpled up on the sidewalk.

The man was James Byrne, 35 years old. The child was his daughter, Mary, whom he had taken on his leap. Witnesses say she seemed to know the intent of her father when he appeared with her at the window on the fifth floor, for she struggled to free herself.

A policeman called an ambulance from Harlem hospital, and father and child were taken there. Byrne died as he was being admitted. The child was unconscious, and the doctors said she had a fractured skull.

Among the first to appear in response to the screams of the neighbors was Mrs. Byrne, holding the hand of her five year old daughter, Margaret. She was prostrated by her husband's act. It was learned that she was in another apartment at the time of the tragedy. She had left her own apartment after a quarrel.

PEACE TREATY IS SIGNED BY U. S. AND LABOR

Board to Adjust Wages in Private Plants Building Ships.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The first peace treaty between organized labor and the United States government was signed today.

It provides for a commission of three to adjust wages, hours, and conditions of labor in all private shipbuilding plants in the country.

President Wilson has named V. Everett Macy as the representative of the public on the board. The men to be named by the government shipping board and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor have not yet been announced.

Macy is a New York capitalist, director of several banks, and treasurer of the national child labor commission.

Will Prevent Strikes.

The plan to settle ship yard troubles is the forerunner of a scheme to prevent strikes in munition and war supplies plants now being arranged between government officials and labor leaders.

The originator of both plans is Louis D. Wehle, Louisville, Ky. The signers to it were F. D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy; Admiral W. L. Capps, general manager of the Emergency Fleet corporation; Samuel Gompers, and international officers of the various trades engaged in shipbuilding.

Under the agreement the wages and working conditions in effect on July 15 will continue wherever labor troubles are threatened in ship yards. Then the board of three adjusters steps in to consider demands for higher wages or better working conditions. The labor leaders agreed not to call out their men pending efforts of the board to settle the dispute.

The board's decision shall be final and binding on all parties, but either side to the dispute may reopen the question six months later if it desires.

Mr. Gompers will actually appoint two members to the board—one from the metal trades and one from among wooden ship carpenters—but only one will sit on the board on any question in dispute.

The agreement also provides for two associate members of the board with voting powers to sit in when disputes concerning private plants are being adjusted—one associate for the owner and one for the employés. Similar provision for representation on the board is made in case of a dispute in private yards doing work for the navy department.

The I. W. W. situation throughout the country, and especially in the west, where activities are interfering with war industries, is to be investigated, with the approval of President Wilson, by a commission appointed by the council of national defense.

Gompers for Arrangement.

Mr. Gompers in a statement tonight advocated extension of the arrangement to munition and war supply industries.

"The agreement of the adjustment of labor conditions on work for the emergency fleet corporation and the shipping board will inspire confidence in the men in the shipbuilding trades," he said, "because it is based upon standards, relations, and responsibility that are in accord with fair dealing.

"The agreement indicates a desire of the government and organized labor to deal with labor problems with a spirit of fairness. To complete the entire program this should be supplemented by a similar provision for production of munitions and war supplies."

TWO MISSOURI SOLDIERS SLAIN BY SHRAPNEL

Fort Sill, Okla., Aug. 25.—Privates Nelson and James Kelley of Battery A, Second Missouri field artillery, were killed and four others seriously injured when a shrapnel shell exploded on the cantonment range here this afternoon, wrecking the mess hall in which they were preparing their first meal after arriving at the post.

The injured are: Privates Oakley Bloomer, McGrew, and Raymond Rose. Nelson was killed outright, and Kelley died on the way to the hospital.

The shell is believed to have been exploded, after having been left partly buried on the field, by the heat of a fire nearby over which the men were cooking.

Farmer Captures German Who Escaped from Fort

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 25.—Arnold Henkel, a German army officer who sawed his way out of prison at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Thursday night, was captured by a farmer near there yesterday. Henkel approached the farmer's home and asked for something to eat. He was recognized and when he resisted arrest he was shot, receiving a flesh wound.

BRITAIN KEEPS NOTED PACIFIST PASTOR AT HOME

New York, Aug. 25.—The British government has refused passports to the Rev. Stanley A. Mellor, Unitarian minister and pacifist of Liverpool, who had accepted an invitation from the general Unitarian conference of the United States and Canada to deliver the "conference sermon" at the coming biennial session in Montreal, it was announced here today by the conference publicity committee.

Former President William H. Taft is president of the conference to be held Sept. 24 to 28, and will deliver two addresses, while one on "An International Peace Program" will be made by Premier Borden of Canada, it was said.

"Mr. Mellor is president of the Unitarian Peace society, which coöperates with the League for Democratic Control and other pacifist organizations in Great Britain," said the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the conference executive council, "but his reputation as a preacher is of such a character that his pacifist views were not regarded as affecting in any serious degree his availability for the highest honor which the Unitarians of this country and Canada can confer upon a preacher."

ARMY HALTS HOUSTON PLEA TO TRY NEGROES

Meeting of Whites Is Stopped; Pledges 'Quick Justice.'

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Houston, Tex., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Houston's white population bumped its head against the United States army tonight.

As a result, Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., commander of the Illinois division to be trained at Camp Logan, modified his promise to withdraw martial law in this city tomorrow.

Despite the general's promise that the Negro soldiers of the Twenty-fourth infantry who caused the race riots in which seventeen died and many were wounded would receive "quick army justice" and his statement that death by the firing squad was the penalty for mutiny and murder, the white citizens—at least many of them—were not satisfied.

They want the Negro soldiers returned to Houston for civil trial on charges of murder, for which thirty-four of them were indicted by the grand jury this afternoon. Policemen and deputy sheriffs circulated petitions today making such a demand on Secretary of War Baker, and a massmeeting of protest was called this evening.

Maj. Gen. Bell promptly broke up the meeting, declaring it was a violation of martial law.

A bullet hole in one of the shacks in Camp Logan, where the Negro battalion was encamped, may prove the clinching evidence which may send many of the Negro troopers to death before firing squads as mutineers in time of war.

Maj. L. S. Snow, who was in command of the battalion of Negroes, pointed out the bullet hole, which may decide the fate of the Negroes, today. It showed, he said, that the shooting which started the race war, resulting in the death of seventeen persons and the wounding of thirty or more, began within the limits of Camp Logan.

ON WAY TO BORDER.

The major declared he believed the shooting in camp was indiscriminate, but despite the fact that he narrowly escaped death, he did not think any of the bullets were aimed at him. However, the shooting in camp and the disobeyal of orders of officers made the action of the soldiers "practically mutiny," the major said.

The 635 members of the Negro battalion were speeding back to their border camp at Columbus, N. M., today. They left here disarmed and disgraced. In their ranks were the 150 soldiers who marched against the whites of Houston, including the thirty-four Negro soldiers whom the state authorities had captured and held in the county jail.

The civil authorities turned the soldiers over to the army just before the train started for Columbus, N. M., early today.

With the departure of the Negro soldiers, Camp Logan began again today busying itself with the real business of war.

RESUME WORK AT CAMP.

Thousands of civilians resumed once more the construction of the big cantonments where the Illinois division of national guardsmen will be trained for service in France.

Maj. Snow, who remained at Camp Logan, and the civilian authorities were prepared to submit voluminous reports to Maj. Gen. Bell on the race war. All the statements obtained from the Negro soldiers conform in the declaration that there was no drinking among the soldiers; that the men were inflamed to kill by reports that Corp. Baltimore of Company I had been shot by policemen.

The recitals of the raiders in simple, yet at times colorful, language were remarkable documents of the psychology of soldiering and of leadership in battle.

LEADER DEAD; QUIT RAID.

Sergt. Vida Henry, who was killed while leading the raiders, handled them at all times like a top sergeant in battle. In skirmish formation they advanced on the whites, killing and bayoneting, carefully conserving the guns and ammunition of their own dead and wounded.

With their leader dead—the man who had issued order after order, which they had been trained only to obey, who threatened to kill any man who deserted or retreated—the raiders forgot their thirst for the blood of whites, their desire to avenge insults, which they felt had been heaped upon them because they were black. They sought hiding in the cemetery, in the Negro quarter of Houston, or skulked back toward camp.

Chiperfield to Investigate.

Judge Advocate Maj. B. M. Chiperfield of the Illinois division of the national guard, has been instructed to report to the war department on the course that should be pursued in prosecution of the Negro troopers who engaged in the Houston race riots, according to a dispatch from Washington tonight.

The department will rely on Maj. Chiperfield's recommendations in determining whether the prosecution should be conducted by military court martial or in the state or federal courts of Texas.

However, Gen. Bell intimated very strongly today that the military officials alone will deal with the raiders.

Army Justice Quicker.

"I assume," he said, "that the local authorities will seek to try the men against whom charges have been filed. However, their disposition is in the hands of the military. They will be court martialed. The justice meted out by army authorities will be much quicker obtained than it could be by civil procedure."

"I am not prepared to analyze the causes of the affair of Thursday night, from the reports I have received up to the present time," Gen. Bell continued. "I presume, though, that the repressive influence thrown around the colored troops had something to do with it. These colored troops probably had a notion that somebody had slighted them.

Points to Death Penalty.

"The Twenty-fourth infantry has heretofore had a fine army record. None of these men were implicated in the Brownsville riots. At Columbus they behaved themselves.

"Mutiny in time of war is punishable by death. Murder at all times involves the death penalty. Punishment will be promptly and effectively dealt out to those prticipating in the rioting here."

The first of the funerals of the victims of the rioting took place this morning.

Thousands Honor Mattes.

The body of Capt. Joseph W. Mattes, Battery A, Second artillery of Chicago, was escorted through the streets by an infantry band and the entire battery. All the staff officers of the camp attended the funeral.

The colors of the battery were draped in black and all the men wore black ties. Thousands of Houston people lined the streets to pay their last respects to the man who lost his life that their town and lives may be safe. The body will arrive in Chicago about Monday.

Ask Removal of Illinoisans.

Telegrams were sent to the Texas delegation at Washington today by citizens stating that the Negro company of the Eighth Illinois infantry stationed here "must go." The telegrams pointed out that not since the rioting had a single Negro been troubled by the civilian population.

They called to the attention of the delegation, also, the fact that on the very night the disturbances took place the chamber of commerce had arranged for a watermelon feast for the Negro soldiers here. The Illinois Negroes took no part in the troubles.

Remove Negroes at Deming.

Deming, N. M., Aug. 25.—Preparations were made at noon today to transfer the battalions of the Twenty-fourth United States infantry (Negro), stationed here, back to its former station at Columbus, N. M. The decision was reached by military authorities as a result of threats of trouble between Negro soldiers and townspeople over the beating of an automobile driver last night.

THE EIGHTH

Houston, Tex., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., commander of the Illinois division of federalized national guard, made the following statement to a "Tribune" reporter today:

"I do not know about the Eighth Illinois Negro infantry of Chicago. It is up to the war department. Personally I think it would be better for both sides if they were not sent here. I could take care of them without trouble if they did come, however.

"Both sides are excited now and I think it would be better if they were sent somewhere where they could train under more pleasant conditions. There are plenty of places in New Mexico or Arizona that are suited for training."

BAKER PONDERS ON TRAINING OF NEGRO TROOPS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Government officials today were still pondering over the problem confronting them concerning the disposition of Negro troops.

While it was declared in official quarters premature to say that the outbreak of Negro regulars at Houston would lead to a change in the war department's plans for training colored draft troops and national guardsmen at the same cantonments with white soldiers in the south, it was admitted that no problem connected with the system of cantonments and the national army has given officials greater concern and even anxiety than the race question.

South Dakotan Killed in France.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—H. A. Bari, Lake Preston, S. D., is on the Canadian casualty list tonight among those killed in action.

ALL SET AND READY TO GO

Joy Fills Men of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth Field Artillery, Formerly the First Illinois, When Word Is Passed That Orders Are Expected Daily for Regiment to Move East.

COL. HENRY J. REILLY.

LIEUT. J. M. PATTERSON. CORP. EDGAR BROWDER. LIEUT. JOHN P. RIDINGTON. CORP. DONALD COTTON.

SERGT. ASA HICKMAN AND WIFE.

STRAINING at the leash, the One Hundred and Forty-ninth field artillery is up on its toes waiting for the order to go east. This order is expected daily and Chicago will see the departure of Col. Reilly's regiment, the old First Illinois artillery, probably not later than Wednesday. An "underground wireless" has it they will get away Monday night, but nobody knows definitely, not even Col. Reilly.

Yesterday was spent in converting pine board tent flooring into packing cases and gangways for loading horses, and in packing equipment. The last drill at Camp Geismar was held Friday. The regiment will not take its guns, as French guns will be issued to it if it gets to France. All guns, caissons, and ordnance, worth approximately $1,000,000, were turned back to the government yesterday. It is believed, however, the horses will accompany the regiment.

Despite the hard work before them, the men were as happy as larks yesterday, filled with joy over the prospect of an early departure. If any were depressed, they did not show it, not even the mothers and wives who visited the camp. Once in a while a mother's lip could be seen to tremor, but only for a moment.

In the afternoon a stand of silk colors was presented to the regiment by the Waukegan Defense council. V. A. Dunn, Civil war veteran and author of numerous Civil war stories, made the presentation, while Col. Reilly accepted the colors on behalf of the regiment.

"It is well for you men to ask yourselves, 'Why am I here,'" Mr. Dunn said. "You are here because you are the hammers which must smite and pulverize Prussian militarism so it can never rise and strike again.

"We have thousands of pacifists, who seek to stab this nation in the back. Do not let them deter you. The cries of anguish from the outraged women of Belgium, the cries of the starving and abused children and the cries of torn and stricken France come to us on every gale, and it is for you to answer, 'We are coming, sister republic, if need be, a million strong.'"

The regiment is short 106 men necessary to complete its war strength of 1,467. A week of vigorous recruiting downtown won about seventy men. It is costing the regiment about $100 a day, an expense which must be met from funds other than those of the government. If sufficient recruits are not obtained by the time the regiment leaves Chicago, the required men will be transferred to it from other state regiments, Col. Reilly said.

Second Artillery to Meet Body of Capt. Mattes

SECOND ARTILLERY
(Streeterville)

This morning the Second Illinois field artillery will march to the Chicago and Alton station. The procession will move not in quickstep, but in the measured tread of mourners; and the band will play music that is not martial.

The regiment will meet the train which bears the body of heroic, beloved Capt. "Joe" Mattes, who helped make traditions for the old First cavalry, and who glorified those traditions in his death. Under military guard the body was shipped yesterday from Houston, Tex.

Capt. Mattes will be buried on Tuesday, at 10 a. m., at the St. Boniface cemetery, North Clark street and Lawrence avenue. A volley will be fired over the grave. All day Monday the casket will lie in state in the chapel of Our Lady of Lourdes church, Ashland and Leland avenues, guarded by an "honor watch." Father Scanlon of the church will officiate at the services.

In the march from the church to the cemetery, the regiment will be swelled by a committee from the Spanish-American war veterans headed by A. A. Hagglund. Fellow officers will act as pallbearers, while at the head of the procession will be the new regimental flag which was to have been dedicated on Friday. The dedication was postponed on account of the death of Capt. Mattes, and the flag will appear for the first time draped in black at the head of the funeral cortege.

Trumpeters from the regimental bugle corps will sound "taps" as the body is lowered into the grave. Then the volley over the grave, and the regiment will go back to Camp Wampold to continue its preparation for the call to service.

EIGHTH INFANTRY
(3517 Forest avenue).

Col. Denison's orderly was a disgruntled individual. He was the only one at the armory. The balance of the regiment, including the band, attended the ball game at the White Sox park as guests of President Comiskey.

SECOND INFANTRY.
2653 West Madison street.

Realizing that this week-end probably would be the last the boys would spend in Chicago for some time, Col. Garrity gave leave to the regiment to take yesterday afternoon and today off to spend with their families and friends. Only a few on detail were left at the armory.

ELEVENTH INFANTRY
(124 West Adams Street)

Owing to lack of adequate equipment the regiment will be limited to about 800 men, Capt. W. E. Swanson announced yesterday. This means that the regiment is fully recruited, as per schedule. No more enlistments will be taken. The conference between Adjt. Gen. Dickson and Gen. Stuart and Capt. Swanson took place yesterday. The final details of incorporating the home guard regiment into the state service will be finished tomorrow.

149TH FIELD ARTILLERY
(Camp Geismer, Fort Sheridan)

Take your hat off to Tommy Roy, the recruiting recruit.

When Col. Reilley's "rainbow" regiment established temporary enlisting quarters in the Conway building about a week ago to get 125 men needed to bring the unit to war strength, one of the first who answered the call was Tommy, and he heard it from a little town near Danville, Ill., which is not listed even on a state map. Once he was passed and became one of the 149th, Tommy set out to "do likewise." To date, without physical force or hypnotic suasion, Private Roy has brought in more recruits than all the other men combined.

He made twenty-seven in one hour. What?

1ST ILLINOIS ENGINEERS
(Municipal Pier)

All morning was spent yesterday by the engineers in getting ready for the presentation of colors tomorrow by the Western Society of Engineers. In anticipation of this event officers of the regiment made valiant efforts to get full uniforms and equipment in time for the event.

The rifles arrived yesterday. The remainder of the uniforms came in also. Metal polish was in high demand. The band had its final rehearsal. The boys have been so well drilled that further drill rehearsal was not considered necessary.

General Guglielmotti Is Guest at Luncheon

Gen. Guglielmotti of the Italian general staff was the guest of honor at a luncheon in the Blackstone hotel yesterday. The luncheon was arranged by William M. Patch, director of the tour of the Italian war films for the Italian government.

Portuguese Socialists Bar Stockholm Council

LISBON, Aug. 25.—The Portuguese Socialists have decided not to participate in the Stockholm conference. They will, however, send representatives to London to attend the meeting of the workingmen's party.

Negro Says Men of Mattes' Regiment Attacked Him

Floyd Mead, a Negro, of 870 North Franklin street, was arrested by members of the Second Illinois artillery when he is said to have attempted to enter the camp at Chicago avenue after failing to obey the order of the sentry to halt. The police were called. Mead said the soldiers were taking revenge on him for the death of Capt. Mattes at Houston at the hands of Negroes.

Giant of Indiana Passes Physical Test for Army

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 25.—[Special.] Arthur Robinson, who is eighty inches tall and said to be the tallest man in Indiana, passed the physical examination for the national army.

MANY "TAILOR MADE" SHIPS TO BE BUILT BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Extensive contracts calling for the erection in fabricating plants of several hundred thousand tons of merchant ships are under consideration by the shipping board.

Among the principal builders of these "tailor made" ships, it was learned today, will be the American International Banking corporation, the Merchants Shipbuilding corporation, and the Submarine Boat company. Other large shipbuilding companies also are expected to take part in the construction, whereby the government hopes to turn out through a prefabricating process more than double the number of ships that could be constructed by individual builders.

These firms will complete the vessel parts as nearly as possible, and they will be shipped to the government fabricating plant for emplacement in the vessel frames under construction.

ARGENTINE TO STRIKE BACK AT U. S. EXPORT BILL

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25.—Argentina is preparing to hit the Webb export combinations bill framed by the United States.

Favorable action today by a special committee of the chamber of deputies on a bill for prohibition of trusts or "branches of foreign trusts" in Argentina was deemed a certain prelude to passage of such a measure. Dispatches indicated several other Latin-American nations would make effective similar statutes.

Speedy enactment was also forecast of Argentine's adoption of a 2 per cent export tax on meat, grain, and certain other commodities. Argentina has never become reconciled to the Webb bill. It regarded the measure as affording United States trusts an opportunity to compete on unequal terms with home manufacturers.

GERMAN LEADERS DOUBT SUCCESS OF U-BOAT WAR

Three Reichstag Members Dispute Claims Made by Government.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25.—The submarine controversy again has been raised in the German reichstag's main committee by the government's efforts to convince the members that the unrestricted U-boat campaign is a great success.

Press dispatches, both for foreign and home consumption, have been printed, giving in detail the arguments and statements from Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the interior and vice chancellor, and Vice Admiral Eduard von Capelle, secretary of the imperial admiralty. These dispatches, however, carefully refrained from mentioning the skeptical attitude of Mathias Erzberger, Clerical member of the reichstag; Phillip Scheidemann, Socialist member; and Conrad Haussmann, Bavarian radical.

Seek Light on Sea War.

Herr Scheidemann took issue with Dr. Helfferich, questioned his account of the workings of the unrestricted campaign, and warned the government that it must not deceive itself regarding the effect of the sinkings on England. Herr Scheidemann said that nothing had been brought forward to change his party's attitude on the submarine question.

Herr Erzberger said that Admiral von Capelle's figures were based on an antiquated assumption and in nowise were they convincing, and he was still skeptical in regard to these calculations. Herr Haussmann declared that the situation had in certain quarters been pictured exaggeratedly as good and that expectations had been raised all too powerfully.

Vice Chancellor Helfferich and Secretary von Capelle spoke repeatedly in rebuttal to their critics' arguments, but apparently without success.

No Progress Toward Peace.

Yesterday's session of the main committee of the reichstag was productive of further declarations and discussions regarding Chancellor Michaelis' attitude on peace which the latest German papers construe variously.

A careful perusal of the mass of reports and comments on the committee meetings yesterday and on Wednesday show that Dr. Michaelis throughout conferences with party leaders did not change his attitude regarding the wording of his ambiguous speech of July 19, and the situation as far as pinning him down to any definite peace program remains exactly where it was when he assumed office.

Press Hurls Charges.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Newspapers representing the majority party accuse the pan-Germans of attempting to use Chancellor Michaelis as a battering ram against the coalition, relying for success for their tactics upon the difficulty of the chancellor's position and the fact that he is a newcomer in the arena of practical politics.

The situation may be epitomized as follows:

The supplementary statement made by the chancellor, definitely explaining his position on the reichstag peace resolution, has satisfied the majority parties, and, further, has agreed to work out Germany's reply to the papal note in active conjunction with the main committee or its newly created subcommittee, or a provisional council to be made up of seven members of the reichstag, who are to confer confidentially with the government on matters of foreign policy.

Michaelis Reports to Kaiser.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.—A Berlin official dispatch received here says Chancellor Michaelis visited headquarters and presented Emperor William with a report. Some Berlin newspapers say the visit is connected with Alsace-Lorraine.

"REGRET" IS NOT ENOUGH, DUTCH TELL GERMANY

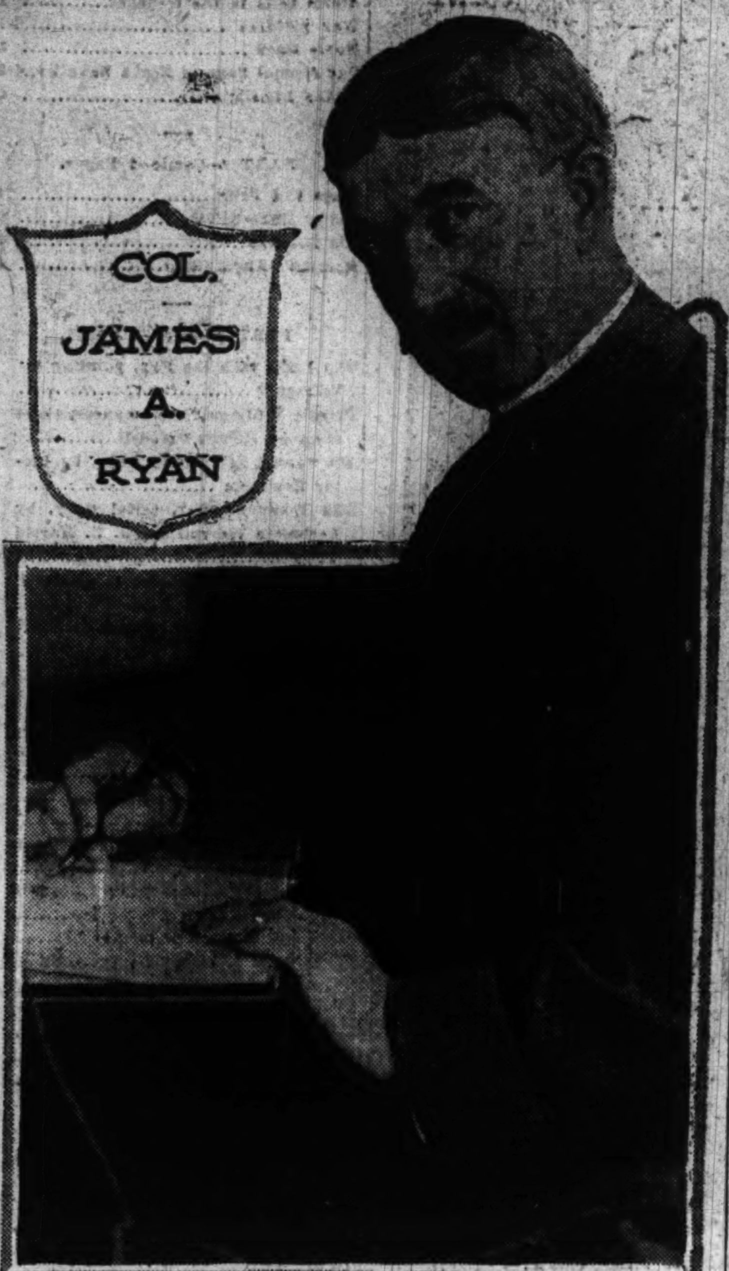
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.—An official communication issued by the foreign ministry says that in response to the protest of the Dutch government against a flight over Dutch territory on Aug. 18 by an air squadron which dropped bombs, Germany has expressed regrets and explained that a channel squadron had lost its way in the thick clouds.

The Dutch minister at Berlin has been instructed to inform the German government that this explanation does not justify a flight over Zeeland and the provinces of Friesland and Groningen by two planes, one of which descended and the other was shot down.

The ministry is charged to renew the protest against the violation of Dutch territory by the dropping of bombs.

KAISERISM DOESN'T GO

Commandant at Fort Sheridan Decrees Democracy, in its Strictest Sense, Will Rule in Second Officers' Reserve Training Camp.



STEAMER DARES A THICK FOG TO ESCAPE U-BOAT

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 25.—By running at full speed into the thick of a fog, a British steamer, in today from a foreign port, escaped a German submarine which had pursued it for several hours while trying to get close enough to discharge a torpedo. The captain of the steamer reported that the U-boat took up the chase shortly after his vessel got away from port and was gradually cutting down the distance between them when he reached the edge of the fog.

The crew of the German steamship Renate Leonhardt, which was torpedoed and sunk off the Dutch coast while on the way from Rotterdam for a German port, has been landed at Ymuiden.

This was the second attempt of the Renate Leonhardt to return to Germany.

JOURNAL ARGUES FOR EXEMPTING MEDIC STUDENTS

An article controverting statements made by Provost Marshal Crowder to the effect that only about one-fourteenth of the country's medical students can be taken into military service on the first draft appears in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

It is the position of the Journal, as well as many leading physicians, that medical students can best serve their country by completing their medical educations and going into the army as physicians. To draft them as fighters for the trenches would be to repeat an error made by England at the beginning of the war, resulting in a dearth of medical officers for the army, it is pointed out.

"Is it possible that these officials (the provost marshal and Secretary of War Baker) imagine that medical science and medical education have made no progress since our civil war?" asks the journal.

ROME, Aug. 25.—Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, is leaving on a four weeks' vacation to visit his birthplace in the Marches provinces.

NO CHANGE IN DRAFT RULES, CHICAGO VIEW

According to Chicago draft officials, the president's letter issued yesterday, in which he urged great care in calling married men to the national army, makes no changes in the regulations, but rather emphasizes the rule that no injustice be done dependents, while at the same time men who are not the sole support of relatives should not be exempted.

It has been discovered that some of the local boards have "passed the buck" up to the appeal boards in many cases of married men where some doubt has been raised as to whether they actually are the sole support of relatives. The appeal boards now, the president rules, should exercise care to see that no injury is done a dependent and at the same time he urges that the regulations as originally promulgated be lived up to strictly, the dependency and not the married state being the ground on which exemptions should be allowed.

SECOND OFFICERS' TRAINING CAMP OPEN TOMORROW

Democracy, Not Autocracy, to Rule at Fort Sheridan.

Democracy, in the strictest sense of the word, will rule at the second reserve officers' training camp, which will begin work at Fort Sheridan tomorrow.

Col. James A. Ryan, commanding officer, announced yesterday that the camp will be modeled as closely as possible after West Point and the Fort Leavenworth school system. Every candidate will be on the same level as his fellow, all will be housed in the same manner, will eat in the same barracks, and will drill side by side.

Approximately 4,160 men will attend and will be divided into twenty-three companies of infantry, seven batteries of field artillery, and two companies of coast artillery. There will be about 120 men in each company.

All Ready for Students.

The batteries will not be trained first as infantry, as in the first camp, but will immediately take up training as field artillery. The coast artillery, however, will receive infantry training.

All is in readiness so that the students can be assigned to their companies immediately on arrival, and there will be no loss of time in getting to work. Twelve regular army officers and eighty-six officers of the reserve corps have reported as instructors, and more are to come.

The student officers, upon arrival, will report at the gymnasium, where they will be registered and assigned to companies.

Col. Ryan hopes and expects that every man will come equipped with at least one uniform. The training course will close on Nov. 27.

Read What You Must Do.

For the benefit of the embryo officers, Col. Ryan gave out a statement yesterday.

"The first requisites in the training of modern armies," he said, "are thoroughness and precision, and the prescribed courses are designed to teach as thoroughly as possible the duties of an officer, instructor, manager, and leader.

"Candidates will have the same drill and training as they must in future give to their commands—the same rigid discipline and attention to detail as they must exact when they become officers. They will live the same life their future commands will live, and will learn to supply, administer, discipline, and care for their men's health and welfare by passing through the same course themselves.

Will Be No Favoritism.

"Regardless of grade or age, all must take the prescribed course, and the reward will be commissions in the national army for those who attain the highest average. While competition will be keen, good fellowship and fairness must permeate every action.

"Candidates, instructors, and assistant instructors are all working for the same goal, namely, the unqualified success of the second training camp."

Death Follows Operation.

Leo Carlinsky, 7 years old, 740 South Leavitt street, died at the West Side hospital yesterday of what the police say was the shock following an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids.

GOOD-BY, SAMMY!

Official Farewell to Seventh Illinois Infantry Tomorrow Night Marks First in Series Arranged for Week.

When Uncle Sam decides a regiment of troops is to move to a concentration camp he gives little notice to the regiment and none at all to the public these days.

In order that Chicago's soldiers may not go to their respective concentration camps without an official goodby from Chicago a committee has arranged a series of farewells to be given in Grant park. Every night next week at the foot of Congress street a splendid demonstration is promised to the crowds gathered to pay tribute to the nation's defenders.

The committee announced yesterday the program for the farewell to be given at 8 o'clock tomorrow night to Col. Daniel Moriarity's Seventh infantry regiment. The Seventh regimental band will give a concert of patriotic airs and a salute of twenty-one guns will be fired. A soldiers' quartet will sing war songs. Miss Mignonne Meeker Powers, soprano, also will sing.

Presentation of colors to the regiment will be followed by an address by former Gov. Dunne, after which the crowd will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner." An hour of open air fellowship with the men will follow.

The week's program of farewells follows:

Tuesday, Second artillery, Col. Milton J. Foreman.

Wednesday, Second infantry, Col. John J. Garrity.

Thursday, First Illinois engineers, Col. Henry A. Allen.

Friday, Eighth infantry, Col. F. A. Denison.

Saturday, First infantry (probably), Col. Joseph B. Sanborn.

EXPATRIATION MAY BE COST OF PRO-GERMANISM

Disloyal persons of foreign birth are to lose their American citizenship, according to a plan now under consideration by the United States government for the curbing of pro-German agitators, pacifists, and anti-conscriptionists.

Details became known yesterday when secret service men, department of justice agents, and citizens' vigilant committees started a country-wide roundup of traitors and spy suspects.

Congress will be asked to enact into a law a resolution now pending that would deprive all persons of foreign birth of their citizenship when found guilty of pro-Germanism. The resolution was drawn up at a recent conference of officials in Washington. The country is to be purged of anti-Americanism.

In the drive against slackers to be launched today, bathing beaches, the parks and all other open-air places are to be checked by secret service men and city police. Special attention will be devoted to the Schwaben picnic, which closes at Brand's park tomorrow. Seditious speeches are said to have been made there every day in German. Wholesale arrests are expected tomorrow.

Governor of Canada to Approve Draft Tuesday

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 25.—It was stated here that royal assent will be given to the conscription bill by his excellency the governor general next Tuesday afternoon.

SKELETON OF NEW ARMY GOES TO CAMP SEPT. 5

Order Cuts First Quota to 5 Per Cent; Exempt Married Men.

cases wherein married men have been drafted for service. The following is the text of Gen. Crowder's announcement:

"A feeling has been expressed that in passing on claims for discharge on the ground of dependents, local boards ought in no case to refuse a discharge to a married man or to the head of a family. The law under which local boards act requires that before such a discharge can be granted, dependency as well as relationship must be established.

The President's Orders.

"The matter having been presented to the president, the following are his orders thereon:

"'We ought as far as practicable to raise this new national army without creating the hardships necessarily entailed when the head of a family is taken, and I hope that for the most part those accepted in the first call would be found to be men who had not yet assumed such relations.

"'The selective service law makes the fact of dependents rather than the fact of marriage the basis for exemption, and there are undoubtedly many cases within the age limits fixed by law of men who are married and yet whose accumulations or other economic surroundings are such that no dependency of the wife exists in fact. Plainly the law does not contemplate exemption for this class of men.

"'The regulations promulgated on June 30, 1917, should be regarded as controlling in these cases, and the orders issued under that regulation directing exemption boards to establish the fact of dependents in addition to the fact of marriage ought not to be abrogated.'"

MAJ. GEN. BARRY TAKES COMMAND AT ROCKFORD

Assumes Charge of Camp Grant, to Be Home of Illinois Men.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry is now in command of Camp Grant and is already at work. The general accompanied by his aide de camp, Capt. Joseph C. Richardson, Jr., arrived at Rockford at 2 o'clock. His coming was unheralded and his entry into town was as unostentatious as could be.

The usual crowd was at the depot when the general stepped from the train and greeted his former aide, Lieut. Col. Roger S. Fitch. Few realized that the tall, distinguished looking grey haired officer was the new commander of the 86th division of the new national army.

Few soldiers were there, but they recognized the two stars—the insignia of rank of a major general—quickly came to attention and saluted as the general passed them and entered a waiting automobile in which he was whisked out to Camp Grant.

Arrives at Headquarters.

He arrived at his headquarters, which had been a typical farmhouse, until workmen transformed it into a spacious and imposing residence. At 2:30 he removed his hat, sat down at a desk, and at 2:31 was at work. Four minutes later Lieut. Col. Fitch was on his way corraling every officer for the first conference with their chief.

The conference lasted ten minutes, after which the general brought the officers out on to the veranda and posed with them for pictures.

"I have already made temporary assignments of the officers," said Gen. Barry, "and tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock we will all meet again and I will lay out definite plans for them."

Asked his impressions of the camp over which he will have command Gen. Barry said:

"I was here three weeks ago and the progress on the camp is just what I expected and we will be ready for the boys when they begin to arrive."

Officers Must Live at Camp.

One of Gen. Barry's first orders was that all officers, whatever their rank may be, must from now on "eat and sleep in camp."

"Gentlemen," said Gen. Barry, addressing the officers surrounding him, "I understand some of you are staying at a downtown hotel with your families."

Most of them nodded assent.

"Tomorrow morning from 10 o'clock on you will report for duty at this camp and you will eat and sleep here."

Gen. Barry's successor in command of the central department, Maj. Gen. William H. Carter, who was called back into active service from the retired list, is expected here today.

His Farewell Advice.

A message of welcome to the men of the national army was issued by Gen. Barry as he was leaving for Rockford.

"I and all the officers assigned to my command," he said, "will be not only the instructors of the men, but their friends in every sense of the word.

"In relinquishing command of the Central department may I not be permitted to convey my thanks to the patriotic citizens of Chicago and all administrations connected therewith for the many courtesies extended to me, the staff, and the troops of the department during the period of my command?

"I beg the same courtesy and consideration for my successor. I hope for the same consideration and courtesy from the people of Illinois and all administrations of the state in the work of whipping into shape the national army at Rockford. I thank the press of Chicago for the courtesies extended to me.

Advice to New Men.

Gen. Barry advises the men of the new national army to bring as few impedimenta as possible to the camp with them.

"We expect to equip them all with uniforms immediately they arrive in camp, and then they will be compelled to get rid of all the clothes they have with them," he said.

"I have every hope that by January, 1918, the members of the national army under my command will be in good shape, and, I hope, as good as the men from Fort Sheridan are now."

DISTRICT 77 WILL HONOR ITS QUOTA OF THE NEW ARMY

District 77 of Chicago is not going to let its quota for the new national army leave for camp without showing them and the city at large that the "stay at homes" appreciate the service the men are about to render.

An organization has been formed for the purpose. It is known as the Ridge Patriots' league, and has a membership of about 1,000 citizens of Beverly Hills, Morgan Park and Washington Heights. The league has undertaken to dedicate the new army men, and a patriotic demonstration at which an "honor roll" will be made up is being planned for the day on which the boys will be mobilized to start for training camp—probably Sept. 4.

At a public meeting each boy is to be presented with a comfort kit and asked to enroll his name in an album, copies of which are to be placed in each of the churches in the district. The league is pledged to stand firmly behind its soldiers and see they are supplied with such things as may be sent from home, while those who are left behind are kept free from want.

26,000 Rail Men Get Wage Raise of $8,000,000 a Year

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—A wage increase aggregating $8,000,000 annually has been granted the 26,000 shop employes on the railroads in southeastern territory, it was announced today. This settlement was effected by Secretary of Labor Wilson, who was called in as mediator after efforts since last February failed to bring both sides together.

SMALL NATIONS COOL TO POPE'S PEACE PROGRAM

Allies' Reply to Give Foes Awakening, Diplomat Says.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The little nations—Belgium, Serbia, Montenegro—which have suffered under the iron heel of Germany, do not welcome Pope Benedict's peace proposal.

Even the vatican's explanation that consideration as to reparation is due "particularly to Belgium" failed to move them.

One allied diplomat, representing a country whose existence depends on the outcome of the war, said today:

"It is likely that before the allies dispatch their replies to the vatican Lloyd George or Mr. Balfour may make an extended statement in the house of commons. Together with the declarations to be made by the other allied governments the central powers will be given to understand that the peace offer made through the vatican contains absolutely no basis for negotiations.

Austrian Pressure on Ally.

"The vatican offer and its result will prove a source of great disillusionment to the central powers. Germany has been compelled to meet Austria's pressing need for peace by agreeing to the vatican proposal.

"There can never be peace on the basis proposed by the vatican, despite the many clever appeals it contains to certain factions in the respective nations at war."

The fate of small nations, especially Belgium and Serbia, must be determined fully before the allies will consent to any peace table gathering, another diplomat said.

His comment was elicited by an interview with the papal delegate, Bonzano, who expressed the belief that if there were an armistice the allies could obtain Alsace, Trent, and Trieste from the central powers by negotiation.

Sees Pride as Obstacle.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 25.—Alsace-Lorraine, Trieste and Trent—the stumbling blocks in the path of peace—could be easily and satisfactorily disposed of if the third and greatest obstacle to a just peace—pride—could be eliminated.

This is the opinion of Archbishop Bonzano, apostolic delegate and the pope's personal representative in America, given to the United Press today.

BULGARIA WANTS PEACE.

SOFIA, Aug. 25.—"We want peace and desire to end this terrible bloodshed," said Premier Radoslavoff in an interview on the papal peace note. "We have been emphasizing this attitude for more than a year. Last December we offered peace to the entente, but it preferred to seek its fortunes in a continuance of the war. In the nine months intervening our military situation has become nine times more favorable and every day proves it is becoming still stronger.

"The central powers will make concrete proposals in keeping with the papal note and will answer it individually."

W. J. BRYAN, ONE TIME PACIFIST, CALLED PATRIOT

Winona lake, Ind., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Pacifists will get no comfort out of W. J. Bryan nor out of the Sermon on the Mount, according to Prof. A. T. Robertson of Louisville, Ky., who spoke today at Winona Bible conference.

"Since the declaration of war," he said, "every slacker is a traitor. 'Ye cannot serve God and Mammon' applies to our relation to the government, as well as to money. A man who is not for Uncle Sam is against him. Mr. Bryan was a pacifist before the war, but pacifists can get no comfort from Mr. Bryan now."

Marion Lawrence of Chicago announced that friends had underwritten the cost of the Sunday school conference this year, so that the cost of $1,135 had all been paid and $1,150 had already been subscribed for next year.

Dr. Thomas F. Dornblazer of Chicago spoke on "The Union of Protestantism," the need of the twentieth century.

Three Armies Represented in Philadelphia Family

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25.—Three armies are represented in the family of William Franklin, 45, of this city. He enlisted in the Canadian forces as an airplane machinist today. One of his sons, Ernest, 27, is in the United States army, and another, Gordon, 22, is a British Tommy.

HAMILTONIANS FROLIC ALONG FOX RIVER BANK

Special Train, Autos Take Throngs to Col. Fabyan's Farm.

Seventy-five automobiles and a special train bore members of the Hamilton club, their wives, scads of home grub, the kids, and paper hats, and dozens of toy balloons to Col. George Fabyan's little Eden at Geneva yesterday. It was some celebration!

The Seals got a victory over the Specials in a ball game, trouncing them swimmingly with a score something like 118 to 97 or thereabouts, and the only casualty therefrom was when a hard headed player bumped Lieut. Pond in the slats, which made him think the Germans had come over the top.

Movie Man Busy.

Moving pictures were taken of everything, including the Fox river's prize carp which came out of the water to add to the festivities. And what's better, there was no oratory. It was just frolic and boyhood again by sedate men, and visits to Col. Fabyan's "old mill" and his trenches, and his wonderful gardens.

Victories in the great, monstrous, carnival of athletics are as follows:

GIRLS' RACE, UNDER 12—Katherine Stone, first; Lucile Ballard, second; Louise Koepke, third.

BOYS, RACE, UNDER 12—Herbert Erickson, first; William Schroth, second; William Ruggles, third.

GIRLS, 15 TO 18 [birth certificates not required]—Miss Lillian Hoffman, first; Miss Bertha Iles, second; Miss Frances Corlett, third.

BOYS, 15 TO 18—Harry Cotton, first; Victor LeGros, second.

MARRIED LADIES — Mrs. Fred Briersch, first; Mrs. Katherine Davis, second.

LADIES' HESITATION RACE—Mrs. William R. T. Ewen, first; Mrs. E. C. Glenny, second; Mrs. Royal Allen, third.

FAT MEN'S RACE—Finis Ingram, first; A. S. McLean, second.

FAT LADIES' RACE—Mrs. Agnes D. Boyd, first; Mrs. F. L. Pond, second.

HAT TRIMMING CONTEST—Harry Cotton, first; Finnis Ingram second.

TUG O' WAR—Veterans of the First regiment defeated Hamilton club.

Punch and Judy.

Also a "Punch and Judy" show, special importation from London, was "politely presented" by Prof. M. Silver. Punch punched Judy often and hard and Judy punched Punch to the delight of the little Hambletonians.

William S. Barbee was chairman of the occasion and did it up great, even to the extent that he won praise from Frederick A. Rowe, president. They all got back into Chicago before 10 o'clock, tired but joyful.

FIND RAGPICKER KNOWN AS 'ZENO' SLAIN WITH ROCK

Three men are being held at the Twenty-second street station in connection with the death of a man known only as "Zeno," a rag picker, who was found over a rag shop at 43 West Eighteenth street, yesterday afternoon, with his head crushed. The men being held deny knowledge of the murder.

The ragpicker's body was found by Louis Hokenset, 435 South Clark street, who went to visit him.

In a corner of the room the police found a stone wrapped in a blood soaked handkerchief. Bloody finger prints were found on the bed, mattress and walls.

Hokenset was arrested shortly after 6 o'clock, William Sullivan, a Negro, and Adam Bartoska, both ragpickers, who assisted the dead man, returned to the shop and were arrested.

Emma Goldman Speaks; Police Guard Is Close

Emma Goldman, under the espionage of a dozen detectives from the first deputy's office, spoke to 800 persons in the Douglas park auditorium last night, pleading for funds to aid in preventing the removal of Alexander Berkman, one of the Haymarket anarchists, from New York to California for trial in the Mooney dynamiting case. She raised $800.

CONVENTION IN MOSCOW TODAY CHECK-REINED

Delegates Expected to Accept Plans of Government.

BY ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT.

[Copyright: 1917: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

PETROGRAD, Aug. 23.—[Via London, Aug. 25.]—The government has drawn up a complete program for the national convention of all political parties to be held in Moscow on Sunday; has even made all arrangements to dissolve it if the conference takes the bit in its teeth.

But the Moscow delegates are in a mood to accept any program like obedient children.

The workmen's and soldiers' council is manifesting a desire not to hamper the government's plans by refraining from discussing the question of abolishing the death penalty on the eve of the convention.

Pin Faith to Kerensky.

The council is supported by those soldiers nicknamed "taverish" comrades—those who listened to Germant agents on the question of a separate peace, while the Cossacks, the St. Georges cross battalions and the "death head" battalions are demanding real discipline.

The council of workmen and soldiers is pinning its faith to Kerensky because his nature rebels against capital puishment.

All advices from the front indicate that it is absolutely necessary to punish with death a few indifferent soldiers in order to save the many brave troopers from being sacrificed on account of discipline.

Bolsheviki Busy Again.

The Cossacks have adopted a strong resolution supporting Gen. Korniloff and defying the government to remove him.

A significant ultimatum to the government has come from the Baltic fleet demanding the reinstatement of Admiral Verderefsky, who was removed from command at the time of the bolsheviki revolution.

The bolsheviki always make trouble at a time convenient for the Germans, who now are threatening Riga. That tendency is having its influence on the Moscow convention.

W. E. Trefflich Held on Charge of Mashing

W. E. Trefflich of 905 Buena avenue was arrested last night at Wabash avenue and Randolph street on complaint of Miss Clemana Giles of 2044 Sheffield avenue, and Miss Ruth Carcerotta of 4711 North Sawyer avenue, who declare they will appear in court on Monday and press charges of mashing. The girls told Policeman Clinton they were accosted by Trefflich who was in an automobile, and when they paid no heed he followed them in his car. He was locked up, but later released on $100 cash bond.

Air Collision Kills Head of French Flying School

PARIS, Aug. 25.—While Maj. Jacquin, head of an aviation school, was giving a lesson in an airplane 1,000 feet in the air yesterday, a pupil's machine collided with his. The major was struck on the head and killed. The pupil was unhurt.

I. N. G. OFFICERS ARE ORDERED OUT TO CAMP LOGAN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Illinois national guard officers today were ordered to report immediately to Camp Logan, Houston, Tex., for special duty in connection with completing the camp for the reception of all the Thirty-third division.

Maj. H. H. Tuttle was named sanitary inspector of the camp and Maj. Gustavus M. Blech was detailed as assistant chief surgeon. Both officers are attached to the medical corps, Illinois national guard.

Capt. Randall M. Cooley of the medical corps of the Michigan national guard was detailed as assistant chief surgeon of Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., and Maj. James E. Merrill, medical corps, Minnesota national guard, was assigned as sanitary inspector of Camp Cody, Deming, N. M.

Capt. G. W. McLean of the Michigan national guard was ordered to report to the mobilization camp of the "Rainbow" division, soon to leave for France, at Mineola, N. Y., as assistant camp quartermaster.

The war department today announced that Sept. 1 the following would be withdrawn as sergeant instructors of the Illinois national guard and sent to their regular commands: Sergts. Theodore Brown and Samuel P. Gibson, to Tenth infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Sergt. Henry O. Shea, to Sixth infantry, Chickamauga Park, Ga.; and Sergt. William J. McDowell, to Eleventh infantry, Chickamauga Park, Ga.

Will Diamonds Go Higher?

EXPERTS—men whose life-work is the buying and selling of diamonds—unanimously answer, YES.

Very few of the South African mines are now being worked. The supply of diamonds on hand is diminishing. Labor costs are higher. War insurance and export duties from Europe must be added. And an increase in U. S. Customs is probable.

Knowing this we have for months been buying up all the perfect, blue white diamonds available—specializing on the famous "Robert Victor," so seldom shown west of New York.

In consequence we possess today a wonderful collection of the finest, absolutely perfect, blue white gems. These we offer at from $200 to $600 per carat, according to size.

SENATORS PLAN 80 PER CENT TAX ON WAR PROFITS

Conference of 30 Decides to Fight for Levies on $4,000,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—At a conference of thirty senators this afternoon, led by Senators Johnson of California and Borah of Idaho, plans were laid to tax all war profits 80 per cent.

If this plan is rejected other lesser levies will be proposed to secure the possible maximum. Last year's total war profits are estimated at $3,000,000,000 and this year's at $4,000,000,000. The bill's provisions now propose a levy of about 26 per cent, or about $552,000,000.

"The bill without question will be changed and the war profits tax considerably increased in the senate if it is not done voluntarily by the finance committee," Senator Borah declared tonight. "I am positive that enough senators are in favor of increasing the war profits rate to vote in an amendment of this character."

Committee Leaders Warned.

Senate finance committee leaders were concerned over the situation and planned to line up the senate membership as far as possible to prevent any drastic increase, and also toward expediting action on the bill. One of the most determined and spectacular struggles of the war session was predicted in the senate next week.

Consideration of the postage tax sections, scheduled for today, went over until Monday. By Wednesday these sections, including the special income tax on publishers and various proposals for increasing second class mail rates, probably will be out of the way.

Will Try to Hurry Vote.

The war profits section of the bill, Senator Simmons stated tonight, is to follow the postage sections, and on Monday or soon thereafter he plans a determined effort to have a definite date fixed for a vote, both on profits and the entire bill. Final passage by next Saturday is hoped for, but most leaders believed tonight ten days or two weeks will be required.

While the high tax advocates were in session, leaders of the finance committee also conferred toward uniting support for the majority draft of the war profits section. Division among the majority of the committee, however, caused tentative consideration of amendments more in harmony with sentiment of senators demanding a change in the system of levying war profits or a higher tax rate.

Meetings of the entire finance committee and also the leaders in the campaign to increase the tax levies are set for Monday before the senate convenes.

"BIG BUSINESS" SEEKS WAR TAX EQUALITY—GARY

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25.—Capitalists and "big business" men of the country are willing to contribute their full share toward the conduct of the war and bear their just proportion of war burdens so long as the expense is equitably distributed.

This statement was made here today by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation. Mr. Gary, with Col. D. C. Jackling, mining magnate, arrived today from Alaska, where they have been inspecting Jackling's mining properties.

"The wealthy men and the corporations also are pleased to contribute their full share of the cost of carrying on the war which has been forced upon the United States," Mr. Gary said, in discussing the conscription of wealth and war profits fight which is being waged in the United States senate.

"They insist, however, that the burden of the expense shall be equitably distributed so that every one shall be compelled to pay in proportion to his pecuniary ability.

"Generally speaking, the one who urges the levy of large assessments against possessors of wealth fixes the basis just above the amount of his own personal income."

Armed Men Hunt Two Slayers.

Humble, Tex., Aug. 25.—Fifteen automobile loads of armed men today started a search of surrounding territory for two men who last night killed Tom Sandlin, bound and gagged J. B. Conner, and drove off in Connor's automobile.

PREFER FRANCE TO BATTLE LINE, PRISONERS SAY

Want to Remain Captives with Americans as Their Guards.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

UNITED STATES EXPEDITIONARY SEA BASE, France, Aug. 6.—[By mail.]—Gen. Sherman never tried to house his wife and his mother in the same apartment, so he only thought he knew what war was. Several generations of cornet students practicing "Marching Through Georgia" have done their best—or their worst—to correct the famous warrior's error when he defined war and maligned the place where Gunga Din passes the canteen.

War has its compensations according to no less authorities than the German prisoners who are doing part of the work at this port under the direction of United States soldiers. If the opinions of these prisoners prevail among other interned Germans, any exchange whereby they could be returned to the fatherland with the possibilities of regaining their places in their old regiments would not get as many votes as the czar could muster in the First ward of Petrograd.

Prefer to Remain Prisoners.

These German prisoners are perfectly contented to stay where they are until the bayonets have been turned back into plowshares and the munition works converted into firecracker factories. Who's going to win the war? Of course, they have preferences, but their interest in the outcome is as nothing when compared to their concern in when the outcome comes out. German prison camps in France are hotbeds of pacifism. The inmates suffer from homesickness, but hope they don't get over it until the world gets over the war.

The arrival of the Americans has been a cause for cheer in the hearts of these men. German prisoners dislike the French because they have been taught to do so from childhood; they hate the English because that was the hate they went into battle with.

Like American Soldiers.

It sounds incongruous but it is nevertheless the fact that the German prisoners at the American sea base seem to really like the American soldiers. Maybe it is because any change of masters or guards would have been a relief from their uneventful existence since the days of their captures.

Maybe the feeling is one of distinct kindred based on the thousands of letters that brought to the fatherland the success of Germans in America before the war. Maybe it is because of America's disavowal of animosity against the German people.

I watched some of the prisoners unloading American supplies at the dock while an American guard stood nearby. Casually and as if by accident, one group of four dropped the packing case they were carrying. The box cracked. One of the prisoner's fingers instantly investigated the packages revealed by the break. The others busied themselves as if preparing to lift the box again.

Steals Teaspoon of Sugar.

The first German pulled a spoon from his bootleg, jammed the implement into the crevice, and withdrew it heaping with granulated sugar. With a quick movement he conveyed the stolen sweet to his mouth, which closed as quickly as his face assumed its characteristic downcast look. He didn't dare move his lips, or jaws for fear of detection.

But the French soldiers who had been guarding these men before got no sugar and of course there is no issue of sugar to the prisoners. It is hardly necessary to put it in words, but American soldiers guarding these prisoners have reported only few of them for confinement for these human thefts.

Surreptitiously guards sometimes leave cigarets where the prisoners can get them, and if the action does violate the rules of discipline it not only develops the human side of the giver and the recipient, but further than that has the result of making the prisoners do more work for their new guards.

Absence of Mutual Hate.

It must be remembered that lenience could not and is not extended to the point of fraternization, but the exact relationship that seems to exist between German prisoners and American soldiers reveals undeniably the absence of any mutual hate.

Around another case German prisoners were engaged in unpacking bundles from America and passing them down a line of waiting hands that relayed them to a freight car. One of the Germans, leaning over the case, straightened up with a rumpled newspaper in his hand. He had removed it from a package. The happiness in his face was indescribable.

"Deutscher, Deutscher," he cried, pointing to the Gothic type. The paper was a copy of the New York Staats-Zeitung.

The lot of these prisoners is not an unhappy one. It is very doubtful whether more than a small percentage of them would accept liberty if it carried with it the necessity of returning to German trenches. These men know what war was. They crossed No Man's land. They are now far back of the blazing front in a country beyond the sound of the guns. If their present lot is characterized as "war," then, in the opinion of these Germans, it is not what Sherman said it was.

Their attitude better resembles that of the unkissed spinster who was taken captive when the invading army captured the town. She flung herself into the arms of the surprised commander of the invaders and smilingly whispered "War is war."

SAMMIES' MAIL STAMPED "RUSH"

LONDON, Aug. 22.—American soldiers' precious letters from "back home" have the right of way over everything. They travel "rush."

To pick up new wrinkles in swift handling of mail the American postoffice today has William A. Kenyon inspecting the allies' methods. Anything to gain a few hours or minutes in expediting the soldiers' letters will be utilized.

More than fifty experts in mail handling are now at the American sea base in France arranging a mail system. More mail clerks will accompany every American contingent.

OFFICIAL STATEMENTS ISSUED BY VARIOUS NATIONS AT WAR

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, Aug. 25.—Since yesterday the tri-color has been flying on the summit of Monte Santo. The gallant troops of the second army having broken through the line of defense at several points, are closely pursuing the enemy, who is retiring and defending the difficult ground yard by yard.

On the Carso the struggle is continuing around the positions captured by us which the enemy vainly is attempting to retake.

In the incessant fighting Salerno, Catanzaro and the Nurge brigades have distinguished themselves for their boldness and stubbornness.

AVIATION.

The aerial activity was very lively yesterday. Our Caproni machines, after having several times bombed the Chiapovan valley crowded with enemy troops, flew low and engaged the infantry. Of the 233 airplanes which took part in the battle only one did not return.

FRENCH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Early this morning the enemy heavily bombarded the positions captured by us Sunday southeast of Epehy and attacked Gillemont farm on both flanks. After sharp fighting parties of his troops succeeded in reëstablishing themselves in a small portion of his old trenches northeast of the farm but were unable to make further progress. At all other points the attack was repulsed. The farm itself remains in our hands.

A hostile raid was driven off with loss this morning northeast of Gouzeaucourt. We had no casualties.

We advanced our line slightly during the night northwest of Lens and took a few prisoners.

DAY STATEMENT.

By successful attacks carried out with slight casualties last night west of Lens, we captured a short length of German trench of some local importance.

We also captured an enemy post during the night in the neighborhood of Lombaertzyde and secured a few prisoners and a machine gun.

There was considerable artillery activity early this morning east of Epehy.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—In Belgium there were rather violent artillery engagements in the region of Bixschoote.

South of St. Quentin our detachments penetrated a German trench yesterday evening and brought back thirty-one prisoners. Another raid west of Pantheon also resulted in the taking of prisoners.

In the Champagne the artillery fighting became intense in the region of the heights. Enemy surprice attacks near Vauquois and northeast of Avocourt were completely repulsed.

On the left bank of the Meuse our troops made new progress north of hill 304.

In a brilliant action last night they carried three fortified works in the vicinity of Bethincourt. The number of unwounded prisoners taken on the left bank of the river yesterday was 450. This brings up the total to 8,101.

The night was calm on the remainder of the front.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—In Flanders, near Lens and on the eastern bank of the Meuse, there were artillery duels of varying intensity. North of St. Quentin we were successful in forefield engagements.

DAY STATEMENT.

Army group of Prince Rupprecht—In connection with infantry engagements, lively artillery duels developed in several sectors near Ypres, lasting throughout the night. East of St. Julien a thrust with the object of clearing a British pocket coincided with an enemy attack. After the repulse of the enemw the intended enterprise was carried through successfully.

On both sides of the Ypres-Menin road the British again endeavored to force their way into our positions. On the northern fringe of Herenthage wood they pressed back our line a little. Otherwise they were repulsed with heavy losses.

Enemy reconnoitering thrusts at various points failed. A strong enemy detachment which pushed forward towards our line near Lens in the late evening was driven back into the position from which it started after a stubborn hand to hand struggle.

South of Vendhuille we wrested from the British early this morning by a surprise attack Gillemont farm, which was held by them.

After vigorous artillery preparation which caused several fires in St. Quentin and villages in that vicinity, the French yesterday attacked our defensive sectors on the southern front of the town over a width of three kilometers. In a hard struggle the enemy was repulsed on the whole line. Our troops there are in complete possession of their positions.

Army group of the German Crown Prince—Near Verdun the military activity on both sides of the Meuse again increased. West of the river the French sent forward strong forces in the morning and evening against our positions on the Forges rivulet between Melancourt and Bethincourt. Caught under an effective fire from our artillery both attacks were repulsed with heavy losses.

A French attempt to push forward in a northerly direction from hill 304 east of the Meuse also was without result.

RUSSO-ROUMANIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 25.—Russian front—In the direction of Baranovichi the enemy yesterday conducted an intense artillery fire, especially in the region of the village of Labuzy.

On the Oginsky canal the enemy, a battalion strong, after a terrific artillery fire, attacked our trenches in the region of Martinovka and occupied a part of them. A counter attack restored the position.

In the region of the confluence of the River Zbrocz our scouts made a successful reconnaissance, capturing ten Austrians.

Roumanian front—In the direction of Ocna insignificant enemy attacks were repulsed by the Roumanians. There was no change on the rest of this front.

AVIATION.

South of Smorgon our artillery brought down a German airplane in our territory.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Along the Dvina, near Smorgon, Lutsk, and Tarnopol, between the Pruth and Moldava rivers and in the Oitus valley there were temporary revivals of artillery fighting.

Thrusts by Russian raiding detachments near Brody failed.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—The situation is unchanged.

TURKISH FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 25.—In the Caucasus to the southwest of Gumushkhane one of our scouting parties reaching one of the Turkish supports surrounded four dugouts, showered grenades on them, and then bayonetted more than thirty Turks.

Having destroyed the dugouts, the scouts rushed on the points of support and bayonetted a large part of the defenders, scattering the rest in the course of the operation.

In the valley of the River Kialkit Chaya our scouting parties, breaking through the wire entanglements, attacked a company of Turks, who, unable to resist the bayonet, fled.

West of Ushnue our scouting units, advancing from the line on Dalamper and Gulug to the west of Ushnue, continued to press the enemy and occupied the heights in the region of Mount Tenevredag. The enemy is retiring in the region of Mount Sheikh Iva.

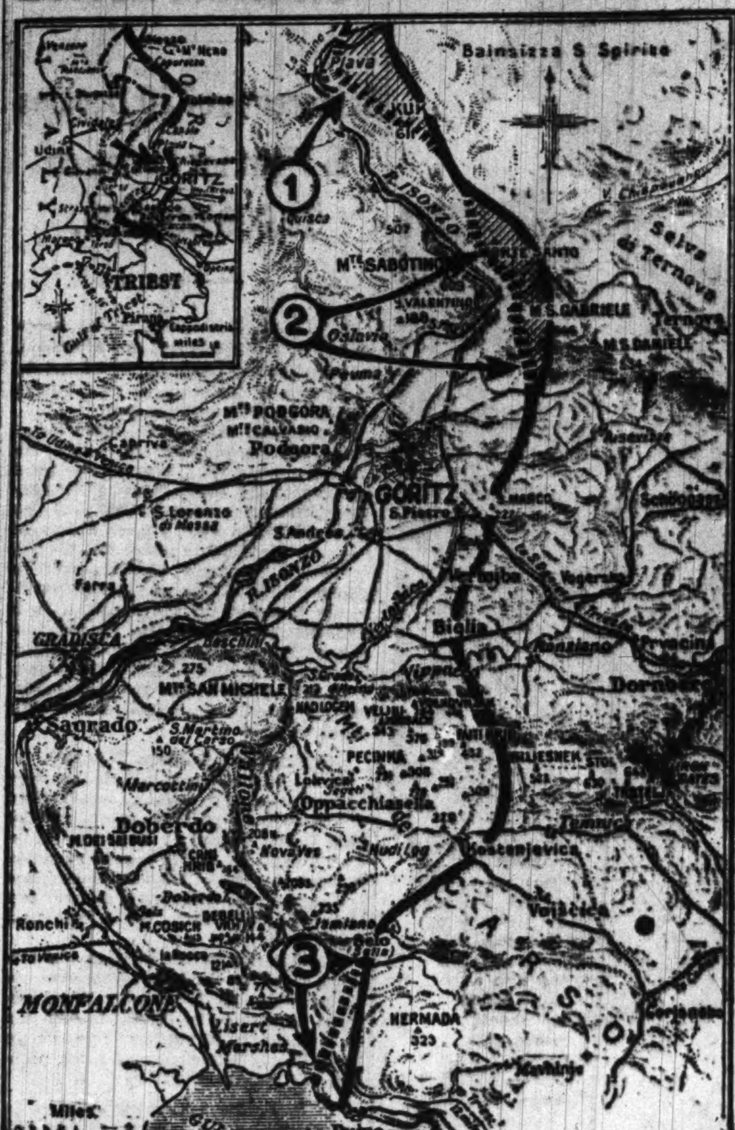
EAST AFRICAN FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—In East Africa the enemy has been driven back eight miles in the Tindi area. In the Kilma area the enemy has partly withdrawn toward the Mbamkuru valley. Belgian columns are moving south from Kilossa.

At Mpepos, sixty-five miles southwest of Mahenge, our columns have invested a considerable German force. In the southern area we are approaching Tunderu, the enemy's supply center.

ITALIAN VICTORIES



(1)—Recent thrust in the Plava sector sent the Italians across the Isonzo river, periling the right flank of the Austrians.

(2)—Monte Santo, where the Italians report their latest success. Rome reports the tricolor now has swept beyond the stronghold and experts predict that with smoother ground of the plateau attained, Gen. Cadorna's advance will become even more amazingly fast.

(3)—Reports several days ago told of the Italian advance toward Duino, the key to Triest. It was declared the archives in Triest had been removed, indicating that the Austrians fear the fall of their Adriatic base.

ORDNANCE CORPS OF 20,000 WILL REPAIR U. S. GUNS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Organization of an enlisted ordnance corps of the national army with a total strength of 20,000 men is directed in today's army orders, all members of the existing ordnance enlisted reserve corps being transferred to the new establishment.

It will comprise the mechanical force to care for the repair of the great and small guns of the fighting branches of the army. There will be 2,800 ordnance sergeants, 400 sergeants of the first class, 2,000 sergeants, 3,000 corporals, 400 cooks, 3,600 privates first class, and 7,200 privates in the new corps.

It will be divided into units suitable for work with divisions in training or in the field or at the ordnance depots and repair shops behind the lines.

PROTESTS PEACE MINUS PAYMENT

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.—The Munich independent committee for German peace again strongly protests in the press against a peace without indemnity. It points out that the public wealth of Germany just previous to the outbreak of the war was estimated at about $90,000,000,000, of which half has been wiped out by war expenditures.

To pay interest on the redemption of that huge loss, the committee says, it would be necessary to raise by taxation $3,000,000,000 annually, whereas the imperial budget heretofore has been about $900,000,000 and it is impossible to raise it beyond $1,500,000,000.

The committee declares as fallacious the popular idea that the capitalists ultimately will foot the bill, as even the confiscation of all the large fortunes in Germany would cover only a small fraction of the war burden. Without indemnities, it asserts, the less well to do persons will be the sufferers in the inevitable period of grinding poverty and crushing taxation.

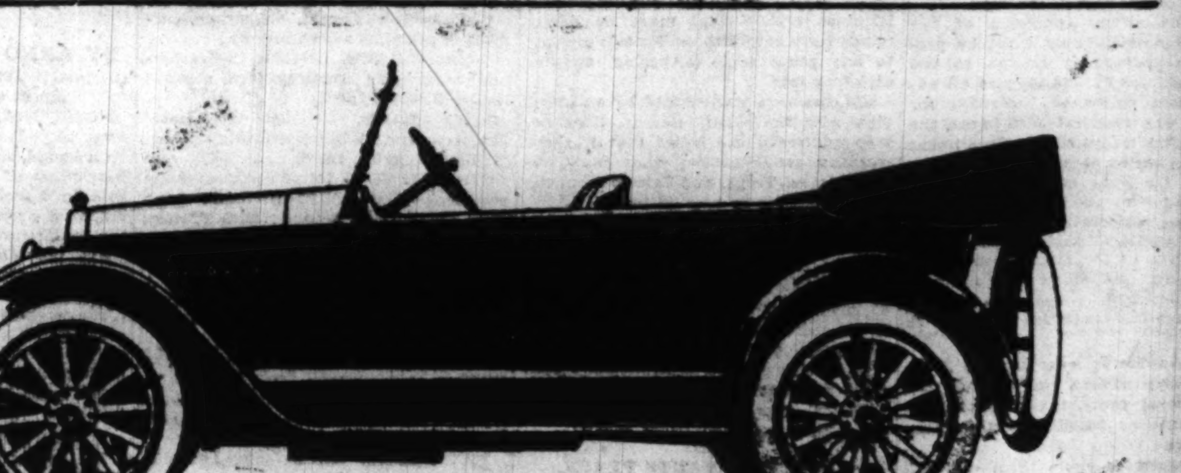
MOTOR CARS



Stearns Four—Five Passenger Touring Car

ANNOUNCING THE NEW STEARNS MODELS

THE new Stearns cars have arrived. We believe they are the most beautiful machines you will see this year. We want you to come and see them.

A certain exclusiveness has always attached to the Stearns, and these new cars are in keeping with Stearns practice to further refine and improve them from year to year.

The body lines lend a pleasing air of distinction. From the tip of the radiator to the rear of the tonneau, the lines are clean-sweeping, graceful and harmonious.

The motor, in all Stearns models, is a Knight motor, but a Knight-motor-built-by-Stearns. Its remarkable smoothness and flexibility have been brought to the highest pitch by Stearns engineers.

It will pay you to come and take a ride in these cars.

It will pay you to find out why the thousands of purchasers of these cars are so well satisfied.

FATAL BLAST AT MARE ISLAND DUE TO ENEMY PLOT

No Clew to Perpetrators, but Employes Are Not Blamed.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The report of the board appointed by the navy department to investigate the fatal explosion at the Mare Island navy yard last June, released in substance for publication here today, bears out the contention of officers of the Navy league that the explosion was the result of a seditious conspiracy.

The investigating board says that after having carefully considered all testimony and attending circumstances it is of the unanimous opinion that the explosion was not an accident, but was due to the deliberate act of some person or persons unknown.

"The board, however, was unable to form an opinion as to the exact method employed by the party or parties guilty of having destroyed this magazine; such evidence, if any existed, was destroyed in the explosion," the report said.

Caused Navy League Break.

The contention of the Navy league to which Secretary Daniels took umbrage that the investigation had been held up and hampered by labor influences, was denied. It was this charge which prompted Secretary Daniels to break off diplomatic relations with the Navy league. On this point the board says:

"A careful reading of the orders creating this board and the record of daily proceedings clearly indicates the absence of any hampering instructions or restrictive direction as to the method of investigation. The board's inquiries were conducted with the utmost latitude and thoroughness."

Blast in Powder Building.

"The board found that the explosion occurred at 7:55 a. m., July 9, 1917, and was confined to building No. 40, known as the black powder magazine," the report says. "This building was a modern structure built especially for black powder storage. There were no electric lines into the building, no telephone or telegraph wires; no windows or other openings, with the exception of the regulation magazine doors. Under the existing rules and regulations, access to this building was restricted to comparatively few authorized persons.

"The only person seen to enter this building on the morning of the explosion was Ordnance Man Neil C. Damstedt, a trusted employé of twenty-one years' continuous magazine service. Damstedt, according to the testimony, unlocked and opened the magazine door about thirty seconds previous to the explosion and was probably in the act of entering the building when the explosion occurred. Damstedt was killed.

Explosion Not an Accident.

"The board in its findings states that it is of the opinion that Damstedt was in no way implicated in the explosion and that the testimony and attending circumstances do not in any way implicate any ammunition depot employé or any member of the ammunition depot guard.

"Further, the board states that after having carefully considered all testimony and attending circumstances, it is of the unanimous opinion that the explosion was not an accident, but was due to the deliberate act of some person or persons unknown. The board, however, was unable to form an opinion as to the exact method employed by the party or parties guilty of having destroyed this magazine, such evidence, if any existed, was destroyed in the explosion.

"The department and its experts are engaged in a thorough review and analysis of all available evidence in this case.

"Every effort is being made to apprehend the guilty parties and to definitely ascertain the exact manner in which this destructive explosion was accomplished.

"For obvious reasons the details of procedure cannot be made public."

LOST—BARGE OF COAL; NEW YORK SUBWAY TIED UP

Traffic Halts Nearly 3 Hours; Public Is Indignant.

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The most prolonged tieup in the history of the subway happened this afternoon, when for two hours and a half the system was completely out of business so far as carrying passengers was concerned.

The difficulty was caused, so far as could be learned, by a shortage of coal at the powerhouse where the current is produced for all the Interborough rapid transit trains in Manhattan and the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Queens. A barge of fuel failed to arrive and soon it became necessary to reduce the number of trains, and finally to stop all passenger traffic.

It was estimated that at one time there were 10,000 persons about Grand Central station, nearly as many about Brooklyn bridge, and half that number in the vicinity of Bowling Green, Fourteenth and Ninety-sixth street stations.

Mrs. Borden-Turner Gets Legion of Honor Cross

Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner of Chicago received the cross of the Legion of Honor on Friday for her work in maintaining a war hospital almost since the outbreak of the war. Minister of War Painleve pinned the cross on her, then saluted her on both cheeks, as is the custom.

Two other women, Lady Michelham, who has maintained a hospital at the Astoria hotel in Paris, and Miss Ivins of the Scottish Women's hosptial at Royamount, were also honored.

A poem by Mrs. Turner, reprinted from the English Review, will be found on page 5 of the eighth part of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

ANOTHER CLEW TO BROR JOHNSON MURDER FAILS

Witnesses Refuse to Hold Man Turned Over to Police.

Another attempt by the police to arrest the murderer of Policeman Bror Johnson, who was shot during the holdup of the Cook tourist office Jan. 21, 1916, met with failure yesterday when witnesses to the shooting failed to identify Harold Schneider as the bandit.

Schneider is the young man who with John Faith was accused of murdering Joseph H. Logue, diamond broker in McVicker's building. Schneider was acquitted of the charge, but Faith is now serving a sentence in Pontiac. That happened in 1913.

The evening of Jan. 21, 1916, a lone bandit entered the Thomas Cook & Son's Tourist agency at 15 East Jackson boulevard, and after wounding the cashier and killing Policeman Bror Johnson escaped with $1,600.

Several Arrests Made.

Several arrests have been made for this murder, but the guilty man has never been taken into custody. However, a year ago Chief of Police Healey received a "tip" and the next day a picture of Harold Schneider appeared in the police bulletin. Schneider has been in the city many times since then, but did not even know he was wanted.

Recently, however, Attorney Charles E. Erbstein, who successfully defended Schneider at the Logue trial, met two detectives.

"Say, we want your man Schneider," said the detectives.

"What for?" questioned Mr. Erbstein.

Identification Fails.

On being told he laughed, but promised to produce Schneider. Yesterday with his wife, Celeste, and their baby, Kathryn Erby, Schneider arrived in Chicago. The police took the two witnesses to the Johnson shooting to Mr. Erbstein's office and the identification failed.

"Why, I was never so surprised in my life as I was when I was told Harold was wanted for the murder of Johnson," said Mrs. Schneider.

"I have kept a very close watch on my husband since the Logue trial," she continued. "Not because he needed it, but you know a man who has once been in trouble is always suspected, and I wanted to be ready to swear where he was at any time.

"I even kept a diary, and I'm sure he wasn't even in Chicago the day Johnson was murdered."

They left Chicago last night, all three of them, bound for their little home down state.

JAP MISSION TO TALK WITH U. S. ON FINISH WAR

More Aid to Allies Expected Result of Confab.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The Japanese mission, according to information received here through the Tokio press, will take the initiative in introducing topics for discussion and possible agreement with the United States, and confident predictions are made here that important developments, including extension of Japan's activities in the war, will follow the Washington conferences.

From intimations dropped in Japanese circles here, interpreted in the light of comment in the Japanese press, a general idea of Japan's purposes and program for the remainder of the war has been gathered. In a speech to the diet last January, Viscount Motono, the Japanese foreign minister, passing upon the vital issue in the war, expressed Japan's estimation of it when he said:

"The question is, whether the small and the great nations of Europe will be subjugated by Germany or not."

Japan a Faithful Ally.

Japan from the beginning has acted the part of a faithful ally rather than as a nation originally involved in the struggle. It responded to England's first appeal for assistance, declaring its participation in the war was not only for the defense of Japan's interests, but of those of the allies and of the interests of humanity in general as well.

Japan bound itself in the declaration of London not to conclude a separate peace, and subscribed to the resolution of the allies' economic conference at Paris.

Japan maintains that without a complete victory over Germany the far east will be in danger, as an alliance with a defeated England would be of little value if a victorious Germany should return to the orient. That lesson has been brought home to Japan by the near collapse of Russia, involving the steady movement eastward of the German army.

Jap Mission at Annapolis.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 25.—Enthusiastic admiration was expressed here today by Viscount Ishii and the Japanese envoys when midshipmen maneuvered before the commissioners in a special drill in their honor.

The Japanese were received with special courtesies, and after the usual formalities were entertained at a buffet luncheon given by Supt. Eberle.

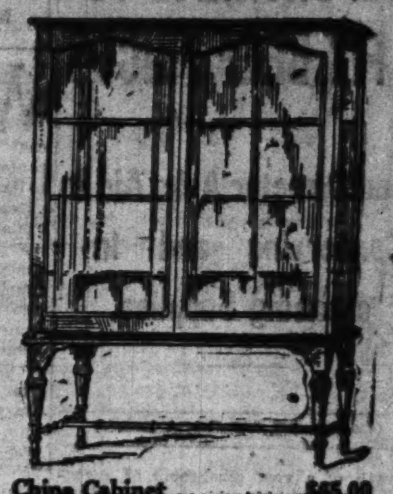
[illegible], 66-inch Sideboard.......$92.00



China Cabinet $65.00

Hepplewhite Dining Room Suite in brown mahogany, with burl walnut panels.

IF you compare the value of this suite as a whole, or by taking the individual pieces one at a time, with any value you've ever been offered, you'll see why we lay especial stress on its being a Scholle bargain.

Of course the significance of saying anything is a "Scholle bargain" is found first in the quality of the goods, then in the service and guarantee on which the goods are sold, and then the price.

These prices would almost make a bargain of any good furniture, but when you consider that it is absolutely true to the type of the Hepplewhite Period and that it is guaranteed to be satisfactory to you or you may return it for other goods or your money, you've made it seem the real bargain it is—a Scholle Bargain.

HOOVER DENIES REPORT HE IS TO FIX BEEF PRICES

Food Director Asks Aid in Conserving and Increasing Supplies.

growth of a vast mushroom of speculation, which has unnecessarily added to the cost of living.

SUPPLY BELOW DEMAND.

Taking stock of the world's larder for the coming year, Mr. Hoover said that our supplies would be far below the combined necessities of the allied powers. In addition the reduction in shipping prevents sending supplies from countries which have more than they need and upsets the world balance of foodstuffs.

The embargo was shown to be necessary to prevent exhaustion of our supplies and a serious shortage next spring. Mr. Hoover explained why food administration with national powers is necessary and told how it had summoned men who were specialists to meet the problems. He urged the advisability of the president summoning a commission which would represent the producers and let that commission fix a fair price for food commodities.

The statement that the food administration is a dictatorship was resented by Mr. Hoover, who said he had seen too much of the evils due to dictatorship.

To set at rest rumors regarding his attitude toward the packers, Mr. Hoover gave out this statement:

Mr. Hoover wishes to state emphatically that there is no foundation for any statement that the food administration has any intention to fix prices of beef or pork products. The administration hopes to develop by discussion with representative committees of the hog producers, the cattle producers, the commission men and the packers greater stabilization of the industry during the war and in such a way as to encourage production, to eliminate speculative profits and risks so far as may be and by so doing protect the consumer. These discussions will take some time and action will only be taken after mature consideration and then only with the coöperation of all the groups concerned. No rumors or reports to the contrary should be given the slightest consideration.

Mr. Hoover made it clear that the purpose of his trip here was to reach the farmers of the country and map out an agricultural program. Grain problems are to be settled through the Food Administration Grain corporation, of which Howard B. Jackson is the local representative.

Packers in Conference.

What the packers can do to help settle the live stock problem is being discussed at meetings which have been arranged by Gifford Pinchot, M. L. ReQua, and Ed C. Lacaster. Meetings took place yesterday morning and on Friday at the Saddle and Sirloin club and were attended by all the leading packers. At one of these conferences Thomas E. Wilson asked that a man familiar with every detail of the packing industry and capable of handling such a great problem, be appointed dictator with full power to regulate the live stock industries. He asked that this man have an advisory committee representing the packers, producers, and railroad men, with whose aid a satisfactory arrangement for distribution could be worked out. The proposal was approved by the packers.

Mr. ReQua addressed the packers at yesterday's conference and said that steps must be taken immediately to regulate the live stock industries.

Text of Speech.

Mr. Hoover in his speech to the representatives of the farm journals said, in part:

Mr. Hoover said in part:

"Food administration, as I see it, is the intelligent coördination of all the forces in the country to solve the specific food difficulties and problems which have been imposed by the international situation. The solution of these national difficulties depends entirely upon the coöperation of all those concerned.

"With our people there can be no force used in production and no force used in consumption. However, there can be intelligent leadership and there can be a stimulation of patriotism to effect ends for the common good. The support of this leadership and the stimulation of this patriotism lies in the hand of the farm press more than any other force in the country.

"I wish to give you some impression of the situation as I see it and of the nature of the problems which naturally arise from it, and I wish to say at the outset the majority of the food problems which have arisen in the United States and which will arise in the future would have occurred whether we had gone into the war or not. They are based on the underlying economic currents and the disturbance of economic forces. Our entry into the war makes the solution of these problems even easier than it would have been otherwise, because we can now summon patriotism and devotion to its solution in a degree that would not have been otherwise possible.

European Products Short.

"The outstanding basic facts in the food situation are:

"That by diversion of millions of men from productive labor to war the food production of our allies, and of Europe generally for that matter, has greatly diminished; the soil has been depleted due to shortage of fertilizer and labor, and today we find the present harvest among our western allies is short of the normal by 525,000,000 bushels of grain.

"These countries always import a considerable amount of foodstuffs, and today their markets are dislocated and many of them entirely stifled. They are thus thrown on North America for a larger proportion of their imports, and, in fact, if we are to maintain them with food during the coming year we must export from this country 200,000,000 bushels of wheat, as against the normal export of 80,000,000 bushels, and we must furnish them with 400,000,000 bushels of other cereals as against our normal pre-war export of 50,000,000 bushels.

Herds Being Depleted.

"The demand for more meat, shortage in fodder production and necessity to confine shipping to the most concentrated of foods all tend to the depletion of the herds of Europe, and they are now making large inroads into their supply of animals, and from now on they will make even larger inroads. With every decrease in shipping it becomes more logical for them to kill and eat their animals and depend upon us to replace their animal foods than it is to import fodder in hope of maintaining their animals.

"Now, this is the physical picture, and there are certain conclusions as to conduct on our part. The first is we must by every device possible in the stimulation of production and equally strenuous endeavor in reduction in consumption and waste provide the margins of foodstuffs required by our allies.

"The first is that this is our war as much as their war, and unless we can keep the women and children of our allies fed the western line will surely be thrown to our Atlantic seaboard, and it may be thrown in an infinitely more dangerous quarter, in the ransom of Canada as penalty for England's defeat. The other premise is one equally strong in my mind and is one of simple duty to humanity that we should, out of our abundance and our waste, do our part to a world suffering with us to maintain an ideal and a faith which must be the foundation of the world's hope in civilization.

More Animal Food Needed.

"The gradual destruction of animal food supplies in Europe simply means we must increase our supplies by that quota.

"Every American producer in his own interest, in the interest of the nation, and in the interest of the war, must turn the face of agriculture toward increased production of animal food and ultimately decrease our export of bread and fodder grains.

"The harvest can now probably be closely estimated, not only in our own country, but among our allies. On our normal consumption, and despite all promises of an abundant harvest in the United States, our supplies are far below our combined needs.

"Due to the shortage of ships, we must confine our shipping to the most concentrated foods. This year our program of supplies to our allies must be wheat, corn, meat, pork, and dairy products.

Substitutions Urged.

"We have an abundance of many other foodstuffs, and without hardship on the American people, ought to substitute those of which we have an abundance for the concentrated foods we can export.

"Not alone is the world short of food, but it is short of ships, and it has a weekly growing shortage. Eight millions of tons of commercial shipping are in war service and 5,000,000 tons destroyed. Every week shows a shortage of from 100,000 to 200,000 tons carrying capacity and thus the far distant markets of the world are one by one eliminated, and no matter what their abilities of food supply may be, the tangible, physical fact of their inability to transport has the same result on our present problem as if they had witnessed a complete crop failure.

"Furthermore, the reactions of shortage in oversea transport does not alone effect our allies in Europe, but we also import vital foodstuffs in shape of sugar, vegetable oils, and other supplies.

"Therefore, we have important problems of our own, for we must reduce our consumption of sugar; we must restrict the demands of the speculators, or else only those who can pay the price will have those vital food supplies.

Soap Supply Affected.

The shortage of vegetable oils affects our soap supply, driving the soap manufacturers to absorb animal fats and the reaction on our whole food supply demands administration either in the direction of increasing exports, diminution of consumption, and restriction of exportation in a short supply.

"One phase of the shortage in shipping to which we must give serious heed is that certain sections of the world are continuing their production, and, being unable to pour these foodstuffs into the markets, are accumulating them as against the time of peace.

"It is worthy of consideration by our wheat growing population that by Jan. 1 there will be 300,000,000 bushels of wheat in Australia awaiting market and another 100,000,000 bushels in India, not now available to our allies. If peace were to come, or if the submarine were to be overcome, there would no longer be a shortage in the world's wheat supply, but there would be an overstock.

"Must Take Stock Monthly."

"We have placed an embargo upon the shipment of food and other commodities from the country because, if we allow an unlimited drain of our supplies, we will face absolute shortage next spring. We must monthly take stock of our position to see that we are allowing through this embargo only what we can spare. We must insist upon the export of cheese, for instance, in place of other fats.

"We are to trust alone to the ordinary course of demand and supply, to determine price levels in this country; we are faced with the great inequalities in distribution among our population; we are faced with the possibility of undue drainage into the European vacuum; we are faced with rampant speculation, for unless the opportunity for speculation is destroyed, millions of dollars of money will be made from the misery of our people.

"Speculation Terrible Burden."

"One of the first problems that is necessary to undertake is that of our own breadstuffs. The normal price determination in wheat is entirely destroyed by disruption of the world's commerce. While we face on one side shortage of supplies, such shortage might be extinguished over night by the flood of supplies now dammed back in other quarters.

"The number of buyers in our markets and the ordinary equalization of price, with the supplies of the rest of the world, has disappeared. Speculation in this particular commodity during the last year was one of the most terrible burdens our consumers had to bear.

"No half measures are possible and the only protection to the producer on one side from possible gluts by shortage in shipping, from possible floods of supplies, due to ending the submarine menace, or to peace, and protection to the consumer on every side from speculation, lies in the solution we have proposed, which is that the president should summon a commission composed of the best intelligence in this country, representing in actual majority the producers themselves, and lay upon that commission the national duty of determining what would be a fair price for this year's harvest with a just return to the farmer.

"We should then devote the whole of our administrative authority to the maintenance of these prices and so organize the distribution of wheat and flour that the speculator has no door, nor even a crack, through which he may enter. We must see that the farmers' prices reach the consumer with only the proper and normal cost of distribution. To effect this we have organized a corporation, because we must eliminate all red tape and take all short cuts which we may to arrive at our ends.

Commodities to Rise.

"Another economic force which we have to meet is the cost of the war and the inflation which must grow out of its finance. For these causes, the prices of commodities will rise steadily through the course of the war. The best we can hope for is to guide the relative increases in order that their disproportion shall not cause undue hardship and that they do not give opportunity for vicious speculation.

"I have spent the last two and a half years in the midst of this war. I have witnessed the operations of the social system and the aspiration of the ruling classes in Germany. It is no loose statement that we face a race of people under a government intent upon mastery of the world. The war seems far away to most of our people. But as surely as we were fighting for freedom in 1776 we are fighting for our national existence and our national faith, this day and month, 1917.

Fighting for Independence.

"We are fighting a race of people given to efficiency and organization, disciplined for fifty years in development and preparation for an hour of world domination. If our loose democracy, if our ideals of individual liberty and action cannot be coördinated in such a manner that we may defend ourselves, our independence surely will not survive for another twenty-five years.

"The Germans have not only estimated our disintegration but they have calculated upon us as a people incapable of organization. They have put 10,000,000 men into the field from a population of 65,000,000, and they have supplied them with food from an area not much larger than Texas, and they have maintained their civil population in health and devotion during the same time.

"They have been able to do this by their willingness to discipline on one side and their imposition of authority by the rigor of law on the other.

"Every German farmer today plants exactly the seed and exactly the field in which he is directed. On harvest, at the instructed moment, he hands over his products at prices passed to him and receives back his foodstuffs on tickets which are allowed to him from day to day.

"We have no desire for such an organization. I resent the statement that the food administration is a dictatorship. I have seen the suffering of 10,000,000 people, under the wrongs of dictatorship. Food administration as much as any other function of democracy must be founded on the consent and good will of the government. It is for this reason that in our office in Washington not a day goes by without from two to ten conferences with producers, distributors, and specialists, in order that with the combined wisdom of all, we may find solutions to the difficulties that confront us. The food administration must be the combined work of thousands. It is beyond any one man.

"So I come here with the simple proposal that you voluntarily join with us that we may, jointly and with the best intelligence we can mutually bring to bear, all of us contribute to this prime duty of every loyal American this day."

COAL PROFITS.

Fuel Administrator Garfield Says U. S. Will Control Prices from Mines to Consumers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Fuel Administrator Harry A. Garfield reiterated today the declaration that the coal control policy of the government contemplates a plan of profit limitations to recall coal dealers.

Reports from Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, and other cities have reached here quoting large retail coal dealers as expressing doubt that the president's coal price decrees would effect any saving to the general consumer, to the man in the American home.

"The government will exercise control over the man who sells to the public," Mr. Garfield said. "If any one thinks that I would be satisfied with fixing prices at the mine and determining the profit the jobber may have, leaving the retailer free to charge as much as the public will stand for, he is greatly mistaken.

"The coal administration is going to see the principle of control applied all along the line from the time the coal is mined until it reaches the consumer."

PORTUGAL OUSTS CARDINAL BELLO FROM CAPITAL

LISBON, Aug. 25.—Cardinal Anthony Mendes Bello, the patriarch of Lisbon, has been given five days by the Portuguese government to leave the capital. A decree issued today forbids the cardinal to reside in Lisbon or the suburbs for one year.

In 1911 the Portuguese parliament passed a law providing for the separation of the church and state in that country. The law declared that the Roman Catholic religion was no longer the religion of the state. The state appropriated all property belonging to churches and religious congregations and announced that in the future all churches must be maintained by the offerings of their members. Their accounts, however, were placed under the fiscal supervision of the state.

To all priests in the enjoyment of a benefice on July 1, 1911, the government insured the same stipends as they were than receiving, the amounts to be fixed by special commissions. The churches and other property necessary for religious worship were granted by the state to clergy, free of all expense. All religious property which was proved to belong to private individuals, either Portuguese or foreign, according to the law, was to be respected.

Butter Hits Record of 55 Cents a Pound in Oregon

Portland, Ore., Aug. 25.—Butter sold in Portland today at the highest price ever recorded, 55 cents a pound, or $1.05 for a two pound brick at retail. At wholesale the price advanced 3 cents a pound to 47 cents in parchment wrapped or 48 cents in cartons. Butter fat advanced to 46 and 47 cents. Dealers predicted further early advances.

Think Boy Died from Poison at Miller Beach

Gary, Ind., Aug. 25.—A coroner's investigation is being made into the death of Gustaf Saffstrom, 9 years old, who died today, supposedly from the effects of poison, at his parents' summer home at Miller beach. Gustaf Saffstrom, the boy's father, is a superintendent of the Buda company at Harvey, Ill.

300 Illinois Hogs Bring $60 Each in Chicago Mart

Henry Fesser, county supervisor of Pana, Ill., sold yesterday in the Chicago market the most valuable shipment of hogs ever made from that city. There were 300 head, averaging 300 pounds each. They brought an average of $60 a head, or $18,000.

COUNCIL TO HELP RAISE A MILLION FOR ARMY BOOKS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Impetus to the movement to raise $1,000,000 for construction equipment and maintenance of soldiers' libraries at the thirty-two cantonments and camps in this country was given by Secretary of War Baker in appointing a "war council" to coöperate with the American Library association in the work it has undertaken at the request of the commission on camp activities of the war department.

At the head of the commission is Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, the other members being Harry A. Wheeler, vice president Union Trust company, Chicago; Asa G. Candler of Atlanta; P. P. Claxton, commissioner of education of the United States; J. Randolph Coolidge of Boston; Mrs. Josiah E. Cowles, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; John H. Finley, commissioner of education, New York; James A. Flaherty, supreme knight, Knights of Columbus; E. T. Stotesbury of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telegraph and Telephone company.

Denies Hoover Seeks to Influence Wheat Price

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The food administration today denied reports that Herbert Hoover is attempting to influence the price-fixing committee headed by Dr. H. A. Garfield to put a price of $1.65 on the 1917 crop of wheat, and gave out copies of a telegram sent by Mr. Hoover to a North Dakota newspaper which declared the food administrator was offering no suggestions as to price.

The Garfield committee, it is understood, will be ready to recommend a price by the middle of next week. Rumor puts this price at slightly more than $2.

Knockout Blow to Absinthe in New York Comes Sept. 1

New York, Aug. 25.—Absinthe addicts in New York will have to find some other beverage after Sept. 1, as on that date the health board will enforce a regulation banishing this drink from saloons, liquor stores and other places where it has been sold in this city. The board holds that absinth is a harmful habit forming liquor.

The new Packard Runabout, four passengers

Will you do more—now?

"In good old Blighty—oh, back in Blighty, the women are doin' our work."

So sings Tommy in the trenches. And Blighty is his war-coined word for home.

Our own soldiers are now leaving big responsibilities behind them.

And that necessitates greater activity and usefulness for us all.

In the new order of things, women are playing an increasingly vital part.

If personal efficiency is to count with them they must have the right equipment.

So—just now it is the absolute dependability of the Packard always that recommends it especially to women.

This new Packard model is a creation of exceptional beauty. It has all the comfort and elegance a motor carriage can possess. And it gives a surprising demonstration of gasoline economy.

But its certainty of operation is what tells most for it now.

If you go in a Packard you are morally sure to get "there and back"—and that with no waste of time.

Freedom from mechanical annoyances women must have.

If they are to do a greater part of the world's important work they must employ the most dependable equipment.

HOOVER EVOLVES PLAN TO PREVENT A FREIGHT TIEUP

Neutral Countries Must Ship Foodstuffs to Gulf Ports.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Freight car congestion of last fall and winter was largely due to the piling up at Atlantic ports of shipments for export. For tens of thousands of tons of such goods no ships were waiting nor could be found.

In the terminal freight yards of New York and many other Atlantic ports thousands of loaded freight cars were held, practically as storage warehouses, for weeks, even months.

Under the new law, which empowers President Wilson to place an embargo on the exportation of any product, such congestion may be largely prevented. Before a railroad will now accept a consignment to be sent east for export the shipper must get a special license from the export board.

This board will not grant a license unless the application makes it clear a ship will be waiting when the shipment reaches its Atlantic destination.

Goods Held Eighteen Months.

That fact does not seem to be clear, especially to the merchants and manufacturers of the middle west. Within two weeks an agent representing a dozen large Chicago manufacturers started on a selling trip to Russia and Scandinavian countries. He had reserved accommodations on board a steamship bound from New York to Christiania. He went to New York and actually got on board the ship. In casual conversation with a fellow passenger he was told what is here confided to all the world. He gave up his cabin and went back to New York, where he found goods he had sold eighteen months ago for delivery in Norway and Sweden were still in New York warehouses.

He got back to Chicago yesterday. Before he starts again across the water he will first make certain that ocean transportation has been provided for. When shippers of all kinds—and banks as well—understand that ships must be provided before goods are sent to Atlantic ports, a considerable cause of freight congestion will be wiped out.

Hoover Works Out Plan.

All the European countries which last year bought foodstuffs, munitions, and other supplies in the United States had them sent to an Atlantic port of the United States or to Canada for shipment across the ocean. In that way they saved, in most instances, a considerable railroad haul and in every case they shortened the distance the goods had to be transported by water.

Since the United States has gone to war with Germany conditions have changed. Herbert Hoover is now the food administrator not only for the United States but for the European world.

With the aid of E. J. Chambers, operating vice president of the Sante Fé railroad, Mr. Hoover has worked out a plan of export transportation which will go a long way towards preventing freight congestion on the Atlantic seaboard.

Burden Lifted from Railroads.

So far as our allies are concerned they will not be interfered with. But when one of the neutral nations wants to ship foodstuffs over the water they will be required to send their shipments to one of the ports on the Gulf of Mexico. The Scandinavian countries—Holland, Spain and the rest—will be compelled to use the railroads running to New Orleans, Galveston and other gulf ports, where the storage facilities and the docks are not congested, as they are in the east.

In that way a great burden will be lifted off the railroads running from Chicago eastward.

But all these innovations will not be enough to meet the emergency which the country faces during the next six months.

The railroads, themselves, have done a great deal to provide better transportation facilities, without adding to their equipment of freight cars and locomotives. They have, on their own motion, stopped the running of some 1,200 passenger trains, thus leaving their tracks open to the more rapid movement of freight and releasing thousands of passenger trainmen who may be utilized in the handling of freight trains.

Most of the passenger trains thus far taken off the schedule are in the east. Roads running west from Chicago have taken little part in the movement. There are, for instance, four railroads running regular trains to St. Louis. Each of them still keeps up three daily trains to the metropolis of Missouri. There is the same duplication of service to Kansas City, Omaha and St. Paul.

"WAR VICTIM"

Boy, Playing Military Aviator, Is Dashed to Death by Automobile.

Adventure called 13 year old "Jimmy" Hansen to his death yesterday. Evanston's boyville and many of the grownups are in mourning.

Since Mark Twain wrote his classics the Tom Sawyers and the Huckleberry Finns have postgraduated into new realms of thrills. "Jimmy" in his "airplane" was flying "somewhere in France." The "airplane" was a little wagon, new and shiny, and "France" was a driveway leading from the Fontenay apartments, Ridge avenue and Lyons street.

"Gee, it's great," he shouted as the wagon skimmed down the gentle incline and into the street. But it dashed under the wheels of an automobile.

Bert Helland, 5014 Cottage Grove avenue, mechanic for an automobile firm, was teaching Christ Stray of 1515 North Oakley avenue to operate a car. When the crash came "Jimmy" was hurled forty feet.

He was picked up by Dr. Eugene E. Shutterly of 1615 Davis street, Evanston, who was passing in an electric automobile. Death was instantaneous, the doctor said. There was a complete circular fracture of the skull. Helland was arrested and released later on $2,000 bond.

"Jimmy's" father is Martin Hansen, a plumber, living at 1723 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

BOOZE HOARDERS BEGIN RUSH TO INSURE WHISKY

Supply and demand again.

Since the time has been set for the discontinuance of the manufacture of spirits for consumption whisky has gone up tremendously. Wholesale dealers, retailers, and private individuals have been laying in large supplies. It is said that one large loop café has enough whisky on hand to take care of its trade for five years without replenishment.

This has caused considerable speculation in whisky. Nobody knows what whisky will be worth a year or two from now. Wiseacres say that it will fetch its weight in gold, not counting the container, of course.

Fire insurance men say that the demand for insurance on whisky is coming from every direction. As there is no national prohibition law, the companies do not think there is any moral hazard, and they are issuing the insurance.

No Fear of Baby Plague.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Infantile paralysis as a nation-wide or state-wide scourge is not feared this year by the public health service. In a report of conditions made public today, the service states that "in no locality is there an outbreak of any size or one that seems likely to develop into a serious epidemic."

COAL OPERATORS HOLD UP POLICY PENDING PARLEY

Meeting to Wait in Hope of Conference with the Fuel Director.

Soft coal operators are going to go slow in their efforts to work out the problems caused by the fixing of bituminous prices by President Wilson. The meeting of the National Coal association, set for Wednesday in Pittsburgh, probably will not be held.

Instead, the directors of the association, or a select group of operators, will try to arrange a meeting with Harry A. Garfield, federal fuel administrator. When they have talked over coal matters with him there will be a meeting of the directors who may then arrange a date for a gathering of all the operators.

"The operators didn't like the statement of Mr. Garfield," said Dr. F. C. Honnold yesterday, "to the effect that if any operator attempted to fight the government's action, his mine would be commandeered at once. By postponing this meeting we shall be better able to inform the operators regarding the best policy to pursue."

Coal Famine Predicted Here.

Dr. Honnold said many Illinois mines would be forced to close because of the president's action. One-half the mines in Alabama, he said, he had been informed would be closed. Many operators would have to choose between forfeiting their contracts and leaving themselves open to lawsuits or of violating the president's decree, he said. He predicted one of the worst coal famines in Chicago for next winter, "unless the railroads furnish cars in numbers far beyond anything we have a right to expect."

Consumers may be unable to get their favorite sizes of coal, he said, as the operators are considering selling only mine run coal—that is, coal which is not screened and divided into sizes, such as lump, chestnut, pea, cook stove, range, etc.

According to Dr. Honnold, there will be a loss to the operators of from five to fifteen cents a ton in screening the coal. Last year only about 15 per cent of Illinois coal was sold as mine run, the rest being screened.

"Several mines which cannot produce at a low rate are able to sell their coal to industries near them because their coal is carried at a switching or an extremely low freight charge," Dr. Honnold said. "They cannot operate under the government's price for coal at the mine mouth."

Fill the Bins, Advises Carter.

Chief Justice Orrin N. Carter, erstwhile coal director of Illinois, agreed with Dr. Honnold that a coal famine is imminent.

"Supplies should be put in the bins at once, before the congestion is here," said Chief Justice Carter. "I do not believe coal prices will go down. It cannot be put too strongly that the time to buy coal is now.

"The fact that prices will remain stationary would not influence consumers to delay their purchases. The market will be congested, and the prices that prevail will not benefit the consumer if he is unable to get coal."

Retail dealers believe the price of anthracite will remain about the same unless the government fixes a price for the handling cost.

"The handling cost will vary not only in different cities but in different parts of the same city," said an official of the Consumers' company. "The chief feature in the handling cost is probably the cost of labor."

HAVE YOU A EWE?

Chicagoans Enthusiastically Devote Lawns to Wool and Food Conservation Plan.

Interest manifested in sheep raising to meet the wool shortage is spreading through the country.

County Supt. of Schools Tobin yesterday made inquiries about the cost of marketing lambs. He contemplates getting together flocks of them for distribution among school children. His plan is to have the children take the lambs to their parents' farms for raising. School children have hitherto shown the keenest interest in movements to increase food supplies, Mr. Tobin says:

Sheep grazing on beautiful lawns may become common as a result of the campaign to increase the wool supply. Ewe lambs have been purchased by Lawrence Heyworth of 7716 Lake Park avenue. The offices of W. W. Burch, chairman of the Great Lakes wool convention and representative of the wool bureau, are being sought daily by persons who wish to help a worthy cause.

The bureau will hold a sheep parade in the loop on Saturday.

Callers at Mr. Burch's offices have included T. Newcomb of New York city, for instance, who is arranging with the wool bureau to devote 24,000 acres in Wisconsin to grazing. James Goggin of 3111 Franklin boulevard is going to stock 3,100 acres near Niles, Mich. Frederick W. Alke, the contractor who built the Auditorium and a number of Chicago schools, said he is ready to put $30,000 in the sheep business.

Questions as to how lambs from western ranges can be obtained immediately came in at the bureau from as far south as Baton Rouge, La.

'CAUGHT SHORT,' WHEAT PIT IS INTERNED BY U. S.

Chicago Board of Trade Closes Shop for Rest of the War.

Chicago's wheat pit, wherein has been saged more tragic realism than Ibsen ever dreamed about, faded into temporary oblivion yesterday with a most undramatic finale. A few brokers stood about the pit as if visualizing the frantic, gesticulating mobs that in the days of yore made and lost millions of dollars on a snap of the finger. The clock hands pointed to noon. The pit passed.

The closing of the pit was on the order of Food Director Hoover that trading in wheat futures cease at least for the duration of the war.

Good Old Days Recalled.

The veterans of the market seemed not sorry. Many declared it a good thing, even if trading in futures never is resumed. The big men of the wheat market—James A. Patten and his coterie—were not present. But there were many who recalled the good old days, the days of the last corner manipulated by Patten and other corners which were not so successful.

There was the spectacular attempt of Joseph Leiter, and the many fortunes gained and lost by E. P. Hutchinson ("old Hutch"), who made many a man march past him and "come across" because he had been caught short.

Liquidation had been going forward on a large scale since the decision of the government to control wheat, so when the close came yesterday it was said all deals practically had been settled, and the traders turned to other grains.

A committee composed of E. L. Glaser, J. F. Barrett, and Frank Rice has been appointed to fix a settling price on all wheat contracts left open at the close of business yesterday. It is regarded probable that the committee will not fix prices until after the government price committee has set its figure.

Poem Celebrates Passing.

The closing of the pit was not entirely without its little touch of pathos. This was furnished by L. L. Winters, who read the following poem:

THE BURIAL OF THE CHICAGO WHEAT PIT.

[With apologies to another famous burial.]

By L. L. Winters.

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,
As his corse from the grain mart we hurried;
Not a trader discharged his farewell shout
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.

We buried him deeply, at dead of noon,
With the oats and the corn pits churning;
To the struggling scalpers' noisy tune
Of the "sixes" they were earning.

Few and short were the prayers we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow,
But we steadfastly gazed on the face of our bread
And butter—and thought of the morrow.

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone,
And o'er his cold ashes upbraid him;
But it'll be hell if they make him sleep on
In the grave where his country has laid him.

No disloyal complainings dishonored his breast,
And no hate or no prejudice bound him;
But he died like a patriot—all for the best,
And with loyal hearts around him.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down
One the field of his fame, old and hoary;
We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone—
But we left him alone in his glory.

Aug. 25, 1917.

Cobwebs will be spun over the stage of many dramas now, and to the casual visitor there will be nothing to indicate a hole through which many millions have sunk.

SAVE MEAT AND EAT MORE FISH; U. S. WILL HELP

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Believing that one way to save meat is to eat more fish, the federal food administration has begun a campaign to increase the consumption of sea food and to broaden retail distribution into the interior of the country.

Kenneth Fowler of New York, formerly secretary-treasurer of Chesbro Bros. of Fulton market, has joined the food administration to lead this campaign. He has been assigned to the perishable products division to be in charge of fresh, salt, and dried fish.

Mr. Fowler will undertake the task of bettering the market conditions, establishing distributing centers, opening up more distributing markets, increasing cold storage and preserving facilities, and obtaining better transportation arrangements.

KERENSKY AIDS YOUNG, CHOCK FULL OF PEPPER

All Are of the Progressive Type, with Courage of Convictions.

This is the third and final story of the series by James O'Donnell Bennett dealing with the personnel of the new Russian cabinet.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT
(Special Cable to The Tribune.)

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 25.—Lebedeff, assistant to Acting Minister of Marine Kerensky, is a journalist and social patriot. He has a lieutenant's rank, but that is merely nominal. He was the military expert on the newspaper Volia Naroda and demanded the July Russian offensive.

If Savinoff's career be epitomized as adventures in terrorism, Lebedeff's is adventures in wars. He has been on the French and Macedonian fronts in this war as a correspondent. His political activities are said not to have been free of monarchist tendencies. He is an irrepressible "Winston Churchill." The young American spirit animates him as it does Savinoff. Their rise is like putting brainy young American university men in the United States cabinet.

Kerensky could have done nothing more startling than selecting these two brilliant young journalists—Savinoff and Lebedeff—as his acting war and marine ministers. Both are unknown quantities as statesmen, but they are men of courage and audacity.

Known as "Wild Cadet."

Nekrassoff, finance minister and the prime minister's representative when he is absent, is leader, with Efremoff, of the radical democrats. He formerly was prominent in the left wing of the cadets. Facially he is a good type of the Russian. He is a well known engineer, but did not distinguish himself as first revolutionary railway minister.
lutionary railway minister; but who could? Indeed, the Society of Russian Railway Engineers demanded his prosecution for mismanaging the railways, which are the great standing menace in Russia even more than the army disorganization, and promise to remain so unless Americans can set them to right.

Nekrassoff began to be known in the czar's time when at the third duma's opening, after everybody had risen and cried, "Long live the emperor," he leaped to his feet and shouted, "Long live the constitution."

He has been in the revolutionary movement since the beginning and was the first minister of communications. He was a prominent member of the third and fourth dumas.

Nekrassoff was a cadet, or Constitutional Democrat [the two words for which cadet is slang], but was not perfectly subservient to party discipline, and whom his party therefore was inclined to represent as a "wild cadet," or demagogue. Partly through jealousy and partly through conviction, they feared him.

Leads Radical Democrats.

During the disorganizing process of which he played his first important political role in the third cabinet, he wavered on the Ukranian independence question—the question which helped bring that cabinet's dissolution. He first resigned along with the other cadets in the cabinet, then withdrew his resignation, saying again if the cadets refused to support the revolutionary government he would leave the party.

As they did refuse, he left and became leader of the Radical Democrats, ultimately becoming finance minister in the present or fourth coalition cabinet.

Prof. Bernatsky, assistant finance minister, however, will be the real authority in technical finance matters. Formerly he belonged to the most radical cadets, but now has joined the radical democrats. He is a specialist in taxation. The most famous Russian economists are Prof. Migulin Tugan-Banovsky, and Prof. Ozeroff. Next to them comes Bernatsky as a serious factor in Russian economic science.

Avksentieff, picked by Kerensky as his minister of the interior, is a socialist revolutionist and a relatively new man on the Russian horizon. He is an intimate friend of Savinoff, and is president of the executive committee of the farmers' council, a party parallel to the workmen-soldiers' council. He is a member of the socialist revolutionist party's executive council.

Son of Sugar King.

Terstschenko, minister of foreign affairs, is a socialist revolutionist and a Ukranian. He is the son of the Russian Havemeyer and is well known throughout European countries. His father built up big sugar refineries in Kiev.

The new minister of foreign affairs is 31 years old. He is the youngest man in the cabinet.

Prokopovitch, picked by Kerensky as minister of commerce and industry, is a social democrat. He has written on economics and is a follower of Karl Marx.

Tchernoff, minister of agriculture, is a leader with Kerensky and Gotz of the socialist revolutionists, but verges toward the extreme left. He is very radical but not Bolshevikist, although standing more or less with them. He came over from the second provisional government's cabinet to this, its fourth.

Tchernoff Is Feared.

Tchernoff, next to Kerensky, is the most important man in the public eye because his reintroduction into cabinet circles was fraught with the threat of disturbance and disruption, owing to his sweeping land program. The cadets consider him more dangerous than the Lenine type of agitator, because they insist his program of land distribution would create anarchy in every single village in Russia. By his program he would forbid buying and selling land.

Tchernoff recently came successfully through a newspaper attack caused by the "German agent" obsession convulsing Russia. Petrograd newspapers accused him of having worked on a newspaper in Switzerland published in German interests. The government, after examining the charges, declared Tchernoff's hands clean.

A Real Russian.

Skobeleff, minister of labor, is a social democrat and leader with Tseretelle of the Menshevikists, who are one of the five social democrat groups. He is vice president of the workmens-soldiers' council, and their only representative in the new cabinet, and the only important social democrat survivor from the provisional government's second cabinet, in which he held the same ministry.

He is a Marxist of middle age, talks much, has rapidly gained in experience, and in a visit to the front did much to restore discipline. He is a genuine Russian, which is a fact worth noting in considering the social democrats, among whom two-thirds of the names are not Russian, but Georgian, Hebrew, Polish, or German.

For his food minister, Kerensky has named Peshechonoff, leader with Tcaikovsky of the popularists, an important party, working with the general socialist revolutionist group and holding as a principal tenet that the land belongs to the government.

Peshechonoff is immensely popular in provincial Russia, has traveled much, and knows thousands of Zemstvos, or village councils which swear by him. He is an authoritative man, and a strong addition to the cabinet. He will be invaluable in provincial affairs.

Zarudny a Clever Lawyer.

Nikitin, minister of posts and telegraphs, is a Menshevikl Social Democrat. He is a lawyer from Moscow, not much known and not believed important.

Prof. Oldenburg, minister of public institutions, is a Petrograd cadet. He has had no political career, but is a thorough European and not old.

In Zarudny, Kerensky had chosen for his minister of justice a clever lawyer, a good speaker, energetic and combative. He is a Socialist revolutionist, and has made a name in political trials. He was Kerensky's right hand man when he was minister of justice.

Efremoff, minister of public charities, is leader with Nekrassoff of the Social Democrats, but, contrary to party policies, he is an imperialist. He is a don Cossacks and represents the Cossacks.

Efremoff's political career is a duma career, which means of the last decade. He was one of the progressive party chiefs in succession to the late Count Geyden. He has been abroad several times on parliamentary missions, and made a hit in England. He is an active and useful man.

A Man of Honor.

One of the most prominent men in present Russian affairs is Kokoschkin, leader of the Moscow cadets, professor of constitutional law at the Moscow university, and a journalist. He is not yet 40 years old. He is a keen observer, well known as a speaker and publicist. Here we have "the professor as a practical politician," a Woodrow Wilson, and as Wilson is with us, so Kokoschkin is with Russia, the honored political spokesman of the intellectuals, especially since a large majority of the intellectuals have gathered around the cadet standard.

Kokoschkin will be Kerensky's brain in many matters, especially in constitutional and internal questions.

Engineer Gives Job.

Yureneff, the minister of public works, is an engineer and belongs to the cadet party's Moscow section. He was a member of the second duma. Before entering the cabinet he was technical adjutant to the mayor of Moscow.

Kartaschoff, procurator of the holy synod, is a cadet. He was professor of theology at the Petrograd seminary and has had no political career. He is one of the new cabinet's intellectual and spiritual giants. He long has been working for the isolation of the church from the state and his views on this subject brought him into conflict with the czar.

Church Means Much to State.

Kartaschoff's reforms will be dictated by deep conviction, and will be thought out. He will make no reform for the sport of making reforms or to attract attention. His work will be of the highest importance, because since Russia is a country of believers, the Russian church can have more to do with the salvation of the Russian state than any workmen-soldiers' council.

NATION'S THANKS

Gen. Petain, Savior of Verdun, Congratulated on Victory Over Germans and Awarded Grand Cross of Legion of Honor.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Minister of War Painleve has addressed a letter of thanks to Gen. Petain, commander in chief of the French armies on the French front, congratulating him, his officers and their men on their recent triumph before Verdun.

"You, whom history already recognizes as the glorious defender of Verdun," the letter says, "have now achieved your aim by definitely driving the enemy from the crown of heights from which he still threatened the inviolate city."

The letter adds that the grand cross of the Legion of Honor has been conferred on Gen. Petain. The decree conferring this distinction ends with the brief but eloquent sentence, "He defended and saved Verdun."

Premier Ribot also has sent the most cordial congratulations to Gen. Petain, saying:

"The Verdun operations, conducted with precision and remarkable thoroughness, bring the greatest honor to the commander-in-chief and our valiant troops. The success you have just obtained will help to maintain in the country and the army the confidence which is the gauge of final victory."

GLENCOE, BROKE, FORMS SYNDICATE TO BUY CENTER

A community center has been acquired by the village of Glencoe.

For some time officials of the village had coveted a block of land lying just west of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad right of way, between Park and Hazel avenues, as a site for a park, the public library, villages offices, and hall for community meetings.

But there was no money available to make the purchase. So Sherman M. Booth, president of the park board; Otto R. Barnett, president of the library board, and Merle B. Waltz and George I. Hicks, president and attorney respectively of the village, conferred with Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

At Mr. Riley's suggestion a syndicate of about fifty villagers was formed and the property was conveyed to the trust company as trustee, it advancing $54,900 to the syndicate to buy the property. The loan runs until Jan. 1, 1930.

GRAFTS LILACS ON SHADE TREES

Huge shade trees covered with lilac blossoms will be familiar sights at Glen Ellyn next spring, if the recent discovery of Dr. Frank Johnson, village forester, proves practical on a large scale.

Dr. Johnson announced yesterday that after a long series of experiments he had at last succeeded in budding lilacs to a common variety of shade tree. He refuses for the present to tell which variety, but exhibited a sprig with a lilac bud grafted to it.

"I can cover an entire tree with lilac blossoms," he asserted yesterday, "and ordinary varieties of bugs will stay away from it because the blossoms are so bitter. Six trees so budded will blossom next spring at Glen Ellyn."

Would Destroy Bad Eggs.

Assistant United States District Attorney Frederick Dickinson yesterday filed suit in the United States District court to condemn nearly 50 cases of eggs. Two shipments of eggs will be condemned if the petitions are allowed.

FIRST DEPUTY BACKS ARREST OF ALDERMAN

The alleged threat of Ald. J. B. McDonough of the Fifth ward to "get" the job of Mounted Policeman William T. Garrey because the latter arrested him stirred the ire of First Deputy Westbrook yesterday.

Ald. McDonough was summoned to Speeders' court on charges of disorderly conduct, refusing to obey an officer, and violation of motor regulations, as a result of a clash with Garrey in front of the city hall. His case was continued to Sept. 4.

After the postponement had been taken Westbrook announced he would stand by the policeman because the alderman had no right to abuse him.

"According to my information, Garrey was doing his duty. If a man abused me for performing my duty as a policeman I'd put him in a cell," Westbrook said.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Modern House With An Old Fashioned Policy

If you would be convinced of Paige popularity in Chicago, you need only stand at any intersection of Michigan avenue and watch the cars as they pass by.

If you do this you will be impressed with two things: First, the great number of Paiges that appear in that endless procession and, second, the obvious character of Paige owners.

To be really popular a motor car must have, not only many friends, but the right kind of friends. It must be indorsed by the conservative, discriminating buying public—that smaller body of citizens which represents our best thought in business, professional and social activities.

It is such an ownership that builds prestige. It is such an ownership that has made Bird-Sykes and the Paige an institution of true local significance.

We are, of course, very proud of this business and the vast strides that it has made during the past five years. In seeking an explanation for our success, however, we are obliged to concede that our methods have been anything but daringly original.

Instead of attempting to blaze new trails in merchandising, we have adhered strictly to the first principles laid down by those splendid pioneers, John Wanamaker and Marshall Field.

We have rejected as unsound the "spectacular stunt" and placed all of our faith in the "square deal."

We have willingly sacrificed the cut price sale and waited patiently for the customer who would appreciate a policy that conserves his own interests as well as ours.

As a consequence, Bird-Sykes is recognized as a non-partisan house—a fair house—a one-price house. The word has gone forth that we live up to our promises and stand squarely behind every motor car that leaves this establishment.

In short, the public has learned that we are dependable, conscientious merchants—selling only the kind of merchandise that we, ourselves, can believe in and recommend unqualifiedly.

And, now, just a word about our "Merchandise."

If it is your intention to buy a Paige this Fall, by all means, place your order just as soon as you possibly can. Don't put the matter off for a day longer than is absolutely necessary because a substantial price advance will come at any time.

You, of course, are familiar with industrial conditions. You know that the costs of materials and labor have been steadily soaring—and are still soaring. There can be only one answer to such a condition. If you delay the matter too long you will be obliged to pay more than current prices for your Paige.

If you already own a motor car, bring it to our used car department and we will arrange to take it off your hands. We will allow you every single penny that the car is worth and deliver a new Paige the same day if you like.

But once more, let me urge you to act quickly. A general advance in motor cars is coming—is almost here. It means money in your pocket if you will recognize this inevitable fact—and act.

Let us remind you of just one of the many reasons why your car should be a Paige.

It is is a matter of record in fifteen of the principal cities that Paige used cars bring a higher price—proportionate to first cost—than any other American automobiles.

And here, after all is said and done, is the final test of quality.

A used car has been "through the mill." Its motor and all its working parts have been subjected to constant strain.

It's "finish" has been knocked off—if it will come off at all.

Its gears, its rear axle and its transmission have endured the punishment of day-in and day-out pounding. All of its weakness is plainly evident—and likewise its strength.

The used car either stands before you a broken down, dispirited "has been"—or a strong, robust champion of many battles—ready and eager for all the service that man can give it.

That, we repeat, is the final test of quality.

And in this test the Paige stands supreme. After fifteen, twenty-five, thirty-five thousand miles of service there is still enough GOODNESS left in a Paige to command the record price in used car markets.

Frankly, now, is there anything that we could tell you about this car that would be more convincing? Could you have any better guarantee that a Paige is all that we claim it to be—all that you could possibly expect it to be?

RED CROSS RULE OF WAR CHARITY DIVIDES PARIS

Resented by Some and Accepted Willingly by Other Societies.

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The Red Cross seems to have stirred up a hornet's nest among the various independent charities which have been working since the beginning of the war. Nor, according to cables from America, does this excitement seem to be in Paris alone. The latest news is that an indignation meeting was held in New York yesterday to protest against alleged high handed proceedings of the Red Cross.

Within the last week several organizations, such as the American ambulance at Neuilly, the Norton-Harjes unit, the American Clearing house, etc., have formally been disbanded in their service to the French government and just as formally taken over by the Red Cross representing the American army.

All of the small oeuvres which with so much patience, tenacity, and self sacrifice have slaved since the beginning of the war felt themselves threatened. They feared a wholesale taking over by the Red Cross and started fussing at once. Part of this, of course, is due to a desire for publicity, but many hundreds of thousands of dollars have been given to charity in France by poor and rich without any ulterior thought of advertising.

Dislike to Be Ignored.

Although it is undoubtedly true that many organizations named for and supported by their wealthy patrons are a great source of delight to these people for the publicity they bring, no person who has put heart and soul into a work for three years wants to see all of that suddenly absorbed in an anonymous society which completely destroys the individuality of the original organization.

Since this belief has taken root in Paris, the women (all of the fussers are women) have run excitedly from the minister of foreign affairs to the minister of public health. They have their back as against the wall and will not give in.

The Red Cross, on the other hand, states explicitly that it has no desire to take over any oeuvre which does not come of its on accord and apply, and that even then there will undoubtedly be many which cannot be taken over by the Red Cross because their aims will not be at all the same.

Explained by Official.

Maj. Grayson Murphy said yesterday in regard to the situation: "There seems to be some doubt as to the relations which exist between the Red Cross and other American organizations operating in the same field. It should be clearly understood that the desire of the Red Cross is to aid in every way any American work which is of service to the French people, and that nothing is less true than that we intend to interfere with such work.

"It is obvious, however, that the large funds which have been intrusted to the officers of the Red Cross for administration must be disbursed in the most efficient manner possible. Under these circumstances, much as the officers might like to assist other American societies, they can do so only in those cases where the work being carried on fits into the general plans which the Red Cross must of necessity adopt."

Another official, after showing me letters from French and Belgian women begging for help in their difficulties, said: "There will be more than we can possibly take in. Many of those organizations which are now making the most outcry about absorption would probably not be accepted in the Red Cross, anyway. What we want to do is save an overlapping of effort. We take only what comes to us voluntarily."

New Work for Americans.

Practically none of the boys who came over here on Red Cross or American ambulance work are engaged in driving ambulances. They have been transferred to the transport section of the army and are at present driving motor trucks and ammunition lorries back of the lines.

The Norton-Harjes unit has an interesting new stunt of training at Sandricourt. Since most of the driving is done at night under shell fire, and light is a dangerous thing, as it gives artillery range, the men are being taught to make repairs in the dark. They are put in a dark garage in which are machines in every state of disrepair, and then they are told to repair them in the shortest time possible.

On the boat when I came over were two or three hundred indignant young Americans—indignant at THE TRIBUNE on account of that editorial published some time ago against men of serviceable age enlisting in the ambulance corps when they were wanted in the trenches. They all insisted that they were only doing this until they should be called out by conscription—that it was the quickest way over here, and that after six months of this they would know a great deal more than the men who had stayed at home.

Frank M. Smith

MEMBERS of THE TRIBUNE editorial staff took leave of two more of their colleagues yesterday—two more enthusiasts for military preparedness who will become members of the second training camp of reserve officers. They are Frank M. Smith Jr., an assistant telegraph editor, and Herbert Morton Stoops of the art department.

Both have had previous military training, Mr. Smith as an officer of the once famous Aurora Zouaves, whose achievements took them over the continent, and Mr. Stoops on the Pacific coast, whence he hails. Both will report tomorrow morning at Fort Sheridan to enter upon the grind of training.

Harry F. Parker of the editorial staff, who was a member of the first camp and who was compelled to withdraw because of temporary illness, will resume his training in the second camp.

Women of Del Prado Hotel Arrange Entertainment for Tobacco Fund.

Popularity of THE TRIBUNE'S fund to provide tobacco for the American soldiers in France was proved again yesterday when the total of cash sent in went well beyond the $3,000 mark. In addition, there has been a gift of $600 for cigars and other donations of cigarets and smoking tobacco valued at $1,500, making a grand total of more than $5,000.

Maj. Horace C. Stebbins, U. S. A., registered at the Blackstone yesterday from New York, and one of the first things he did was to send $100 to the fund.

Miss Dorothy Harvey, in sending $1.50, wrote: "I earned this money doing some war work, so I want to turn it right in where it will give more help to the boys in France."

Manufacturers Aid Funds.

Each contributor who sends his address will have the satisfaction of knowing it will be placed on a stamped postal card enclosed in a package of tobacco.

The American Tobacco company, Liggett & Myers, Lorillard & Co., and The Tobacco Products company have made special concessions and will supply a package of tobacco for twenty-five cents that cost forty-five retail.

Dance at Del Prado.

An interesting program is being prepared for the entertainment to be given next Wednesday evening at the Del Prado hotel for the benefit of the fund. Business men who live in the hotel are paying all expenses, so that the soldiers will receive full benefit for every dollar paid in.

Twenty-five United States army regulars are to be invited to dinner by women residents of the hotel. A military dance is to follow. The committee on entertainment is composed of Miss Elizabeth Allen, Mrs. Robert A. Black, and Miss E. Wood.

Charles E. Hughes Here on Legal Business

Charles Evans Hughes, former candidate for president of the United States, was in Chicago yesterday. He appeared in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and asked for a clarification of the order allowing the sale of the American Press association to the Western Newspaper union. Mr. Hughes, who represents the latter concern, presented his arguments before Judges Alschuler and Baker.

JAZ AND ANTI-JAZ FOX TROTTERS IN RAGTIME RIOT

One-Steppers Battle Over Syncopation and Noise.

Two rival bands of feudists are to come dashing and dancing into Chicago on Sept. 1. They're in New York right now getting food for the feud. They are the dancing school masters and they are dividing into two camps—the jazzers and the anti-jazzers.

The anti-jazzers are of the American National Association of Masters of Dancing, and they are now going to school at the Astor hotel in New York learning the Post Pleasant military one-step and a lot of other things. The boss of the works is Veronine Vestoff, who, sans vest, has as a prize pupil Louis Kretlow, 72 years old, of Chicago, according to cables.

He's Going to Show 'Em.

Mr. Kretlow, address 635 Webster avenue, is going to show 'em some new things along the street when he comes home. The military one step has a lot of marking time, tapping with the heel and the flat of the foot with some "Come Over, Sally," steps and a snappy movement of the left kick.

The Hotel Astor bunch has branded as vulgar the half nelson hold of the jaz outfit and the syncopation of the jaz noise foundries. The jazzers are members of the American National College of Dancing, and the two associations love each other like two prima donnas.

Supreme Master G. Hepburn Wilson, who camouflages himself in robin blue, is alleged to be the inventor of the most of the new stuff that the jazzers and jazzettes are pulling. He also has on his reputation the Chinese toddle. All of the new steps require the jazziest of jaz bands to help them over. Old fashioned ragtime is impossible, they claim.

Both Sides Charge Crimes.

Both the jazzers and the ani-jazzers charge the enemy with all manner of crimes in the name of new dancing. A reporter for THE TRIBUNE tried to find some tamed dancing masters yesterday in Chicago to get set right on the matter, but they were gone.

Finally Miss Virginia Belle, who teaches the ultra-elite of society in her school down on Michigan avenue, was found "at home." She declined to mix in the New York feud which is soon to be transplanted here.

She hinted softly and sweetly that many atrocities are being committed this year in the name of dancing and that she believed that she and the Gold Coast bunch would be neutral.

DESERTED

Three Wives Seeking Divorces Say Husbands Are Marital Slackers.

ELIZABETH CHAPMAN VARNEY charges Harlow A. Varney, who has an office at 561 West Washington boulevard, with desertion in a divorce bill filed yesterday. She says Varney has an income of $250 a month.

Grace Edna Solomon says she married Wade Drew Solomon on a strictly faithful basis, but that he couldn't keep the contract.

Elvira Thorlander asserts Gunner deserted her after they had been married eight years.

Emmaline J. Block says she married John in 1895 and they lived happily until 1913, when he deserted.

Little Theater to Take Only Little Trip to New York

In an article published in THE TRIBUNE of Saturday, Aug. 25, the impression was given that the Little theater was to break up and leave Chicago because of illness of members of the company, and also because of the war. The Little theater is not leaving Chicago to stay permanently. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Browne have been asked to present some of their puppet plays in New York in October, but they will not be in that city for more than a week or two. They will continue their plays in Chicago this fall. The theater in which the plays will be presented during the fall and winter has not yet been decided upon.

COURT PHYSICIAN COURTS MANY, IS CHARGE IN COURT

Dr. Ladislaus Statkiewicz, a distinguished personage in crisp tailoring, once a Russian court physician and a professor of medicine, spent a measurably nervous half hour yesterday before Judge Stelk in the Court of Domestic Relations explaining to his wife about two young things yclept "Anna" and "Helen," respectively 24 and 20.

Mrs. Statkiewicz told the court she became aware of the doctor's amorous exploits while she was spending a two year period in the interests of her health on her Florida orange farm. In support of her charges she produced numerous postal cards bearing romantic passages in Polish, and also photographic reproductions of young women in an alarming state of negligee.

Miss Helen Statkiewicz was her mother's lieutenant and interpreter. She translated the romantic passages, but the picture cards of negligent maidens the court was able to translate for himself. The hearing was held behind closed doors, but enough became public to illuminate the matters at issue.

According to Bernhard Stenge, counsel for Mrs. Statkiewicz, Dr. Statkiewicz not only employed himself in light romance with women much younger than himself but proposed marriage to one "Helen," discarding the attachment later when he seemed to discover her infidelity. He had applied to the girl's brother for her hand and then wrote him a letter breaking off the affair.

Max Kaczmarek, attorney for the doctor, denied all charges.

The attorney said the doctor had given his wife the Florida farm and also a Chicago town property and also $12,000 in insurance policies. The doctor pleaded his 51 years as reason sufficient against his alleged romances. The case was taken under advisement.

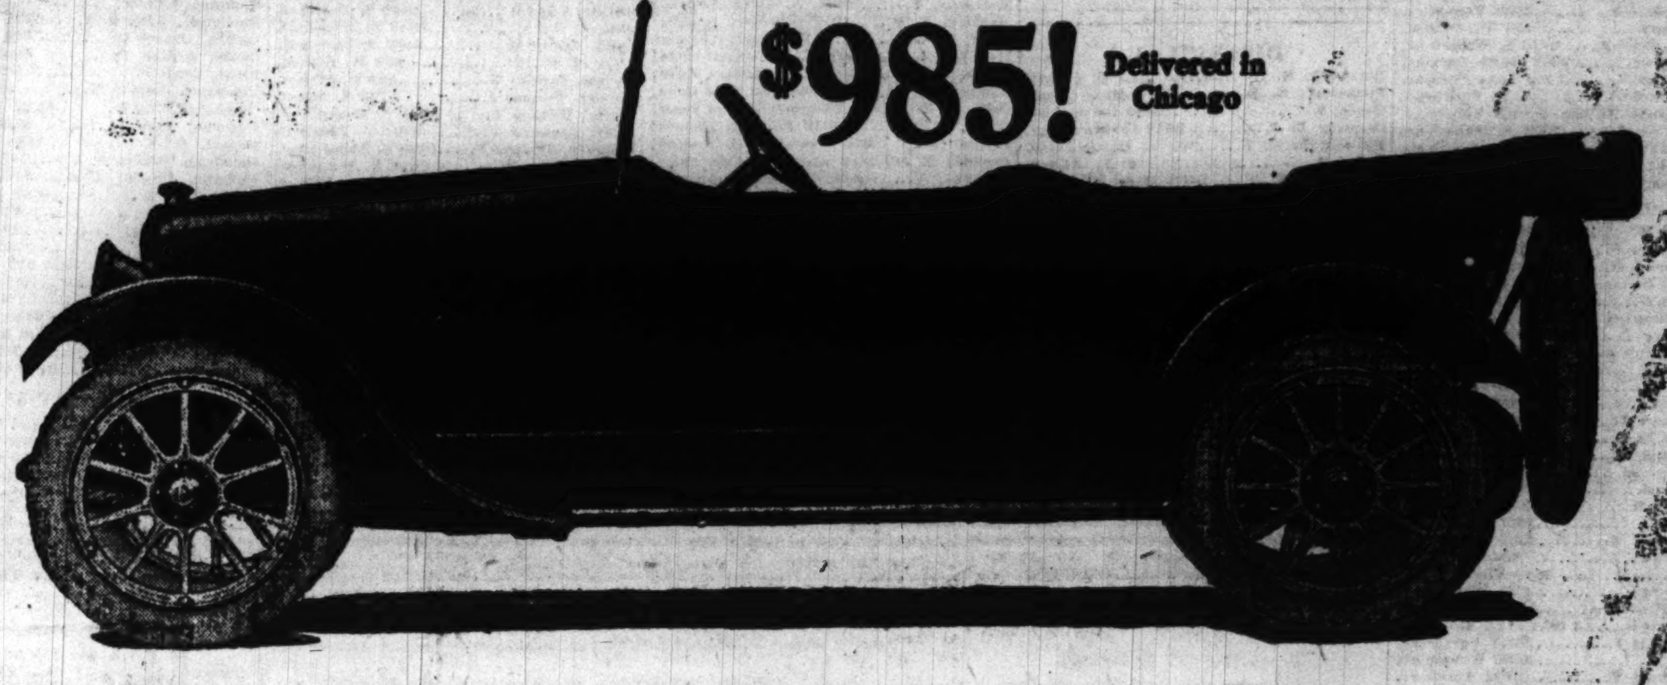
$985! Delivered in Chicago



Louis Geyler Company Service is now extended to the Chicago-made

Elgin Six

The Success of the Elgin

Geyler Service, for the first time, becomes available to purchasers of a car costing less than $1,000.

The Elgin Six, $985, has proved itself worthy of endorsement by the Louis Geyler Company.

A most thorough investigation was made. The Elgin was found to have had phenomenal success. It is far past the experimental stage. This is its second year. Yet demand far exceeds supply.

Forty a day is the present output. New buildings will soon bring this to 100 cars daily. The factory is at 61st Street and Archer Avenue, Chicago.

Two Big, Comfortable, Roomy Models

One is the Touring Car with generous seating capacity for five large persons—in royal blue, (maroon optional), black hood and fenders, yellow wheels—illustrated. The other is a Roadster for Four.

Each is $985, delivered in Chicago.

The Elgin Six satisfactorily meets the call for a high-grade six-cylinder car around $1,000. A distinctive beauty of outline greets the eye. Commanding size and roominess are afforded by the 116-inch wheelbase. The car rides with surprising ease. Finish and upholstery are of the best.

The six-cylinder engine is powerful, flexible, quick and speedy. Endurance has been demonstrated by notable cross-country runs under adverse conditions and by extended owner use. Its economy is remarkable.

What Geyler Endorsement Means

To the thousands who know the Louis Geyler Company, recommendation from such an authority on automobiles is sufficient. And the further distinction of receiving the far-famed Geyler Service is accepted as final in the guarantee of motoring satisfaction.

The sound judgment of the Geyler institution is measured by its growth. It is the largest west of New York City in physical equipment and personnel for rendering service to motor-car purchasers.

Similarly it is one of the longest established.

The Value of Geyler Service

Good service—courteous, ever-willing, expert, careful, generous treatment—has brought rapid expansion.

Three years ago its friends grew so many as to demand the four-story edifice at Michigan Avenue and 25th Street. Two years later the big three-story Service Station was erected one block east.

In early September a large North Side Branch opens a few feet east of Sheridan Road on Wilson Avenue. This is for the convenience of North Shore patrons.

Geyler Service is all-inclusive. Large repair shops, blacksmith shop, paint and trim shop, oiling, greasing and inspection rooms, and a huge stock-room containing full assortments of factory parts, promptly care for all motoring needs.

Geyler Service is ready at a moment's notice any hour of the day or night. Its doors never close. The one aim is to keep Geyler-sold cars on the road when their owners want them.

A cordial invitation is extended to inspect the Elgin Six—and to witness Geyler Service in operation.

NEW ARMY FIGURES

Seven More Exemption Boards Complete Quotas, Leaving Only Twenty-two Boards Now Incomplete.

SEVEN more district exemption boards completed their quotas for the new national army yesterday, making a total of sixty-four of Chicago's eighty-six boards to get under the wire. Revised figures show a total of 89,313 men examined, 17,743 rejected, 44,836 claiming exemption, and 26,734 accepted as physically fit and not claiming exemption. The city's total quota of 24,989 will not be complete until each district supplies its pro rata. The seven districts which filled their quotas yesterday are:

Save Money Now On Hudson Super-Six

Many former $1200 to $1400 cars now cost about as much as a Hudson Super-Six.

Price has always been a fairly accurate index of quality. But just now, because of the headlong rising of material costs, price is not a true indication of value. Fifty-one cars have been forced to advance prices 20% to 25%.

The present supply of Hudson Super-Sixes is built from materials contracted last year. Since then material costs have almost doubled. When that supply of materials is exhausted, then Hudsons, too, must cost more. By prompt buying you can save the difference between what a Hudson Super-Six now costs and what it must certainly have to cost when its price is influenced by the present material market.

When former cheaper cars could be bought at $200 to $300 less than the Super-Six, no two of them had sales equal to those of the Hudson. That shows how popular the Super-Six has always been as compared to other cars. It is easy to imagine how much more popular it will be now that there is no such price advantage. The Hudson Super-Six has made itself the wanted car as compared with others.

It is the largest selling fine car. Almost 40,000 are in daily use. It has established itself as the lifetime car.

BANG! GO DOORS IF CHIEF FINDS BARS CHEATING

Drastic Sunday Closing Policy Announced by Schuettler.

The severest policy ever employed in Chicago to compel obedience to the Sunday saloon closing order was announced yesterday by Chief of Police Schuettler.

The chief made his announcement after being informed that John Toman, chairman of the city council license committee, had formulated an ordinance which would wrest control of saloons from Mayor Thompson and give it to a special commission to be appointed by the council.

"Hereafter warnings to saloonkeepers to obey the law will be dispensed with, and I shall recommend the revocation of the license of any saloonkeeper against whom we get a plain case of cheating," Schuettler said.

"I shan't even wait in such a case for the courts to pass on the case of a saloonkeeper arrested for violating the law.

Summary Action Promised.

"Saloonkeepers generally in Chicago are living up to the closing order. Every Sunday, however, about fifteen violations are reported. Some of these are technical and are reported because the policemen are doing their full duty by making these reports. Others are cheating for various reasons, principally, it would seem, on the bad advice of friends.

"I'm not going to waste any more time with such fellows. They're going to lose their licenses. I shall take action wherever we have a plain case without waiting for the arresting officers to obtain convictions in court."

The chief was asked whether he had any bones to pick with Municipal court judges, but he said he had nothing to say. Other police officers have been known, however, to complain that some judges have abused them for performing their duty by arresting lid tilters.

Schuettler said yesterday he had forwarded to the mayor the names of six saloonkeepers, caught violating the law last Sunday, and recommended they lose their licenses.

"Since I have been chief the mayor has revoked every license that I recommended be revoked," the chief said.

Toman for Boston System.

Ald. Toman announced yesterday that when the council meets Oct. 6 he would submit an ordinance based on the methods employed in Boston to regulate saloons. It contemplates the creation of a special commission to be appointed by the council to have first and final jurisdiction over saloons. He is now working on an ordinance to bring this about.

Under present regulations in Chicago the mayor, because of his autocratic power to issue and revoke licenses, has a life and death grip on all beer gardens and saloons.

Maj. Franklin R. Kenney Has Been Appointed Adjutant General of the Thirty-eighth U. S. Army Division.

Maj. Franklin R. Kenney
MOFFETT PHOTO.

Maj. Franklin R. Kenney, U. S. A., for eight years chief recruiting officer of the Chicago district, has been appointed adjutant general of the Thirty-eighth United States army division, with headquarters at Camp Beauregard, Alexandria, La. He will leave Chicago for his new post early this week.

Maj. Kenney will be a staff officer of the famous engineer, Maj. Gen. Hodges, and his command will include the national guard regiments of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Among these men will be the descendants of the famous "Louisiana Tigers," of whom Gen. Meade during the civil war wrote the well known message that: "After many endeavors to meet on the field of battle the Pennsylvania Buck Tails and the Louisiana Tigers have met. . . The Louisiana Tigers have, as an organization, this day ceased to exist."

In this, Fate has played one of her strangest pranks, for the grandfather of Maj. Kenney, Lieut. Col. Alexander Kenney, and his uncles, George and William Kenney, were officers of the "Pennsylvania Buck Tail brigade." Maj. Kenney is to be a comrade in arms and commanding officer to the grandsons of the men who fought to such a bitter end, his own people of a few decades ago.

Maj. Kenney has risen from the ranks.

C. C. Goodwin, Editor of Salt Lake Tribune, Dead

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 25.—C. C. Goodwin, editor and author, and for twenty-one years, from 1880 to 1901, editor in chief of the Salt Lake Tribune, died today after an illness of several months. He had been critically ill for more than a week.

AT LAST MOLLIE HAS SEEN A LIVE FISH AND A COW

She Is One of Little Girls at "The Tribune" Camp.

Perhaps the happiest persons at THE TRIBUNE hospital at Algonquin are Mollie B. and her mother.

As a girl, Mollie's mother lived on a farm in New York. But most of her married life had been spent in the slums. Her husband was in poor health and could work but little. A short time ago he died. She has been working, but finally broke down completely. Now she is at Algonquin trying to recover her strength.

During the eight years of Mollie's life she has heard tales of the farm, of animals, of flowers, of hills, of country life.

For the First Time.

Now, for the first time in her life, she has seen:

An oak tree
A hay field
A live fish
A hill
Golden rod
A meadow lark
A cow
A rock cliff
An island
A dirt road

For the first time in her life she has ridden behind a horse, she has worn a bathing suit, she has rolled down a hill, and has waded in a river. The sights of the few days at Algonquin have been as strange to her as were the sights of the cities of Spain to the savages taken back by Columbus. And her mother has renewed her acquaintance with the things of the country which she had thought of as in another existence.

Invent "Tramp Traps."

The Southern Pacific railroad has several "tramp traps" in the shape of freight cars which are left in condition to invite the tramps, and after a number of them have boarded it, the doors are mysteriously closed and they are prisoners.

LEVEE DISTRICT RAIDS CROWD STATION CELLS

Men and Women Are Taken in Houses and on the Street.

First Deputy Supt. of Police Wesley Westbrook started yesterday in earnest to defeat the attempted reëstablishment of open vice in the heart of the old levee district at Twenty-second and Dearborn streets. And for the next few weeks the eyes of the assistant chief will be focused accusingly on the city and state prosecutors and on the judges of the Municipal courts.

In the afternoon squads of detectives under his orders swooped down on the district. Throughout the night raids were made.

Seventy men and women were arrested. In one place at Nineteenth and Dearborn streets ten men and nine women were taken. Forty persons were locked up in the Cottage Grove avenue station, and later in the night those arrested were taken to the Clark street station.

Sergt. Ralph Busse led one squad of raiders and other squads were under command of Capt. Mullen of the Cottage Grove avenue station. Many resorts known to have been operating were closed on a "tip" believed to have been sent out.

Arrest Men Hanging Around.

In addition to closing disorderly houses and arresting the black and white inmates and women discovered soliciting on the streets the detectives arrested every man found on the streets who could not satisfactorily explain his business there.

"We've got orders to do the job up thoroughly this time," one of the detectives said, "and, believe me, we're doing it."

The cases of the dozen women arrested in raids on four disorderly houses on South Dearborn street on Friday were continued until some time this week. First Deputy Westbrook said that continuances are a typical part of the procedure in such cases.

Shifts Part of Blame.

"I have repeatedly gone into court personally and appealed to judges and prosecutors in an effort to get some action in these cases," Mr. Westbrook said. "The judges told me they discharged these people on account of technical errors in the complaints and warrants. I told the judges it is the business of the prosecutors to make out these papers and of the clerks of the court to see that they are correct. The judges answered me that it was not.

"My detectives are not lawyers. I get my orders from the chief, and I transmit them to the men and the detectives are, and have been, doing their duty. I'm glad the newspapers are bringing out the conditions. It may help adjust matters.

"I am not taking the part of the captains of the districts," Mr. Westbrook continued. "It is their business to suppress this vice, and my advice to them would be to get busy."

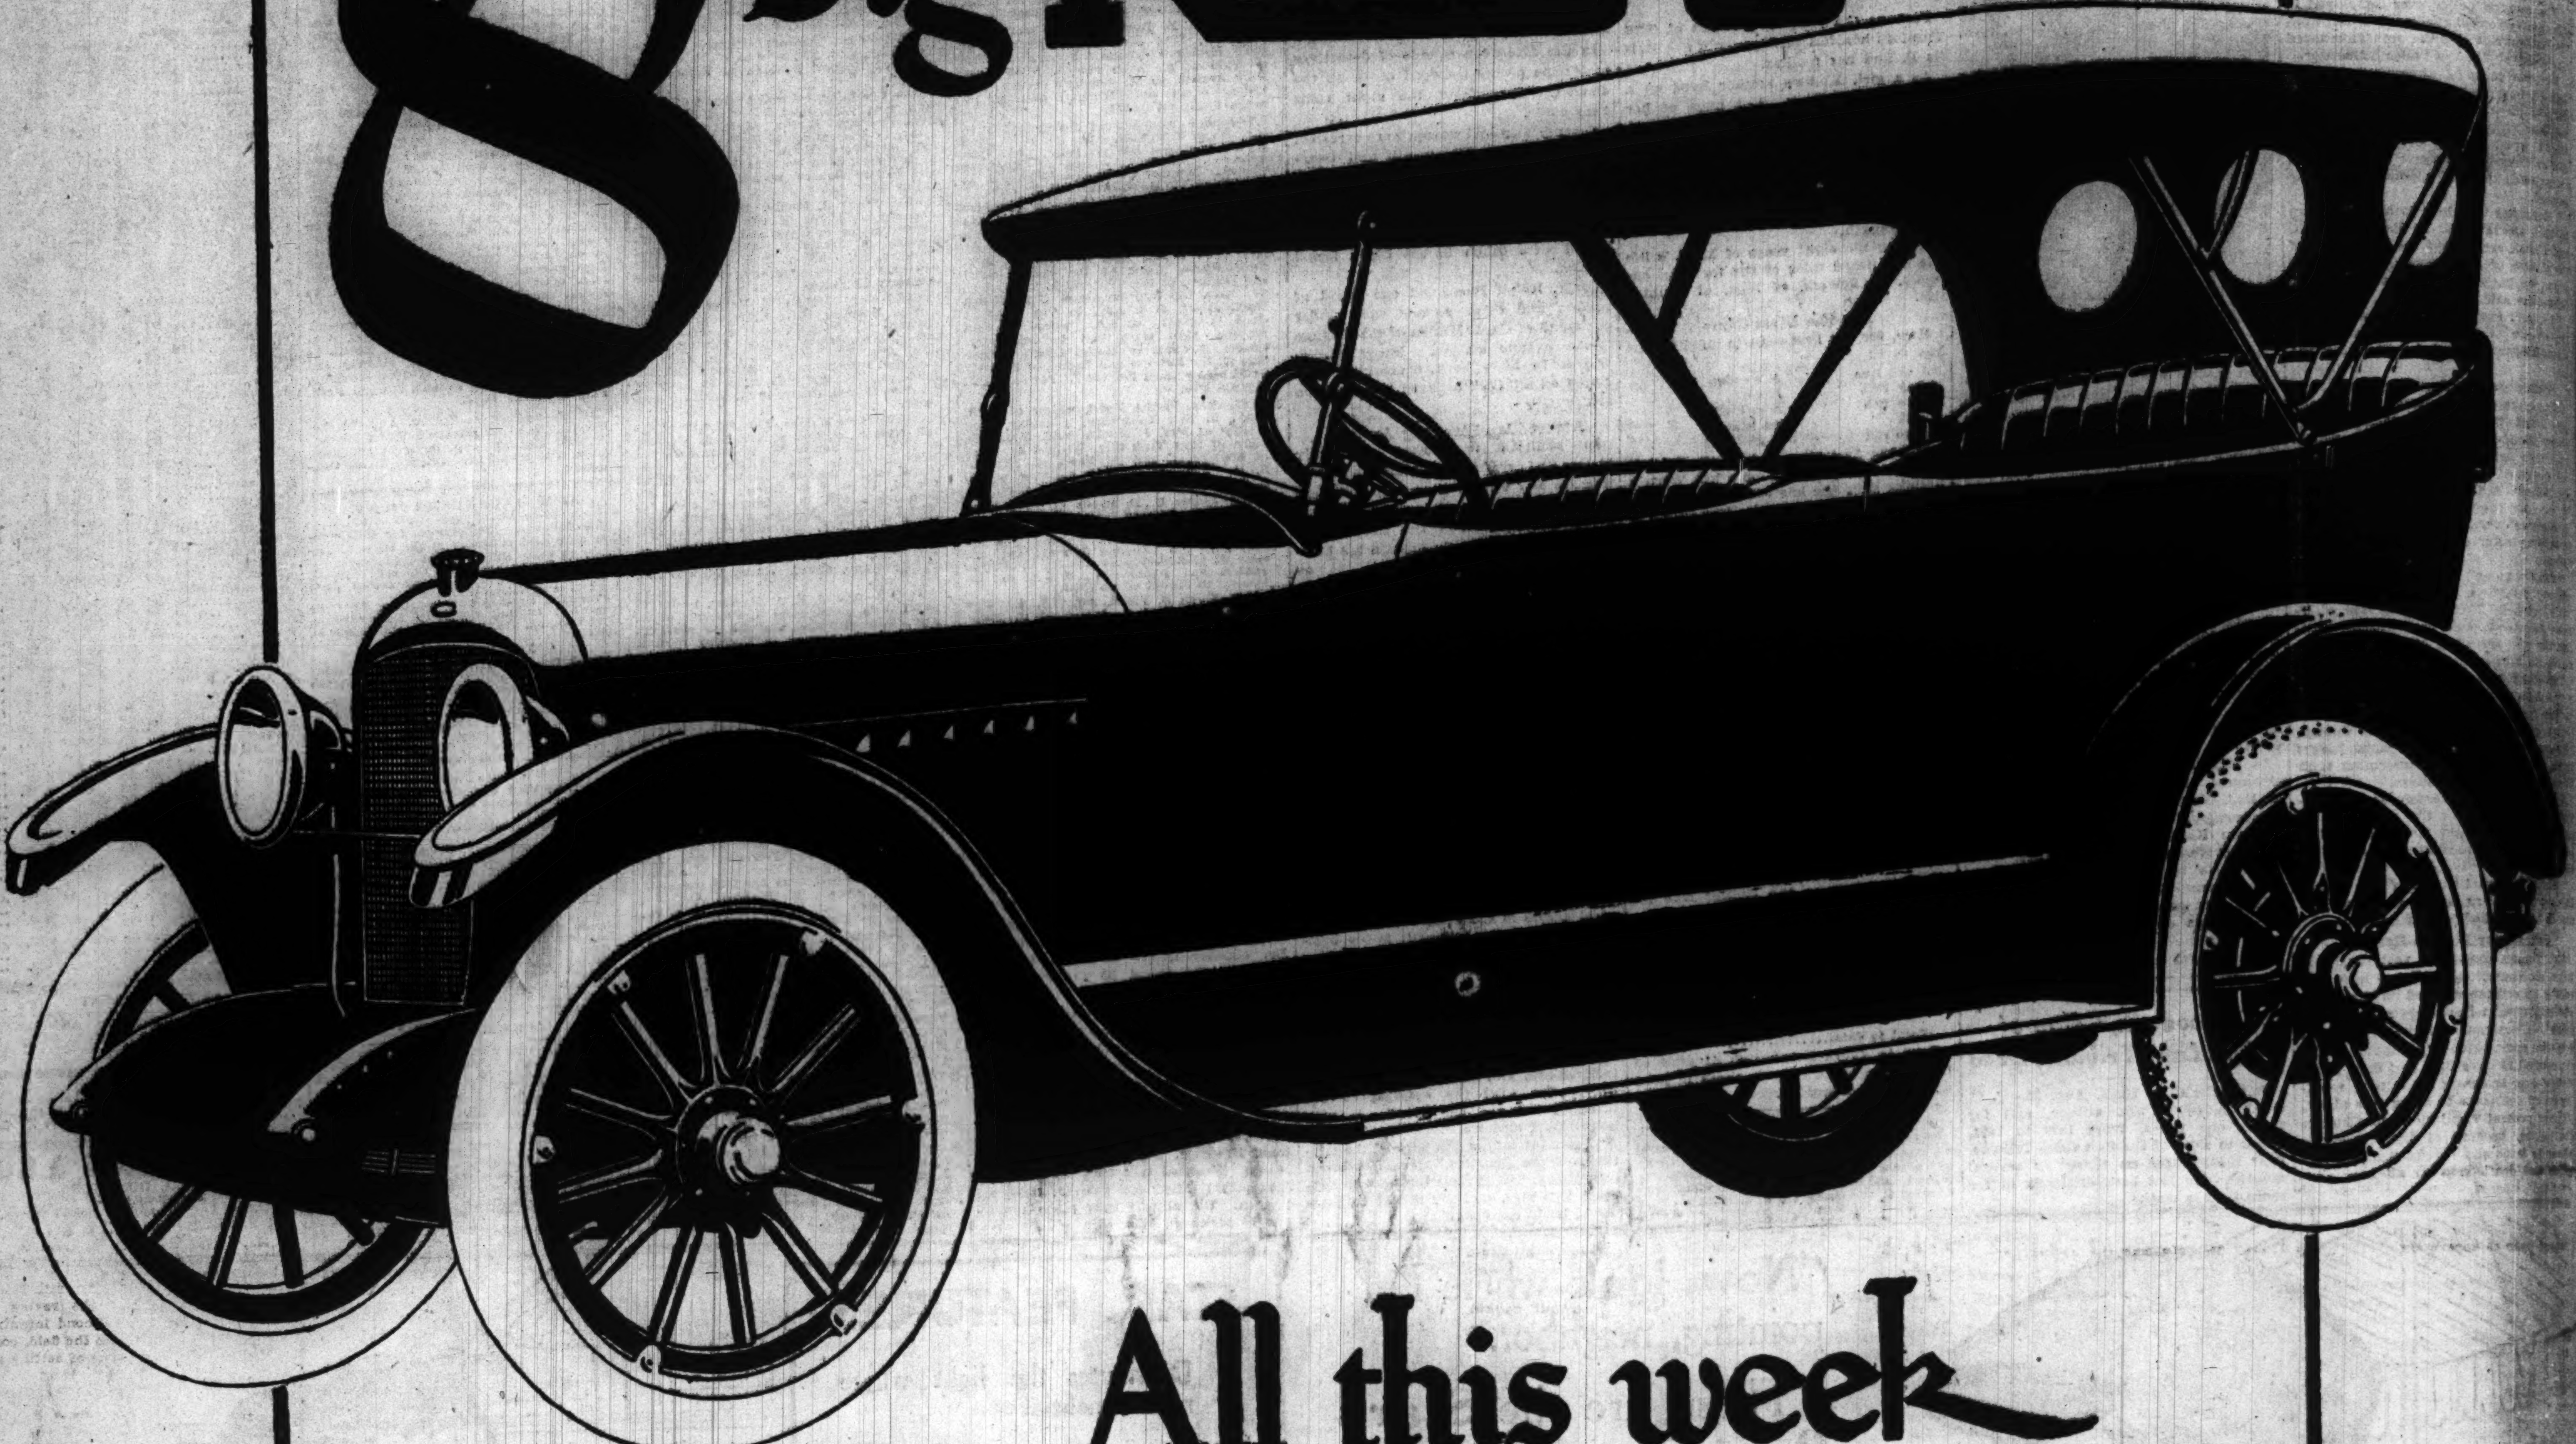
8 days this week!

8 big ROSS 8 days



All this week

ROSS 8 cars sell for $1387.50

instead of $1850 Saving you $462.50

Beginning today—ending next Sunday—8 big days—the biggest bargain days that Illinois motorists have ever seen.

We contracted for just a few more ROSS 8 Cars than we could sell during the season of 1917.

Therefore, you buy this splendid car this week only, for $1387.50 instead of the regular price of $1850.

This is a saving of $462.50—when all other cars are increasing in cost.

The ROSS compares very favorably with the most luxurious, the most refined, the highest class cars on the market. It has the marvelous Herschell-Spillman motor. It is perfectly balanced. It compares with any car selling for $3000 or less.

Now isn't it true that you have wanted just such a car—that you've been planning to buy this class of motor car and have hesitated because of the high price? Here is your opportunity to secure the car you've been dreaming of at a really astonishing price.

There are just a few of these cars—they may not last out the week. You should come today if you are interested—and most certainly your business judgment should compel you to investigate this ROSS 8 Car before you buy.

Just another word: These cars are right from the factory—in perfect shape—have never been used—and the model is not being discontinued. We are simply fulfilling our contract with the Ross Automobile Company at Detroit.

A real car—every up-to-the-minute-feature—130 inch wheel base—auxiliary seats—tonneau lights—cigar-lighter—clock—extension light—etc., etc. You'll fall in love with it when you see it.

Come today or phone for demonstration—Save $462.50!

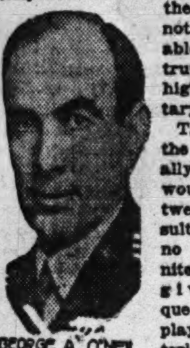
CHICK EVANS VS. F. OUIMET; SKILL EQUAL

O'Neil Says Luck or Accident Would Decide Match.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.
[Copyright: 1917: By George A. O'Neil.]

EVANS VS. OUIMET

So many persons have asked me on so many occasions to publish my opinion of the comparative merits of Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet as golfers that it is clear that the public at least does not believe the old saying that "comparisons are odious." Certainly such a comparison as must be made between these players cannot be objectionable, for, to be truthful, it must be highly complimentary to both.



GEORGE A. O'NEIL

The form in which the inquiry is usually put is, "How would a match between the two result?" Obviously, no simple or definite answer can be given to such a question. The two players are so masterly in every department of the game and so evenly matched that some accidental circumstance, some break of luck, some momentary lapse of perfect attention, or some other entirely unpredictable detail, might give the one or the other the slight advantage necessary to decide the result. No single match could determine the question of superiority. And even a series of matches would leave the question undecided unless it were played over a number of courses offering every variety of golfing problem.

On a simple course the victory might depend upon so apparently trifling a circumstance as the number of holes of certain lengths. For example, if the course included several holes of approximately 275 yards, thus requiring a chip shot for the second, I feel fairly certain that Ouimet's uncanny approach would spell victory. On the other hand, with a good sprinkling of holes of 380 yards or so—distances requiring a midiron for the second shot—there can be no doubt that the victory would go to Chick.

This illustrates how impossible it is to give a general answer to the question of superiority, when it concerns skill that in each case so closely approaches perfection.

CHICK AS PUTTER.

Speaking of Chick recalls the fact, already alluded to in this series of articles, that he is often rated as a poor putter. This, it may be remarked, is only the opinion of the unconcerned bystander. It is significant that his opponents fear him on the green as well as elsewhere. Several seasons ago, before his ability was universally recognized, I was discussing with him his much talked of weakness in putting and tried to impress upon him the fact that, although he, of course, did not putt as well as he wished—who does?—he was by no means a poor putter. Several considerations often overlooked enter into this question.

Evans has never been conspicuously weaker than other stars in holing putts above six or eight feet in length. It is, however, maintained that he is weak on putts of six feet and under. Now, although I admit that he formerly missed a larger number of such putts than some of the other stars, this was partly due to the fact that he had a far larger number of such putts to make, and it is very doubtful whether even at that time his percentage of misses was actually greater than theirs.

HE'S THERE OFTENER.

When Chick has come up to the green with a half or full midiron shot he is usually well inside of his opponent. The latter probably has a long putt to make, and no one need be surprised if he runs up his approach putt dead and goes down in the next. Chick will perhaps have a putt of six feet or something over. Even if he misses he still has a chance for a half. And sometimes he misses, for nobody makes such putts regularly. The point is that few have a chance at many of them, and consequently the absolute number of misses of such putts is small. No doubt there is some player who is better than all others at such putts, but they occur so seldom that it would be hard to name the master in this line.

For a time many of Chick's friends were under the impression that he was a weak putter and frankly told him of it. This probably had a bad psychological effect on him. As he pictured the shot he saw the bill rimming the cup and missing the hole; and he played it so only too often as a consequence. He began to miss even the very short ones. At this time, too, it will be remembered, he was changing his style of play—a thing which no player can do without temporarily handicapping himself.

Chick used to fear his putter. This is true no longer, as will be recognized by all members of the large gallery that saw his thirteen foot putt, squaring the Red Cross match at Jackson park on Aug. 11.

In sizing his clubs today Chick would surely give his putter honorable mention.

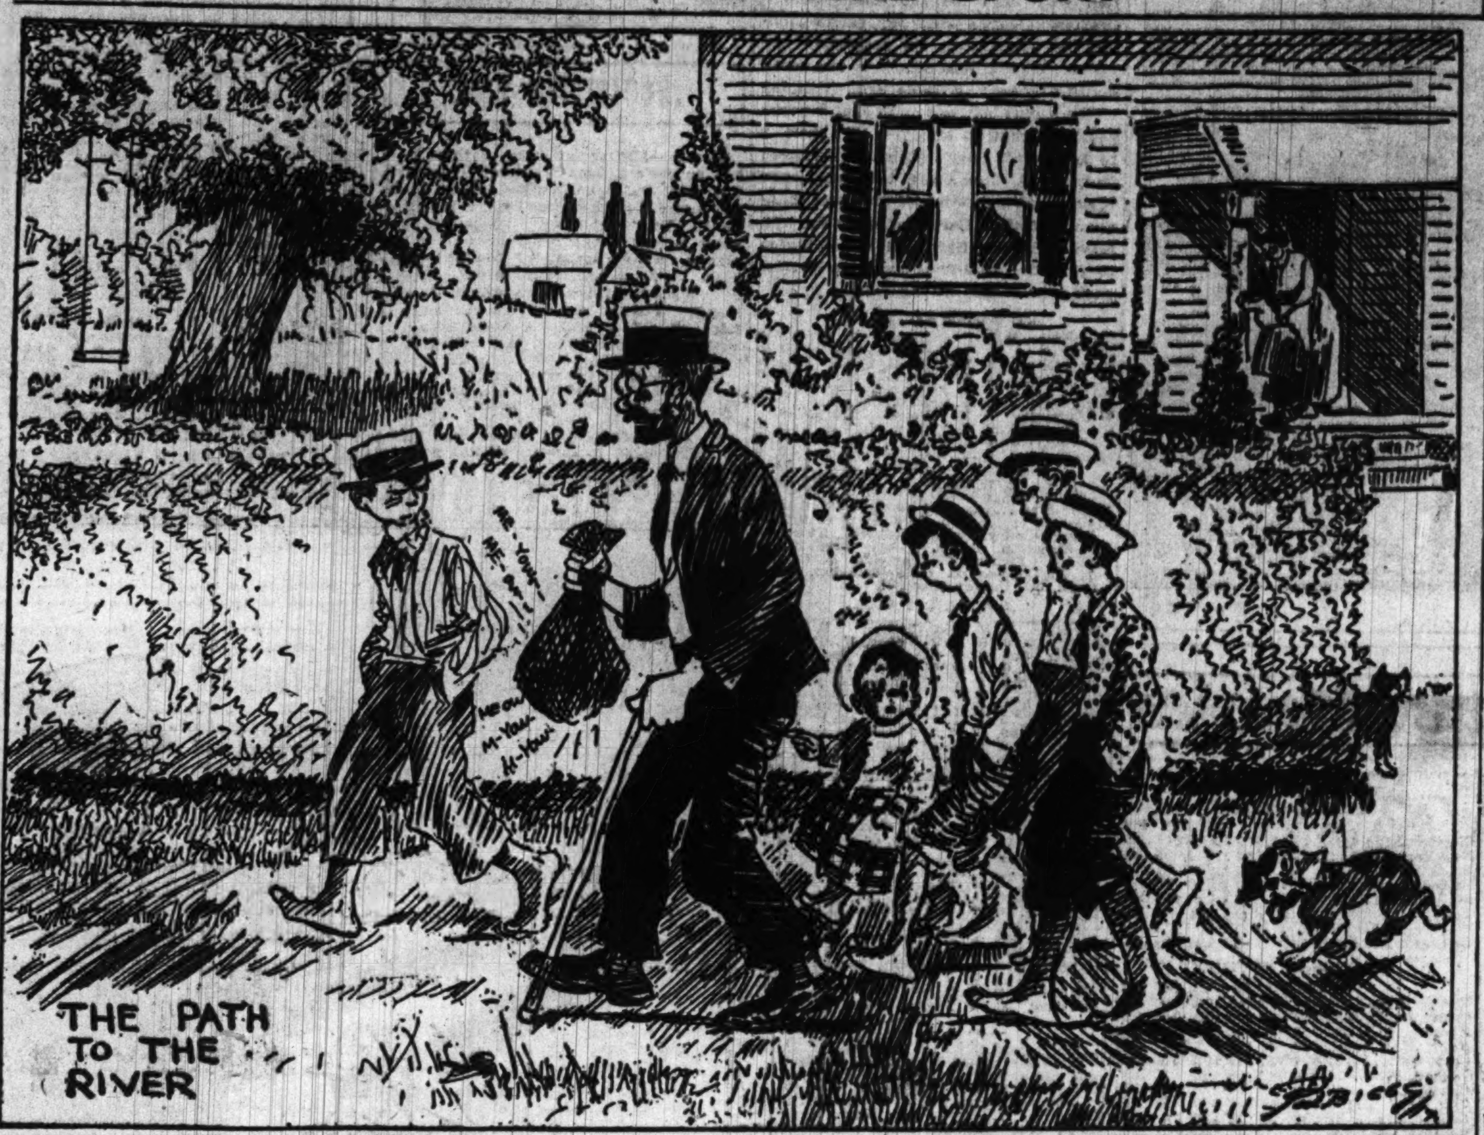
EAST AND WEST.

There has been considerable discussion of a Red Cross match to bring together eastern and western players. I doubt if any city would be able to take care of a tri-city team match, involving New York, Boston, and Chicago, with such stars as each of these cities can produce; for example, with New York represented by Jerry Travers and Oswald Kirkby, Boston by Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, and Chicago by Chick Evans and Forty-two Hole Sawyer.

Grantland Rice's suggestion of playing all the matches in New York is attractive, as the field from which the gallery would be drawn is greater and the receipts would doubtless be larger than in any other city. Ned Sawyer's suggestion has special appropriateness in view of the national significance of such an event. He contends that the Chevy Chase club of Washington is the place to play the whole series.

But Chick Evans' idea seems, after all, to combine more desirable features than either of the others. His plan is for a home and home match. This would be fairer to the players. It would also be fairer to the public, whose interest in the Red Cross matches has been a notable characteristic of the present season.

THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT



THE PATH TO THE RIVER
BRIGGS

YES, INDEED!

Hasn't This Very Same Thing Happened in Your Golf Game?

Some few years ago the name of Harry Burton was as familiar in semi-professional baseball circles of Chicago as that of Frank Isbell in the major leagues. He was the Apollo of the local first sackers, and may be recalled as holding down the initial bag for Pfeffer's White Rocks and the Spadings. He is now with a sporting goods firm, which accounts for his entry into golf when his once trusty wing no longer was able to shoot the ball around the bases.

Early one season Mr. Burton took advantage of a fine day and essayed a round at the Chicago Golf club. He had with him a Christmas present of a dozen balls. This stock of new globules he conserved until he reached the ninth hole, which calls for a pitch over a lake to the green on the far side.

Several lusty swings sent several shining globules on baptismal passages. Each shot added to the expense and gave an additional jolt to his pride. When eight balls had found watery graves discretion supplanted valor and he turned his caddy bag upside down. From his nicked and remade collection he gathered one of the 1911 models, which really needed a bath. Throwing it carelessly on the tee, he took a mighty swing and the old ball went sailing merrily over the graves of its aristocratic predecessors and landed on the green within putting distance of the hole.

Net Players Open Events at Skokie Country Club

First round matches were played yesterday in the invitation tennis tournament at Skokie Country club. B. W. Jones and J. R. McKnight, Chicago, prep school players, captured well played matches. Women's events and mixed doubles start today. Summaries:

Men's singles, first round—B. Jones, Keewatin academy, defeated J. Spitzberger, Skokie, 6-4, 6-3; J. R. McKnight, Senn high school, defeated J. Burnham, 6-3, 6-3; L. Jacobs, Skokie, defeated N. Hood, 6-3, 6-4; B. Page, Evanston, defeated B. Fleming, Skokie, 6-0, 6-3.

MURRAY'S SPEED WINS HIM TITLE IN TENNIS FINAL

Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 25.—Playing the aggressive, smashing game which he learned in California, R. Lindley Murray, now of Niagara Falls, N. Y., defeated Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston, 5-7, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3, in the final of the national patriotic tennis singles tournament at the West Side club today. Murray's victory over Niles was not achieved without a bitter battle.

Niles made his best showing in the first two sets. He won the first after deuce in games, and lost the second after even a longer and more grueling struggle. From that point on Murray forged rapidly ahead and scored game after game. In many respects Niles showed a more finished example of tennis play and stroking, but never rose to the height of power or the degree of endurance of his conqueror.

Careful Game Bothers Murray.

Early in the play the careful stroking and placing of Niles combined with his cleverly planned court strategy kept the former Californian on the run and the uncertainty with which Murray returned shots resulted in numerous errors. Murray, however, gradually lifted his game to full speed and power for which he is noted, and with this increased force came greater accuracy.

Eventually Niles was obliged to abandon his careful play and attempt to meet Murray at his own game. Immediately this point was reached, the end was in sight, for once Murray took command of the situation and the method of play, it was only a question of time before he won.

Miss Browne Defeats Molla.

Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles won an exhibition singles match from Miss Molla Bjurstedt, 4-6, 10-8, 6-3. The first set and two games of the second had been played yesterday when Friday's thunderstorm put a summary stop to play. The women stars began play with the score 15—love against Miss Bjurstedt in the third game of the second set.

The Norwegian girl evened the count in games several times, and the contest was featured by long sustained volleys in which they took turns forcing the pace. Miss Browne's accurate driving finally proved too strong for Miss Bjurstedt, who had to relax speed, dropping two sets.

Junior Title to Chuck Garland.

Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh captured the national junior championship. He defeated F. Bastian of Indianapolis, 6-2, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4. Garland's speed was superior to the Indiana boy's, and except for a siege of wildness in the third set his victory was clean cut.

STEARNS WINNER OF AGE LIMIT CUP

Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—E. G. Stearns with a card of 92—30—62 won the North Woodside cup presented by Gen. Strong for players of 49 and over at the Lake Geneva Country club today. Other leading scores were: E. K. Boisot, '90—19—71; B. Sturges, 84—10—74; H. J. Powers, 101—26—75; C. S. French, 95—19—76; L. A. Walton, 93—15—78; G. Taylor, 105—26—79; A. E. Wells, 113—30—83.

John J. Mitchell, 115—30—85; Tracy C. Drake, 104—19—85; L. A. Wylie, 105—19—86; E. F. Swift, 116—30—86; A. R. Jones, 119—30—89; L. A. Carton, 120—30—90; A. G. Cox, 122—30—92.

MILITARY DAY DRILLS TO BE ANNUAL FEATURE

"Military day must be a feature of the American league's season every year of its existence in peace or war hereafter," said President Comiskey of the White Sox yesterday. "I could not stand there and watch those soldiers and sailors marching without choking up, and many people who were at the park on Thursday and today told me the same thing. I believe it is a great help to make us all better citizens to see our soldier boys oftener."

TITLE TO ELECTRICS AS SHAWS LOSE, 4-2

Western Electrics, champions of the Commercial league, will represent Chicago in the national amateur baseball tournament. They won the right to carry the colors of this city in the national series and also the title of amateur champions of Chicago by defeating the Shaw Taxis, 4 to 2, at Garden City park.

Five thousand followers of the two teams crowded on the field, making ground rules necessary. A band from each concern kept up enthusiasm, playing patriotic music throughout.

Bermele Breaks Ankle.

An accident marred the afternoon. Joe Bermele of Shaws broke his left ankle while sliding into the home plate in the second and was rushed off to a hospital.

Dick Cantwell and Edward Corey were the opposing twirlers when the game started, and neither of them went the distance. The former was taken out at the end of the fifth with the score tied at 1 up on account of wildness. Corey lingered until two were gone in the eighth, Black taking his place and fanning the only man that faced him. Tom McGuire took up the hurling where Cantwell left off and except for a rally in the ninth held the Shaws in check. McGuire was accused by his opponents of using an emery ball, and for that reason a protest has been filed with the president of the association.

Shaws Score in Second.

The Shaws scored in the second. Dann, first up, was hit. On Bermele's sacrifice Evans threw wild to first, and when Jamieson retrieved the ball he made a wild throw to third, trying to get Bermele, and Dann went home. Bermele was cut down at the plate.

The Westerns evened the count in their half of the inning on a triple by Swanson and a sacrifice fly by Englehardt. Neither side was able to count again until the seventh, when the Electrics scored one on a single by Jamieson, a sacrifice by Swanson, and a wild throw by Walliser. In the next session they made the game certain by getting to Corey for three hits, which included a triple by Rehor. Score:

RED HOSE CHASE ON HEELS OF SOX, BEATING BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—Boston's Red Sox and St. Louis went through the competitive military drill under the supervision of Lieut. Col. Raymond Sheldon, U. S. A., before the game today. The army officer has inspected six clubs in three cities in the west, and his visit here concluded his tour. The winner of the $500 prize offered for the best drilled team is expected to be announced Monday or Tuesday.

Boston won the ball game, 3 to 2. The visitors hit Koob hard during his short stay on the mound and scored two runs before he was replaced by Rogers in the second inning. Foster also was hit hard in spots and gave seven bases on balls, but tightened up several times when the locals were in a position to score. Score:

Cleveland, O., Aug. 25.—Cleveland's winning streak was broken when New York won, 3 to 0. It was the first time Cleveland had been shut out in several weeks. Fisher outpitched Coveleskie, although the latter struck out eight men and allowed only four hits in eight innings. New York made three of the four hits count. Score:

CUBS BEATEN IN TWO GAMES WITH GIANTS

Drop First, 6-1, and Lose Second in the Ninth, 2 to 1.

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Slim Sallee and Ferd Schupp, two of John McGraw's leading pitchers, put the skids under the Cubs in the double header here this afternoon on the Polo grounds. The Giants won both events, taking the first 6 to 1, and the second 2 to 1. Sallee toiled in the opener and must have carried a horseshoe for all the breaks were in his favor. Schupp twirled with more skill in the second and won on his merits.

After Nick Carter was beaten Manager Mitchell was compelled to call on Claude Hendrix, although he complained of a lame knee. Hendrix pitched well enough, but wildness brought on his defeat. He hit Herzog in the sixth and Fletcher in the ninth and both developed into the runs that won for the Giants.

Doyle Gets Silverware.

This was supposed to have been Larry Doyle day, but it was more of a Giants day judging from the success they had. Doyle got out of a sick bed to come out to the park to let his friends have a last look at him this year. He put on a uniform and during the intermission between games was presented with a beautiful silver tea set. He was given a rousing cheer by the fans after Joe Humphreys, a local prize fight announcer, shouted what was to be given the Cub captain.

The Cubs were not subdued in the opener without putting up a bitter fight. They batted Sallee vigorously enough to win any ordinary game, but luck was against them. They accumulated ten hits and had almost as many taken from them by remarkable fielding perpetrated by Fletcher, Zimmerman, and Holke.

No Luck for Mr. Carter.

Carter had no such good fortune. Everything the Giants hit seemed to go safe. They rapped him for fourteen blows, bunching eight of them in the second and seventh frames for their six tallies.

In the second combat the Cubs had six hits off Schupp in eight innings and one of these, a two bagger by Fred Merkle, was responsible for the one run. Merkle completed the circuit on two sacrifice plays, a bunt and a fly.

This one run advantage held until the sixth, when Herzog turned his trick of putting his arm in front of a pitch inside. Umpire Rigler permitted it. Kauff followed with a sharp single to center on which Herzog went to third, whence he counted the tying run on an out.

Break Comes in Ninth.

Hendrix's lack of control brought defeat in the ninth. He hit Fletcher with the first ball pitched. Robertson singled and Holke beat out a bunt when an effort was made to make a force play at third. Douglas was called in and the first pitch shot through Elliott's glove to the stand, letting Fletcher trot home with the winning tally.

Notes

New York today.

The Yankees are booked for three games here.

The White Sox executed five stolen bases and drew three passes. That is an unusual amount of liberty to take when Johnson is on the slab.

The White Sox now have won thirteen games from the Senators and lost six to them this year. Griffith's men have won only one out of eleven games played here.

Col. Ruppert, part owner of the Yankees, Business Manager Sparrow, and several of the scribes traveling with the team came to Chicago yesterday in time to grace Griffith day with their presence.

Nick Altrock staged his inimitable shadow boxing and wrestling exhibit during the brief wait while the two pitchers were warming up after the feature stuff was finished. He kept the big crowd in a roar.

Liebold made a great catch of a drive from Leonard's bat in the far corner of the lot in the second inning, then picked a biff from Menoskey out of the sun in the sixth. He did not see the latter hit until just in time to stab it.

The musicians made the crowd stand up in the wrong half of the seventh inning by playing the national anthem in the first half, but it did not bring Washington any luck, and the Sox cinched the game in the second half just the same.

Schalk, Collins, and Risberg worked the play to kill a double steal to perfection in the seventh. Schalk's throw could have been pulled down by Collins if the runner had stirred off third, but, as he didn't, Collins let it go through and it was right on the base for Risberg to catch and tag the man coming from first.

Notes

New York, Aug. 24.—The Cubs have an off day tomorrow. The exhibition game with Brooklyn has been cancelled. On Monday they begin their final series with the Dodgers.

Heine Zimmerman liked Carter's style of pitching. Nick kept the balls up high on him and he cracked them to left field like a shot for four raps.

Manager Mitchell had a row with Umpire Rigler when he let Herzog stick his arm in front of a pitched ball in the sixth inning. That trick gave the Giants their first run of the second contest.

Leslie Mann tried to rob Zimmerman of a hit in the opener by leaping up and against the fence for his drive. Mann's arm and shoulder were severely bruised by the contact.

Flack's peg to the plate prevented the Giants' winning the second game in the eighth. Burns was on third and Herzog on second with none out when Max captured Kauff's fly and then nailed Burns at the plate.

The Cubs played poorly in the ninth inning of the last combat. Deal should have taken Holke's bunt when he saw it was on the foul line and that there was no chance for a play at third. He raced back to the bag and a hit was recorded.

SCHALK EXEMPT, BOARD RULES

Litchfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The White Sox will not lose Ray Schalk, their great catcher, in the draft. The exemption board at Hillsboro today exempted him on the grounds of dependency. Schalk was examined at Cleveland.

ARMY PAGEANT FEATURES TILT WITH SENATORS

Three Tallies in 7th Clinch Victory; Faber Stars.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Red Faber came out of a pitchers' battle with Walter Johnson victorious by a score of 4 to 1 yesterday in the presence of more than 28,000 U. S. soldiers, sailors, and civilians who gathered at Comiskey park to celebrate Clark Griffith day.

Faber held the Senators to five hits and his support was flawless until the ninth inning.

The Senators erred frequently and Johnson was a bit wild, an unusual thing for him. The Sox scored their first run on an error and a wild pitch in the fourth. They got their start in the seventh on another error and batted home three runs with the aid of a double steal.

With one down in the ninth, the Senators touched Faber for two hits and scored a run on a boot by Leibold and a long fly.

Military Drill Feature.

The military, while not in as great force as on Thursday, was made a more elaborate feature of the day. For an hour and a half before game time the field was a moving picture of khaki. Three regiments of infantry, one of artillery, two companies of naval volunteers and one field hospital corps passed in review before the fans and the officers.

In the order of their reviewal the units were Second Illinois infantry, Col. Garrity, with band; Eighth Illinois infantry, Col. Dennison, with band; naval volunteers from Grant park, Capt. Evers, with band; field hospital corps with buglers; Second Illinois field artillery, Col. Forsman, with band; Seventh Illinois infantry, Col. Moriarity, with band.

At the conclusion of the review a picked company of the Second infantry gave an exhibition drill on the field, concluding with the full series of setting up exercises to music by their band. This was followed by a similar exhibition drill by the students of the Glenwood Training school with their band. The youngsters, who averaged 12 years old, gave the guardsmen a tough battle for excellence in drilling and were applauded heartily.

Negro Troops Cheered.

The Eighth regiment had seven companies on hand, all their members who are not in Houston. The colored soldiers were given a remarkably warm welcome by the spectators and the other soldiers in recognition of the loyalty of their comrades during the Houston riots.

The Seventh and Eighth regiment bands occupied adjoining sections of the stand and several times joined forces by playing marches in unison, first under one leader and then the other. With the Second artillery band to lead them the White Sox and Senators marched out and raised the Stars and Stripes while everybody stood at attention.

"Griff" Presents Outfits.

Following the flag raising came the presentation of baseball outfits to the soldiers and sailors by Manager Griffith of the Senators, who originated the idea of supplying them with means to amuse themselves in camp and back of the trenches.

To each regiment Griffith personally presented with his best wishes two complete outfits. Each outfit included mask and pad for catcher, gloves for all positions, six dozen baseballs, a dozen bats and three bases.

A detachment from each military unit present passed before Griffith at the home plate and carried away the souvenirs of a great day for them, for Chicago, and the American league.

From Baseball Fans.

In a brief speech Manager Griffith informed the representatives of each unit that they were receiving the gift from the baseball fans of the country, who had made it possible for him to help equip them with the means of relieving the burden they had voluntarily accepted.

The diamond combat was a tight fit for seven innings. In that time the Rowlands made only two hits off Johnson, but were handed a run in the fourth without the aid of a swat. Collins was given a life at second on a wild throw by Morgan. Jackson sacrificed Eddie to third, and he scored on a wild pitch. Felsch popped out, but Gandil reached first on Shanks' wild throw, only to be forced out by Risberg.

Rice Wastes Triple.

The Senators did not come even close to scoring till the seventh. Then Rice tore off a three bagger to left center, but there were two out. Faber passed Leonard; then the Sox broke up an attempted double steal, nailing Leonard at second.

In the home half Risberg lived on a wild chuck by Leonard. Schalk flied out, but Farber sacrificed. Leibold pulled a double into right, scoring Risberg. McMullin beat out a roller to short, and Collins singled to right, scoring Leibold. McMullin made third on the swat and scored on a double steal started by Collins.

With one down in the ninth, Menoskey and Shanks singled and the former made third when Leibold fumbled the latter's swat. A long fly by Milan let Menoskey register.

BENDER BLANKS REDS AS MORANS TAKE 2 COMBATS

Indian Lands Fifth in Row—First Game Goes Ten Rounds, 4 to 3.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25.—Philadelphia made a clean sweep of the series with Cincinnati by again winning a double header, 4 to 3 and 3 to 0. In the ninth of the first Schulte, a pinch hitter, singled and sent in Niehoff with the tying run. In the tenth Philadelphia filled the bases with one out. Killifer's bunt was allowed to roll and hit third base, scoring the winning run.

Bender pitched his fifth straight victory when he outwirled Schneider in the second game. Scores:

DR. SENN WINNER OF ANNUAL HANDICAP AT LINCOLN PARK TRAPS

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Shooting from the sixteen yard rise and breaking 97 targets out of 100, Dr. William Senn, local amateur, won the Lincoln handicap, one of the annual feature races at the Lincoln Park Gun club. W. N. Richards, who also shot from sixteen yards, was second with 96. W. S. Duvall and B. L. Kammerer tied for third with totals of 95.

Mrs. A. H. Winkler, one of the leading women shooters in the recent Grand American handicap, was high in the women's event. She killed 91 birds from the sixteen yard mark. Mrs. H. C. Snodgrass and Mrs. H. Almert tied for second place with scores of 87.

In the professional shoot Bart Lewis, who was set back to twenty yards, broke 99 pigeons. Charles Young, who stood on the same mark, was second with 96 and C. C. Emery was third with a 95 from the sixteen yard rise. A number of the shooters left last night for Toronto to take part in the Canadian championship this week. Scores:

Plan to Supply Soldiers with Baseball Uniforms

A movement has been started to supplement the Griffith ball and bat fund by equipping each regiment with two sets of baseball uniforms to save their khaki clothes. The Woodland Bards, White Sox rooters, headed the subscription list after yesterday's game by donating the price of two sets of baseball togs for soldier nines.

Proud Papa Tells Great Story About His Charley

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 25.—Charley White—youthful Charley and not the boxer—who has lived here all the two years of his life, can chin himself fifteen times by using both hands and eight times by using one, according to claims of his trainer—Papa White. His training started at the age of ninety ... his parents say.

THREE TEAMS IN FINAL TILTS FOR CRAFTSMEN FLAG

Mystic Star, Carnation, and Constellation Win Division Titles.

Mystic Star, Carnation, and Constellation went into the semi-finals in the Craftsmen league yesterday, each clinching the pennant in its respective division. Mystic Star copped in the south division by beating Boulevard, champion of the league last year, 6 to 5, at Normal park. Carnation knocked off Circle, 2 to 1, at Oak Park. Constellation won from D. C. Cregiers, 8 to 5, at Logan square. At a meeting of the three managers last night Carnation drew the bye, leaving Mystic Star and Constellation to play the semi-final game at Normal park next Saturday. Scores:

BOXING BARRED; SWITCH TO MAT

Boxing was handed another knockout blow by the park authorities yesterday when the south park powers opined that the Third Field Hospital corps could get along without the padded mitts. Announcement that ring fights would be held by the Sammies in the Grant park arena served to draw some 5,000 spectators, more than half of them women. They were rewarded by seeing several spirited wrestling bouts, which were offered as a substitute for the fighters.

Three military bands, song boosters, dancers, and Allen Rowe, the latter being the corps' official money getter for the company fund, entertained the crowd also, Rowe carrying off the honors in his successful campaign for a $200 fund.

Among the wrestling bouts carded, all of which went to draws after ten minutes' work, were the following: Ben Reuben and Sam Varron, Jack Gruppel and Herbert Singer, Morris Fleishman and Max Gans, Leo Kallis and Charles Geller, Louis Schlossberg and Morris Meyer, and Sam Davidson and Martin Girsch.

The card was given to swell the company's finances and incidentally boost recruiting for the One Hundred and Forty-ninth field artillery.

Christensen to Do Many Things in Sixty Minutes

Chris Christensen of the Danish American A. C. will attempt to establish an American record today at Grant park. He will endeavor to ride a bicycle one mile, walk one mile, run one mile, row one mile, swim one mile, and complete the events in less than an hour. The bicycle, running, and walking events will be held at the foot of Monroe street, the rowing race from the Sportsmen's club at the foot of Randolph street, and the swim in the lake front basin. Christensen will start his endurance exhibition at 2 o'clock.

Ogden Park Track Squad Takes South Parks Title

Athletes representing Ogden park won the outdoor track and field championships of the south parks system at Ogden park with 68 points. Hardin performers were second with 40 points and Hamilton park third with 35. The event was decided in two divisions—novice and classified—but the points in each class counted as a team total. Other parks to score points were: Mark White square, 31; Palmer park, 26; Bessemer park, 22; Cornell square, 14; Armour square, 6; Fuller park, 3.

INQUISITIVE FANS

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In last Sunday's Tribune there was a question that said: "If a ball strikes foul and rolls fair before it reaches third base, is it foul or fair?" Your answer was, "It is fair, provided it was not touched by one of the players on foul ground." You had better guess again, as you are all wrong. Once a ball strikes foul it is foul, regardless of where it rolls. I think you got the rule about a fair ball rolling foul mixed up with this question. Hoping to see your correction in The Tribune soon. ANONYMOUS.

The original answer was correct. "Anonymous" needs to read the rules, particularly rule 44. Note the word "settles."

The Foremost Military Clothing Store in America

THE qualities of leadership obtain under all conditions. As this institution, the world's largest clothing store, has been first in times of peace, so it is first in war times, and only because it is first to serve the interests of its patrons. This applies specifically to our service for military men at the present time.

AT the outbreak of the war, we bent all our energies and directed our influence and resources toward the establishment of a superior military service. Tremendous stocks of uniforms, hats, puttees, shoes, and other requirements for officers and privates in all branches of the service have been assembled.

OUR usual standards of fine workmanship, dependable materials, intelligent service, always at lower prices, are distinctly evident in our Military Shop.

Uniforms for privates and student officers, $7 to $16.
Uniforms for officers, $15 to $50.
Overcoats for officers, $30 to $75.

ATHLETES TAKEN INTO INFANTRY

The company of the new Eleventh infantry, organized by Capt. Frank T. Caspers, commonly known as the "athletic company," was mustered into service last night at the regimental headquarters, 124 West Adams street.

Bill Feeney, basketball star of the Illinois Athletic club, announces that the company can still take care of from twelve to fifteen more recruits and is desirous of hearing from amateur athletes who may wish to join.

The regiment will occupy the new armory of the Second infantry after the latter's departure for Houston, Tex. The armory has a completely equipped gymnasium, forty shower baths in the basement, and a fine indoor running track. Feeney wishes to secure a sufficient number of athletes to form the nucleus of a regimental athletic association. Jimmy Ryan, the featherweight boxer, is a recent recruit.

Bikers to Race 20 Miles in West Park Sept. 16

The Franklin Skating and Bicycle club will hold a twenty mile outdoor race around the Humboldt park inner drive Sept. 16. Thirty-one prizes have been offered, and as the entry list swells others will be put up. Local bike organizations have promised the competition of their best racers. Entries are obtainable from Julian T. Fitzgerald, Franklin club, 2812 West North avenue, or Otto Krejci, 910 Fulton street.

C. EVANS FALLS ILL IN RED CROSS MATCH; NOW HE'S IMPROVED

Chick Evans, national amateur and open champion, who has done yeoman work in raising funds for the Red Cross, became a candidate for medical help from that organization yesterday. The Edgewater star was billed to play with Lieut. Fraser Hale of Skokie against Lieut. Powell Griffitts and Professional Bob McNulty in a four ball match for the benefit of the Red Cross at the La Grange club.

Chick, who had spent the night at the Chicago Golf club, was not feeling well in the morning, but rather than disappoint the gallery he made the trip to La Grange. His team was 3 up at the thirteenth hole, a comfortable lead. Inside Chick felt uncomfortable, but his partner was Hale and they halved the hole. At that point the champion was forced to retire.

From a scientific source it was learned Evans was suffering from an attack of ptomaine alkaloids. Whether these were the result of partaking of some of Wheaton's home grown vegetables or whether the molecules were acquired in transit on the third rail line to Wheaton was not determined.

Chick returned home and last night was resting easily.

Evanston.

Three matches were played in the club championship series at Evanston yesterday. C. D. Marsh defeated D. Mercer, 1 up; E. H. Evans defeated H. E. Hedberg, 4 and 3; W. R. Thomas defeated C. E. Fargo, 1 up. W. H. Meyst and R. S. Greifen postponed their match.

Sinai	51	Bellfus Park	5
Larrabee Y. M. C. A.	10	Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A.	2
Division St. Y. M. C. A.	8	Sherman Park	1

Sinai Social center swimmers walked off with the A. A. F. swimming championship in the big outdoor pool in Sherman park. The championship and secondary division points piled up by the south side natators reached 91, nearly twice the total of all other teams combined. Central Y. M. C. A. was far behind for second place with 19 points. Sinai juniors counted 51 points, winning as easily.

Three records were smashed during the meet. Blumenthal of Sinai set the first mark with a dive of 55 feet in the junior plunge, two feet farther than the old record. Leahy of Sinai clipped eight seconds off the secondary 220 yard swim record, paddling the distance in 3:02 2-5. Strauss made it three straight for Sinai by winding up the day with a new record of 1:22 in the championship 100 yard breast stroke.

Over 200 swimmers took part in the meet, but no aggregation came near giving Sinai a fight, for with Moss, Raphael, Strauss and Leahy scoring in almost every event the Social center team had a cinch. Trailhill of the Central Y. M. C. A., Mueller of Larrabee Y. M. C. A., and Johnson of the Sixth regiment from Springfield were the only other prominent scorers. Three thousand spectators watched the program.

PRIZE TO M'DERMOTT IN DETROIT CONTEST; BUDDY WALLEN THIRD

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Swimming in his usual crafty style, Michael (Turk) McDermott carried the colors of the Illinois Athletic club to victory in the National A. A. U. long distance swim in the Detroit river from a field of five.

Johnny Metzger of Detroit "Y" was second and William (Buddy) Wallen of the Hamilton club of Chicago was third. Beiserfeld of St. Louis, Brandau of Detroit "Y," and Kendall, the Canadian swimmer, finished far behind.

McDermott lived up to his reputation. He simply allowed Wallen to burn himself out by rapid work, while he took matters easy until the final mile. Wallen led at this point, but McDermott made a great sprint and passed his fellow townsman. He soon increased his lead to 100 yards, which he held to the finish without any trouble. His time for the five miles was 1:44:45.

SPEED RECORD BY MISS DETROIT II.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 25.—Miss Detroit II., driven by Gar Wood of Detroit, Mich., established what was officially announced as a new world's record by winning the first of a series of three thirty mile races for the gold challenge cup of the American Power Boat association with an average speed of 50.7 miles per hour. The former record of 50.4 was made by Baby Speed Demon at the Lake George, N. Y., regatta in 1914.

Miss Minneapolis, present holder of the challenge cup, was delayed 3:01 on the start because of striking a floating log. The craft was not badly damaged. Its average for the thirty miles was 40.6 miles per hour. Hawkeye II., the only other boat to start, covered the distance at an average speed of 16.5 miles. Shortly after the start she struck a log and a new propeller had to be installed.

The fastest lap was traveled by Miss Detroit at a 53 m. p. h. average. Miss Minneapolis' best lap was 45.7 miles per hour. Damages sustained by Whip-Po'-Will, Jr., in trial spins could not be repaired in time for today's race.

SWIM MEET OFF; 'SEA TOO ROUGH

Because of the heavy sea the Central A. A. U. swimming championships scheduled to take place yesterday at the South Shore Country club were postponed until tomorrow. There will be races for men and women. The first event will start at 3 o'clock.

Roque Players Conclude Their National Tourney

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 25.—The national roque tournament ended today. The medal winners were: First division, J. C. Kirk, Philadelphia, who is national champion; Gerald Brassill, Norwich, Conn., second. Second division, the Rev. R. C. Zartmann, Wilmington, Del.; C. M. Thompson, Willimantic, Conn., second. Third division, Irving Miner, East Greenwich, R. I.; F. M. Pratt, Willimantic, Conn., second.

J. P. Net Tourney Sept. 1.

The Jackson Park Tennis club will hold its second annual all comers' tournament starting Sept. 1 on both clay and grass courts. Play will be for the championship Gren Gooder trophy, put up by the South Side Tennis club player. Entries close Aug. 30 with L. H. Goldbright of 6639 Greenwood avenue. Phone Blackstone 135. Play will be in men's singles and doubles.

Boxer Passes Army Test.

Lockport, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Jimmy Duffy, local lightweight boxer, today passed the national army physical examination. He claimed exemption on the ground of being married.

PAM SPLASHES WAY TO VICTORY IN RACE FOR LIPTON TROPHY

BY JOHN DE LONG.

Commodore H. A. Parsons' Pam of the Cleveland Yacht club again showed the way to the other three contenders in the sail over of the second race yesterday. The smart little class R racer from Lake Erie, which on Friday had landed in first position and gone into a tie with Mebleh, the other Cleveland yacht, was forced to do its work all over again when the judges, at their meeting yesterday morning, decided the contest to have been "no race."

As a result the owners and skippers of Sari and Otter, the two Chicago boats, were propitiated, while Owner Parsons and Skipper Power of Pam were sportsmanlike enough to take their medicine and agree to throw their hard earned race into the discard.

Mistake in Starting Time.

The judges, in making their decision, explained that the loss of the leeward stakeboat, coupled with the fact that a mistake in the time of firing the starting gun had been made, justified them in throwing out Friday's race and extending the series to today, when the third and final contest is to be sailed.

The Chicago boats again showed their inability to beat the visitors. Commodore Worthington's Mebleh, flying the Cleveland Yacht club burgee, finished second to Pam, with Samuel Dauchy's Sari of the Lincoln Park Yacht club third and C. A. Tilt's Otter of the same organization fourth.

Margin of Victory Wider.

Yesterday's race, while interesting, was not as close as the others, which were featured by seesaw contests between Pam and Mebleh, with the local entries close on their sterns. The race was a windward and leeward affair in which Pam took the lead at the start and maintained it throughout. The wind was what we hardy old salts call a piping one and blew at the rate of about twenty miles an hour. At the start it was west by south, but toward the finish it veered to west-northwest. There was a heavy northeast ground swell, a hangover of Mother Nature's debauch of the previous day. Summaries:

	First buoy.	Second buoy.	Third buoy.	Finish.

WISE MANAGER HE WHO TOSSES UP THE SPONGE

Many a Boxer Saved by Act of His Guide to Box Another Day.

BY RAY PEARSON.

There's an interesting topic concerning pugilism that seems to have been untouched by the critics who dwell in print on news of the sport. That concerns the business of towel tossing by which many a scrapper has escaped a knockout. There are those who will defend the managers who toss the towel or sponge into the ring to save their boxers, while there are others, but they are in the minority, who strongly contend that such an act is not the proper thing.

The rise of Benny Leonard of New York to the lightweight championship was gained by leaps and bounds, and in two of his three most important bouts he was acclaimed the victor when the towel was thrown into the ring. It was this that prompted us to write on towel tossing. It is necessary to go back to Leonard's bout with Ever Hammer, the bristling blonde tiger of Chicago, and tell some of the essential facts to give the fans an idea of whether or not a towel should be tossed into the ring.

Hammer In for Lacing.

Leonard and Hammer were scheduled to go fifteen rounds and even before the bout it appeared a foregone conclusion that the Chicago Swede was in for a lacing and stood a good chance of being knocked out by the New Yorker who had been showing great form, especially in the business of hitting. The fact that Hammer fights openly—meaning that he has practically no defense—made it look soft for Leonard, but Hammer, using his aggressive crowding tactics which have been responsible for all of his success, sprung a surprise by holding Benny off for eight rounds.

However, Hammer's style of milling is wearisome, and after the eighth Leonard, heady, clever, and carrying the punch, began to do damage. He knocked Ever down with one of those little short right hand jolts in the ninth, and from that time until the twelfth handed out an unmerciful lacing to the Swede. In the twelfth he had Hammer on the canvas and about gone when Kid Howard, Ever's manager, jumped into the ring with a towel in his hand, ending the uneven contest.

Wise Ones Favor Howard.

Of course, some folks hollered at Howard's action, but to the wise fish of the game it was plainly evident that the manager did the right thing.

"What good would it do to allow Hammer to take more beating and be knocked out?" That's the question that must be put to those who object to a manager seeing his boxer badly damaged and perhaps ruined for future success in the ring. There have been any number of boxers who might have got somewhere in the game had not the man in their corner allowed them to go along taking a beating when there wasn't one chance in a thousand of their turning the tide for victory. Many a boxer has taken the gaff and never been any good as a ringster afterward. So Howard's action certainly seems to have been justified. He still has a perfectly good fighter in Hammer, and as long as he uses the same care he used when Ever fought Leonard and found him overmatched he is likely to keep him near the top among the lightweights, and that also means that he will be a money earner.

Kilbane's Manager Saves Him.

That's one of the examples that might be cited in connection with Leonard's successes. The other was more recent, when Leonard fought Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane at Philadelphia. This pair of champions was billed to go six rounds, and before the clash it was believed that Kilbane's wonderful cleverness and cool headedness would enable him to go the limit. But he wasn't, for Leonard's superior hitting power and a big pull in the weights made it a one sided contest from the first tap of the gong. It took the lightweight champion less than three rounds to put Kilbane on the canvas after he had handed the featherweight titleholder a lot of punishment. And, seeing Kilbane outfought, knocked down, and a setup for a knockout, Jimmy Dunn, Kilbane's manager, tossed the towel into the ring. That enabled Kilbane to escape further punishment, for he was not damaged to such an extent that he will be handicapped in future bouts.

Perhaps the hardest roasting that Dunn received for his act came from Kilbane, who said his manager acted too hastily and was overscared by the knockdown. Of course, that was a good alibi for Johnny, but there are a lot of folks who believe that right down in Kilbane's heart he isn't a bit angry with his manager.

GIBBONS OFFERS TO AID RED CROSS

Eddie Kane, manager of Mike Gibbons, one of the cleverest boxers of the day, arrived here yesterday and asserted Mike is willing to do his share for the Red Cross. Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight, is expected to arrive in this country soon. Kane says Gibbons is willing to donate his services gratis for a series of exhibitions with Carpentier, 50 per cent of the receipts to go to the American Red Cross and the rest to the French Red Cross. Kane suggests a tour of from thirty to forty days, to include the principal cities of the country.

According to Kane, such a tour between two of the world's greatest boxers should attract enormous gates. He believes $200,000 can be raised if the exhibitions are supported by the boxing fraternity.

Carpentier's arrangements are not known. He is expected almost any time. If he comes it is practically certain he will do his bit to aid the Red Cross in this and his home country. Gibbons will be here Thursday on his way to Terre Haute, Ind., to meet Jack Dillon on Labor day.

Patsy Cline Beats Lustig.

New York, Aug. 25.—Irish Patsy Cline of this city outfought Johnny Lustig, also of New York, in every round of a hard ten round bout. Cline weighed 135 pounds and his opponent 136.

Woods and Waters by LARRY ST. JOHN

A STRIKE IN THE DARK.

No, this is not a mellerdrammer, even if the title sounds that way. This has to do with midseason fishing, and particularly with casting at night.

When the warm weather comes to stay the bass and pickerel desert the shallows and loaf in the deep holes in the daytime. 'Long about dusk they come forth to feed, and this is just the time the inexpert and inert anglers are pulling for home, wondering why the fishing is so poor. Usually they have captured nothing more than a peeled nose, and often, under such circumstances, they make remarks about no fish being in Dam lake, although that may not be the lake they are fishing at all.

Casting is not very productive at this time of the year, as a rule, except on those rare days that are both cloudy and breezy, and the best system right now is to troll or drift during the day, with minnows for bait, in the hope of picking up some pike, pickerel, and a stray bass or so.

Pike will be found near the spring holes, pickerel in the weeds in the deepest part of the lake that offers any cover, and bass scattered from some place to breakfast.

On clear lakes the stunt known as drifting often saves the day. One simply uses a long line, a gut leader, and a big gob o' worms, and drifts with the wind, especially near the shelf or where the bottom drops off. On weedy lakes try first the outer edge of the weed bed that is the deepest water; our choice then for bait would be a frog. If these stunts fail, then still fish for blue gills or other li'l fellers, but be sure and get in early for supper [evening meal—called dinnah in Evingston], so as to get an early start on the evening fishing.

The rig for night casting must be sturdy—nix on the light tackle stuff. Our favorite rod for this work is a stiff one of bamboo, five feet in length, and we use a line testing sixteen pounds or better.

Casting at night is supposed to be quite a trick, but after watching a number of beginners at work both before and after dark we are convinced that night casting is easier—much easier—than daylight casting. The reason, as we have reasoned it, is that the caster concentrates on his thumbing and cannot see his lure traveling in the air. This eliminates the temptation to let it go just a wee bit farther, which is the daddy of most back lashes.

"The same lures one uses for casting in the daytime will do at night—wobblers, wooden floaters, pork chunks or strips, spinner and fly. Whether or not the luminous baits have any special merit we cannot say—we have caught some good fish with them, however.

We have also made some killings at night with a fly rod using rather large flies which need not necessarily be white as some seem to believe. In fact, the best fly fishing at night we ever had was when we used a black gnat. A coachman, with its dark body and white wings, makes a good night fly.

Take a flash light with you, or at least a common lantern, but first make sure what the laws of the state you happen to be fishing in have to say on lights. A light of some kind, however, will be a big help in landing your fish, unsnarling back lashes, and other "fussing around" that some people find necessary when they get into a boat. Sometimes a little mosquito dope of some kind will be found useful.

Another necessary thing is silence. The rattling of an oar or the shuffling of feet on the bottom of the boat carry an immense distance over the water at night. Remember it is big fish you are after, as the old boys usually do most of their feeding after sun down—that's how they got to be old boys—and they are scary cusses.

Finally, be sure and look over the waters you are going to fish while it is still daylight and fix firmly in your mind the locations of fallen trees and other snags. Otherwise your strike in the dark may result in the tragedy of a broken tip, broken line, or a lost fish—and most of us will make affidavit to the fact that the fish that escape us in the dark are always the grand daddy of 'em all!

RYAN STILL BEST IN WEIGHT EVENT

New York, Aug. 25.—P. J. Ryan, national champion hammer thrower, won two events at the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic union championship games. George Bronder, another national title holder, was beaten in the javelin throw, for which he holds the record. P. C. Lincoln Jr., who won the javelin, and Bronder will go to St. Louis for the National A. A. U. championships, which will take place there a week hence. Experts Plan to Teach Soldiers Boxing Sport

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—An advisory committee consisting of James J. Corbett, Norman Selby (Kid McCoy), Mike Donovan, Robert Edgren and Richard Melligan of Amherst, Mass., will confer at Princeton, N. J., Monday morning with Professor Joseph E. Raycourt of the Princeton university faculty to devise a program for boxing instruction at the various military training camps. The committee on training camp activities asked these boxing experts to serve.

McCarthy Beats Joe Rivers.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 25.—Johnny McCarthy was awarded the decision over Joe Rivers in their four round bout last night. Many fans thought it should have been a draw.

Big Field for Bike Race.

Close to 200 entries are expected in the fifteen mile handicap bicycle race to be held in connection with the Ragen A. C. picnic at Calumet Grove, Blue Island, on Sept. 2. Phil Elwell, 56 West Washington street, is receiving entries.

MISS VOORHEES WINS 4 MATCHES AND TWO TITLES

Takes Singles and Helps Capture Doubles with Miss Neely.

FINAL MATCHES TODAY.

Men's Doubles—Hayes and Burdick vs. Green and Ketchum, 1:30 o'clock.

Men's Singles—Hayes vs. Burdick, 3 o'clock.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Interest in the Edgewater beach invitation tennis tournament mainly revolved around the racquet triumphs of Miss Mary Katherine Voorhees of Evanston yesterday. Miss Voorhees played in four matches. She won every one. She landed the championship in women's singles, and was one of the championship pair in women's doubles. In mixed doubles she and Walter T. Hayes reached an advanced round.

Miss Voorhees began her strenuous day at 11 o'clock in the morning, beating Western Women's Patriotic Champion Miss Carrie B. Neely in a protracted semi-final match, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4. The former Northwestern co-ed's lucky game carried her to victory after she had dropped the first set.

Defeat Miss Leighton.

In the singles final, in the afternoon, Miss Voorhees defeated Miss Marian Leighton in the first set, 6—0, but had a real battle in the second, 6—4. Miss Voorhees' coolness kept her on the way to victory, after the second was tied, 4 all. She played to Miss Leighton's backhand regularly and maneuvered so as to force her opponent out of position, where the point could be easily clinched.

In the doubles final, Miss Voorhees and Miss Leighton again faced each other across the net. Miss Voorhees and Miss Neely defeated Miss Leighton and Miss Falker, 6—1, 5—7, 6—3. The winners aimed most of their shots at Miss Leighton, who was tired, and netted and outed for most of the winners' points. Miss Falkner shot over numerous aces with a stinging lawford stroke, and her play was the most spectacular of the match.

Green and Ketchum Victors.

The men's doubles semi-finals were fought out, with Al Green, Jr., and M. G. Ketchum qualifying to tackle Hayes and Burdick for the title this afternoon. Green and Ketchum downed Edward Oelsner and J. F. Kenfield of the Chicago Tennis club in five bitter sets, which were efatured by Oelsner's brilliant service.

Summary of Play.

Women's singles, semi-final—Miss Mary Katherine Voorhees defeated Miss Carrie B. Neely, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4. Final match—Miss Voorhees defeated Miss Marian Leighton, 6—0, 6—4.

Women's doubles, final—Miss Mary K. Voorhees and Miss C. B. Neely defeated Miss Marian Leighton and Miss Amanda Falker, 6—1, 5—7, 6—3.

Men's doubles, semi-final round—Al Green Jr. and Marshall G. Ketchum defeated Edward Oelsner and J. F. Kenfield, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3; Walter T. Hayes and Ralph H. Burdick defeated Jerry Weber and Arthur P. Hubbell, 4—6, 6—0, 6—3, 6—1.

Mixed doubles, second round—Miss Amanda Falker and J. F. Day defeated Miss Marian Leighton and Edward Oelsner, 3—6, 13—11, 6—2; Miss M. K. Voorhees and W. T. Hayes defeated Mrs. Frederick Cunningham and Al Green, 6—4, 6—2; Mrs. Malcom MacNeill Jr. and R. H. Burdick defeated Mrs. W. S. Miller and Jerry Weber, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2.

Third round—Miss Katherine Waldo and W. S. Miller defeated Miss Falker and J. F. Day, 6—3, 6—4.

WRIGHT BREAKS VAULT RECORD

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 25.—Marc S. Wright of the Boston Athletic association, world's pole vault record holder, established a New England A. A. U. record at the annual championship meeting at Massachusetts Institute of Technology field, clearing 12 feet ½ inch. As a result of his performance Wright was selected to represent this section at the national A. A. U. games in St. Louis next Saturday. Other selections are William D. Hayes of Springfield, Boston A. A. sprinter; Harold E. Weeks, Irish American A. A.; James Henigan, Dorchester club, national junior cross country champion; and W. A. Savage, Boston A. A. hurdler. Nine champions competed, but only four retained their titles.

100 yard dash—William D. Hayes, B. A. A. Time, :10 1-5.

220 yard dash—William D. Hayes, B. A. A. Time, :22 2-5.

JACKSON PARKS TAKE NET TITLE IN SOUTH GROUP

Defeat Palmer Parks in the Final Contests at Losers' Courts.

Jackson park clinched its title in the southern division of the Public Parks Tennis association by taking four individual contests of five in the concluding team match of the season at Palmer park. The Jacksonites have won forty-seven of the fifty individual matches for the season, playing twice around the circuit without losing to any other team.

Speedway holds much the same invincible record in the northern division of the parks league, having beaten every other team twice, and Jackson park and the Speedway club will fight it out for the season's championship this week end on neutral courts. Baird of Palmer was the only member of that team to win in the five contests yesterday, beating Pearson of Jackson, 6—4, 6—4. Summaries:

Singles—Fowler, Jackson, beat Crowl, Palmer, 6—2, 6—4; Guyton, Jackson, beat Munch, Palmer, 6—4, 6—0; Baird, Palmer, beat Pearson, Jackson, 6—4, 6—4.

Doubles—Guyton and Pearson, Jackson, beat Munch and Lundgren, Palmer, 6—2, 8—6; Fowler and Leavitt, Jackson, beat Hawkinson and Martinson, Palmer, 6—2, 6—4.

NORTH DIVISION.

Mark White square players topped their season with a triumph at home, beat Kosciusko park, 3 to 2. Hunter and Dahl of the visitors, put up a great fight in doubles, beating the Schaefer brothers in a hard fought match of three sets, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Singles—Skikorski, Kosciusko, beat Schaefer, Mark White, 6—2, 6—4; Russett, Mark White, beat Hunter, Kos., 6—2, 6—2; Kupshas, Mark White, beat Leavin, Kos., 6—2, 6—2.

Doubles—Russett and Kupshas, Mark White, beat Levin and Sikorski, Kos., 11—9, 6—1; Hunter and Dahl, Kos., beat C. and E. Schaefer, Mark White, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

CORNELL, 4; MOZART, 1.

Cornell square players finished with a burst of speed, beating Mozart park in all but one match on the victors' courts. Summaries:—

Singles—W. Patyk, Cornell, beat Johnson, Mozart, 10—8, 6—4; Schur, Mozart, beat Motis, Cornell, 5—7, 6—0, 6—1; W. Weiher, Cornell, beat Brynildsen, Mozart, 6—3, 6—4.

Doubles—Lejeck and Patyk, Cornell, beat Pieper and Dahl, Mozart, 6—3, 6—1; Weiher and Motis, Cornell, beat Brynildsen and Hultman, Mozart, 7—5, 6—4.

DVORAK BREAKS EVEN.

Dvorak park lost the singles but won in the doubles in final matches for the tennis championships of the west park system. The matches were played on Eckhart park's clay courts yesterday. In singles F. Neiman of Douglas park, conquered Frank Hanus in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4. In doubles the Dvorak team of Ed Mastney and J. Karbowski started slowly, dropping the first set by a love score before beating Friedman and Kotchever of Eckhart, 0—6, 8—6, 6—0.

WASHINGTON, 3; GRAND C., 2.

Washington Park won another league final in the south division, beating Grand Crossing, 3 to 2.

Singles—Tannenbaum, W., beat Goldbright, Grand C., 6—3, 6—0; Colin, W., beat Pursain, Grand C., 6—4, 6—3; Munsey, Grand C., beat McCallum, W., 6—3, 3—6, 7—5.

Doubles—Shrader and Goldbright, Grand C., beat Colin and Tannenbaum, W., 3—6, 8—6, 7—5; Mertz and Doerr, W., beat Munsey and Pursain, Grand C., 7—5, 8—6.

For PLAYERS of WHIST by A. R. Metcalfe

Against a declared trump the opening of a suit which consists of ace and one small card is a favorite play of large numbers of players. It is most dangerous, and the odds are more than 2 to 1 that it is aiding to clear a suit for the declarer.

When an ace is led it usually collects three small cards, and, therefore, only yields to its holder about 60 per cent of its real value.

Few players can give any reason for plays of this sort. They are merely bad habits, like bread puddings or state senators or kings. But occasionally a player rather vaguely states that he is playing "down and out" to show his partner he can ruff the next round of the suit. This argument is worthless, because, with ace and three small cards of a suit, the opening would be made in precisely the same manner against a trump declaration.

The deal which follows illustrates the danger of this play:

West secured ten tricks, game and rubber.

West had no right to make his contract, much less acquire game. His preemptive bid would have been profitable, however, had he only secured nine tricks, as north and south had a grand slam at hearts had either of them been permitted to start bidding that suit.

The ace of hearts would have been the best opening from the north hand, but that player had the "ace and one" habit. Even after the play of the ace of diamonds, game would have been saved had north switched, but the inertia acquired from a thousand similar plays was too much for the resisting powers of north, and the second diamond fell.

West played skillfully and carefully to reënter the dummy enough times to make the two final tricks in the diamond suit.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Will you kindly advise if rule No. 86 governs:

North is dummy, south is playing the hand in clubs trump; a club is lead from dummy; east plays a diamond; south plays ten of clubs; west plays ace of clubs.

East says, Wait, I have a club. East takes back his diamond and plays king of clubs.

Can south and west take back ten and ace?

Ans.—Law No. 86 governs the case. The other players may withdraw their cards and the diamond played by east becomes an exposed card.

MARKS TUMBLE IN A. A. U. GAMES; MEREDITH LOSER

Shea Beats Ex-Penn Star, Running Quarter Mile in 49 Seconds.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25.—Four records were broken and one equalled in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. track and field championships on Franklin field today. The Meadowbrook club won the title for the first time with a score of 96½ points. Germantown Boys club was second with 37 points, and Pittsburgh A. A. third with 7.

F. J. Shea of the Pittsburgh A. A. shattered the record in the 440 yard event, running away from Ted Meredith of Meadowbrook, former Penn star, who was beaten for the first time on Franklin field. Shea's time was :49. Meredith's former record, which fell, was :49 3-5.

Javelin Mark to Berry.

Howard Berry, former Penn Pentathlon star, carried away another record. He threw the javelin 162 feet one and one quarter inches, beating the former mark of 146 feet eleven inches held by J. L. Brechemin.

Harold Barron, captain of the Penn state track team, did 120 yard high hurdles in :15 3-5, beating Bob Ferguson of the Germantown B. C., and lowering his own former record of :16 1-5. R. L. Hunter of the Germantown B. C. made a new mark of 11 feet 10 and one-half inches in the pole vault, beating the record held by Henry Johnstone by a quarter inch.

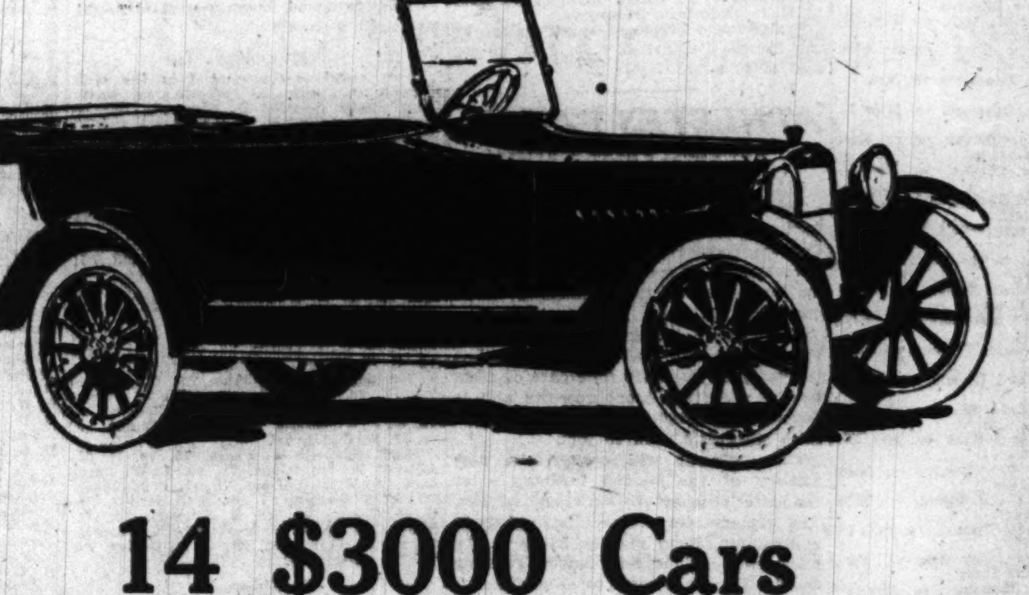
SAXON "SIX"
A BIG TOURING CAR FOR 5 PEOPLE



14 $3000 Cars Endorse Saxon "Six"

Think what that means to you—or any man who buys a Saxon "Six."

Fourteen of the finest cars made in America confirm your judgment.

Think what it proves as to Saxon "Six" value and quality as compared to any other car in the $800 to $1150 class.

We say 14 $3000 cars. That is not the whole truth.

As a matter of fact all 14 of these cars sell for more than $3000—ranging in price from $3050 for the lowest priced to $10,000 for the costliest car in the group.

Each one of the 8 important Saxon "Six" features is also used by from 2 to 9 of these 14 great cars. 2 of them use Timken axles. So does Saxon "Six" at $935 f. o. b. Detroit.

4 use Timken bearings. So does Saxon "Six."

3 use the Stromberg carburetor. So does Saxon "Six."

2 use the Remy ignition. So does Saxon "Six."

8 use the Fedders radiator. So does Saxon "Six."

9 use the spiral bevel gear. So does Saxon "Six."

5 use the semi-floating axle. So does Saxon "Six."

3 use the Excide storage battery. So does Saxon "Six."

Just stop for a moment and figure out the tremendous difference in price between these cars at $3050 to $10,000 and Saxon "Six" at $935.

Then the full significance of the real car-value of Saxon "Six" strikes home to you.

Now take the Saxon "Six" motor—built by Continental.

12 other cars ranging in price from $1175 to $2200 also use the Continental-built motor.

There is not a single feature of Saxon "Six" whose worth is open to question.

It is simply a wonderful car—and a wonderful value.

And $200 or $300 more than the Saxon "Six" price cannot get a better car.

So buy Saxon "Six" and save $200 or $300. But by all means do it now. For no one can tell how soon it will be before all motor car prices go up.

War Map of the United States

Showing Locations of All Training Camps Cantonments, Forts and Aviation Sites

FREE-With Next Sunday's

Chicago Sunday Tribune

More than a million and a half men will soon be in training camps throughout the United States—training to protect every citizen of the United States from the oppression of Autocracy. You will want to know where these training camps are located—where our boys are being mobilized.

Realizing the need for a comprehensive WAR MAP of the United States, The Chicago Tribune has arranged to publish a complete map IN COLORS in next Sunday's Chicago Tribune. This map will show the locations of all National Guard Mobilization Camps, National Army Cantonments, Officers' Training Camps, Aviation Sites, Arsenals, Forts, Naval Training Stations and Army and Navy Hospitals.

A general survey of the military activities of the United States will be spread out before you in this thorough map. The boundaries of the several departments of the U. S. Army are indicated in colors. The sixteen National Army divisions are shown in colors. Each Camp, Fort and Arsenal is listed by name and easily located.

If you have been drafted and are subject to call you will want this map to see where you will be located. Your folks at home will want to see where you will be located. The Chicago Tribune's special War Map of the United States shows every Training Camp, Aviation Site, Fort, Arsenal, and other important military locations. Get it FREE—with next Sunday's Chicago Sunday Tribune.

NEW YORK BANKS SHOW DECREASE IN RESERVES

Gotham Statement Reflects Activities of the Stock Market.

The showing of the New York associated banks for the week reflected some of the activities of the stock market and transference of funds to state banks and trust company depositors and was not as favorable as some of the recent statements. There was a decrease of $7,679,070 in excess reserves and a large increase in deposits and decrease in loans. The surplus reserves now stand at $68,776,920. The loan item decreased $22,422,000 and the deposits increased $61,179,000.

Subscriptions Close.

Subscriptions to the $250,000 issue of United States treasury certificates of indebtedness put out by the Federal Reserve bank closed at noon yesterday. Details were not available, but the local officials of this federal reserve district believed that the entire issue had been taken. The junior auditors and other bookkeeping officials of the federal reserve system are in Chicago arranging the practical details of the flotation of the next Liberty loan. The first meeting on the subject was held at the La Salle hotel Friday evening. Officials representing the various reserve districts engaged in floating the initial issue will compare notes in order to agree on the best methods to use in floating the next one.

War Loan Affects Prices.

The coming government war loan has been a retarding factor in the local bond and security market. The uncertainty as to the details of the expected issue—the second Liberty loan—is holding back investors.

There is a growing sentiment that the war loan bonds will be issued at a higher rate than the 3½ per cent which the last Liberty loan carried. This is reflected in the market for long term securities, which has assumed a waiting attitude. While it is expected that the government will put out the coming war loan at 4 per cent or better, nothing definite in this respect has been announced.

Few, if any, large commitments are expected within the next few weeks, either from individuals or investment houses, for the reason that many bond issues of the more stable character are being held at a loss in the buying price and as long as the market continues to decline and the banks reserve their funds an adverse investment market will prevail.

Federal Reserve Bank.

The statement of the condition of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago at the close of business Aug. 24, 1917, follows:

On the Local Exchange.

Traders showed little interest in the list in the week-end session of the Chicago stock exchange and transactions were limited in volume. The few changes in prices were irregular. Stewart-Warner advanced a point to 58 and Wilson Packing added 1¼ points at 63½. Sears-Roebuck was off a quarter at 166⅝.

Money and Exchange.

Money rates in Chicago firmer at 5@5½ per cent on collateral, 5@5¼ per cent on commercial paper, and 5@5½ per cent over the counter. New York exchange 10@5c discount. Chicago bank clearings, $65,677,071.

PREDICT RECORD PERIOD FOR CAR MANUFACTURERS

Capitalists allied with railroad properties believe that the American car manufacturing concerns are in for the longest period of activity and prosperity in their history. American railroads alone require more rolling stock than it is in the power of the combined car manufacturing capacity to supply. The demands of the roads will increase greatly in the event that the war continues another year as the speeding up process that must be put into effect on all of the railroads in order to feed and equip our own men and allies abroad will require sound equipment. Decrepit cars are frequently responsible for expensive delays to say nothing of considerable actual damage.

The United States government also is ordering cars in large quantities for Russia and is getting back of the companies that are being apportioned the business.

Gold Movements.

Gold valued at $200,000 was withdrawn in bars from the United States assay office yesterday for shipment to Chile. A week ago $1,000,000 in bars was taken for Peru. These are the first withdrawals of gold bars for export in over a year.

Stricken from Stock List.

The securities of the Pittsburgh Coal Company of New Jersey and Bankers' Trust certificates of deposit for preferred and common stock have been stricken from the list of the New York stock exchange.

FINANCIAL NOTES

An eastern authority commenting on the present activity in silver says: "If the silver stocks are ever going to do anything certainly now would seem to be the time with the price of bar silver up to the record high of almost 90 cents an ounce. Anaconda will, of course, be benefited considerably and so will American Smelting, because of the increase in inventory values. Ontario Silver, which has been getting very busy during the last few days, has always been a mystery. Its friends have maintained that the property is all right, while others who knew something about engineering have raised the question whether the company has its deposits of silver ore in shape to make it profitable in large quantities. As for Nipissing on the curb, on which there is a widespread tip, the stock having a $5 par value, is already selling at the equivalent of about 160."

London cable advices are that the British government is taking steps to prohibit speculation in silver. The immense demand now being precipitated on the metal the world over is causing prices to rise rapidly. Although the highest prices openly permitted to be quoted was on the basis of 88¼c for commercial bars per ounce at New York it is known that sales have been made at 2 to 3 cents above that figure.

Nipissing reported sales at 9⅛ and a California silver mine turned down a bid for its entire output at 90. All of the silver producing properties are receiving more attention on the various exchanges of the country than they have previously seen in nearly a quarter of a century.

Lackawanna Steel company has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on its outstanding common stock, payable Sept. 29 to stock of record Sept. 14.

Directors on Sept. 14, 1916, declared a dividend of 6 per cent, payable in four quarterly installments. The last quarterly payment of 1½ per cent was made on June 30, 1917. In November, 1916, an extra dividend of 3 per cent was declared out of surplus earnings and in May of this year another extra dividend of 2½ per cent was declared. Therefore the current declaration of 1½ per cent would appear to be a disbursement covering the third quarter of this year.

Negotiations have been under way for some time looking toward the turning over of the Bayonne, N. J., plant of the American Radiator company to the manufacture of guns, but the report that the company will receive a profit of about $18,000,000 on contracts already placed with the government is said to be greatly exaggerated.

Superior Steel corporation has called for redemption on Sept. 15 through the Columbia Trust company $860,000 of its first preferred and $25,833 of its second preferred stocks at $107.50 a share. Offers of stock should be filed with trustees on or before Sept. 4.

Hocking Valley railway company, it is reported, will again finance its maturing $4,000,000 notes with notes. This issue, maturing Nov. 1 next, was issued in 1915 for two years at 5 per cent to retire a like amount of 6 per cent notes issued in November, 1913.

New York Central convertible 6s are selling at 100½. These are virtually an eight year "call" on the stock. Present selling price is the same as when they were put out more than a year ago.

Rights to subscribe to new Bethlehem Steel 8 per cent preferred stock sold on the curb at 5. Early quotations were 5 bid and 9 asked.

CORN FUTURES SLUMP; WEATHER BEAR INFLUENCE

Longs Sell Out as Frosts Fail to Materialize; Oats Also Heavy.

Fine weather conditions over the corn belt, with the forecast for fair and warmer weather, took away the principal buying incentive in corn, and prices sold off sharply as commission houses increased the selling pressure. Local longs were forced to sell out their corn, and the general demand was slow. Some buying against the bids, with a little short covering, was in evidence at the close. Net losses for the day were 2½@2⅝c.

Cash prices were strong at outside markets, but the local market was unchanged to 4c lower, with sales of only 15,000 bu. Receipts, however, were light at 53 cars, and primary receipts aggregated only 364,000 bu, compared to 516,000 bu a year ago. Selling of corn was led by Bartlett-Frazier, Knight-McDougal, Armour, Clement-Curtis, and J. Rosenbaum Grain.

Oats Selling Is General.

In the oats market there was steady selling pressure all through the session, with a minimum amount of new buying aside from short covering from time to time and some buying against the bids. The cash market was heavy and prices were ¾@⅞c lower. Shipping sales were 100,000 bu. The export trade outside of a little business at the gulf is said to be small. Complaints of car shortage are heard, but on the other hand the crop news is favorable, and with good weather farm deliveries are expected to increase again. Receipts were 265 cars and primary receipts were 1,661,000 bu, compared to 2,212,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were small at 33,000 bu.

Wind Up Wheat Trade.

Last trade in September wheat was at $2.11½, a decline of ½c for the day. The trade was small, with Knight-McDougal selling a fair amount and shorts buying. Receipts were 42 cars here, with primary receipts of 973,000 bu, against 1,480,000 bu a year ago. Cash prices were steady. Local sales were only 5,000 bu. Cash grain men are waiting for the government to fix prices and start operations. It is understood there was a considerable amount of wheat unevened up which will be settled at the price fixed by the committee.

Rye and Barley Weaker.

Rye was steady to 1c lower with sales of cash No. 2 at $1.76@1.77. Receipts were 13 cars.

Barley ruled unchanged early, but the close was weak and possibly 1c lower, due to weakness in Minneapolis. Malting was quoted $1.12@1.28 and sold $1.14@1.27; feed and mixing quotable, $1.05@1.15, with sales at latter figure; screenings were quoted 50@90c and sold 60@90c. Receipts, 32 cars.

Timothy seed was unchanged. September closed $9.25 bid and $9.50 asked; October $8.40 bid and $8.75 asked; March, $8.90 bid and $9.10 asked. Cash lots quoted $6.25@8.00. Clover seed was firm with cash quoted $14.00@19.00 and spot prime, $20.30.

Flax seed closed 11c higher. Cash quoted $3.71@3.76. Duluth was 3c, Minneapolis 11c, and Winnipeg 8½@10c higher respectively.

GOSSIP OF THE PIT

Local bulls who bought corn Friday on the possibility of a frost were heavy sellers yesterday. Commission houses have been on the selling quite generally for two days while the buying has been principally by locals and by shorts. The better weather indicated started the market lower, and the down movement gained impetus during the day. Cash prices were lower here, and the demand was not urgent, while the weakness in oats also was a bearish influence in corn.

Cash corn was up 9@9½c at Peoria, but in the local market prices were unchanged to 4c lower. Southwest markets generally were strong for cash corn. Receipts here were extremely light at fifty-three cars. Primary receipts are considerably smaller than a year ago, and judging from advices to receivers there will be little increase in the movement. Oats were heavy in the sample market, being 1@2c lower at the finish. The foreign demand at present is slow for oats, and the shippers generally have their August requirements well supplied. The demand so far has been light for September shipment. Local sales were 15,000 bu corn and 100,000 bu oats.

The range for September wheat on the final day of trading was narrow. The final quotation was $2.11½, a decline of ½c for the day. Knight-McDougal were fair sellers, and there was scattered buying, covering by shorts being fairly heavy at times. It was understood the open interest at the close of trade was still quite large. Trades will be settled at the price by the committee appointed by the directors. The committee may not make their decision until after it is known what the price fixed by the government will be.

Dutch ships loaded with grain are to be released by the government, according to New York and Washington reports, but the bulk of the cargoes will go to feed the Belgians. The understanding is that the government also has made arrangements with the representatives of the Scandinavian countries in regard to grain shipments.

Receipts inspected yesterday: Wheat, 42 cars; corn, 53 cars; oats 265 cars; rye, 13 cars; and barley, 32 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 21,000 head and 85,000 head for all next week.

Reports have been current for two or three days to the effect the government has placed the wheat price at somewhere between $2.00 and $2.10, but no authoritative information has been received by local grain men or by officials of the board. A New York message said the price had been fixed at $2.10.

A bear factor in corn was the report of the purchase of a parcel of Argentine corn, 40,000 bu, bought to arrive early in October at New York on basis about 20c lower than Chicago. If cash prices continue as high as at present in this country it is probable more of the Plate corn will be imported.

Cash houses were credited with being free sellers of oats futures. There was some selling of September and buying of December by J. Rosenbaum Grain. The receivers generally look for fair receipts of oats with good weather the coming week.

Minneapolis wheat stocks were a standoff for one day. The demand for cash wheat at Minneapolis was less active with buyers holding off, and prices were about 5c off. Country offerings in the northwest are still moderate.

Each week hereafter the government will hold tests at the board of trade training school for the signal corps. It is expected about fifteen men will be selected each week. The first tests were made yesterday afternoon.

Liquidation became general in the provisions trade in the last hour and there were big declines. Hogs were sharply lower again in spite of the small receipts, and the break in coarse grains started some selling.

St. Louis wired: "The weather will have to warm up lively to pull a lot of this late replanted corn through."

Kansas City cash corn was unchanged and oats unchanged to ½c higher. St. Louis cash corn was 3@5c up.

The Argentine export tax on wheat is eqaul to 8.8c per bu on wheat, 2.7c on corn, and 2.5c on oats.

Minneapolis barley prices were 3@5c lower. A fair domestic demand for rye was reported.

The Growing Importance of Independent Oils

THE Standard Oil octopus is no longer the dominating power in the oil industry, as the heyday of the independent oil company has arrived, and is growing more important from month to month, with increasing profit possibilities for the stockholders of these companies. Witness the "melons" distributed by the Texas Company and Cosden & Co.; also the proposed melon-cutting by Midwest Refining and Sinclair Oil; and the market profits which could have been taken, for instance, when Midwest Refining sold up from $35 to $177, Cosden from $5 to $27, Cosden Oil & Gas from $6 to $18, Elk Basin Petroleum from $7.50 to $14, Merritt Oil from $9 to $39, Federal Oil from 37 cents to $8, Sapulpa Refining from $7 to $16, and Oklahoma Producing & Refining from $5 to $14. And most of these companies are still in their infancy.

A Colossal Oil Boom in the Making

The Coal Age is passing, and we are entering the Oil Age—in fact, a colossal oil boom is in the making at this moment. In the case of the meritorious independent oil issues, increased cash dividends, stock bonuses and market profits will be reaped over and over again from now on, indefinitely. The millions of dollars that have already been made in oil are destined to be dwarfed in comparison with the millions that are yet to be made from this golden gift of nature. History holds no parallel with the present and future money-making opportunities in oil stocks of the right sort, and investors who have the foresight to recognize these opportunities NOW will later on reap a remarkable financial reward.

Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil

A Producer and Refiner

Among the foremost independent oil companies, which should forge ahead, putting increased value behind its shares as a result of the aggressive upbuilding campaign now started, is the Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil & Gasoline Refining Corporation, whose stock was recently introduced on the New York Curb.

The Company's Valuable Holdings

The company's valuable holdings comprise nearly 20,000 acres, of which 1,500 acres consist of actual producing territory in West Virginia, known as the Ferguson tract, where the company now has 121 oil and gas wells—16,441 acres in the celebrated Irvine field of Kentucky—and 1,089 acres of rich natural gas and oil lands in Ohio. The Ferguson properties in West Virginia are completely equipped with a large gasoline refinery, and over one hundred each of tanks, gas engines and pumping outfits.

Kentucky — A Vast Reservoir of Oil

It is an established geological fact that that part of Kentucky, where Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil has its largest acreage, is a vast reservoir of oil, which can be produced by shallow drilling at nominal expense. Absolute proof that immense oil riches underlie this and other portions of Kentucky is afforded by the action of many of the foremost oil companies of the country in obtaining leases in the State. Chief among these are the Standard Oil and Doherty interests, which never go into a field until it has been proven up beyond all shadow of doubt.

L. M. Stephens, an Oil Expert

As far as Pennsylvania-Kentucky properties are concerned — especially the Kentucky tract — they were selected by one of the most thorough and practical oil men in the United States—Mr. L. M. Stephens. About the middle of August he will personally supervise the drilling of ten new wells in Kentucky, on the same anticline on which a short distance away thirty or more wells have been brought in by another company since last November, without a single dry hole.

To Be Big Factor in Oil Industry

Mr. Stephens is devoting his entire attention to Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil, and it is his avowed purpose to ultimately make the company more than an ordinary factor in the oil industry. And, in this connection, he has a few agreeable surprises in store for the stockholders when he gets operations in Kentucky well under way. Suffice it to say at this time that the culmination of what he has in mind will greatly add to each shareowner's equity in the company.

Company Pays 4% Every Three Months

Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil is on a dividend-paying basis of 4% a share every three months, or 16% annually, and current net revenues received from the wells on the Ferguson tract in West Virginia are more than sufficient to maintain dividends at this rate on outstanding stock. As production increases from development of the valuable Kentucky and Ohio acreage, it is the intention of the company to increase the present dividend rate, or declare extra dividends from time to time as earnings warrant.

An Investment Opportunity

The unusual intrinsic worth of, and growing equities behind Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil, combined with impending developments, should insure much higher prices for the shares, thus affording purchasers an opportunity to add substantial market profits to the dividends they will receive.

The stock was recently introduced to active trading on the New York Curb, and can be bought through us outright for cash, or on convenient partial payments. In view of the materially higher prices which seem practically certain, orders should be wired to us at our expense. Prevailing quotation is around $6 per share, and we advise quick action to secure the benefit of this price.

Tuxpam Star Oil Corporation
A Strong Independent Producer in the Mexican Field

Owns and controls over 75,000 acres in the proven lands of Tampico, Tuxpam, Panuco and Amatlan, where are located the properties of the Mexican Petroleum, Standard Oil, Pierce Oil, Royal Dutch Shell and Pearson Syndicate.

While earnings are now equal to 6%, the addition of approximately 15,000 barrels a day to present production, through the purchase of two new properties, just announced, should increase profits to at least 25% on the entire capitalization.

The recent entrance into the company of new interests who were identified with Mexican Petroleum in its early stages, assures the necessary financial support for the carrying out of the company's comprehensive plans for expansion and also creates great speculative possibilities for the stock which is now a strong and active feature of the New York and Boston Curb markets.

YOUNG DEPARTMENT STORE MEN

How would you like to make $5,000 over and above your regular weekly salary without investing a single dollar? If you are an exceptionally good window dresser, ad writer, and keen judge of merchandise write me at once. I offer a great opportunity for a hard, fast worker and an original thinker. You will find a real live town of 15,000 people, a four year old store (finest in town) doing over $100,000 a year in Northwest agricultural district. If interested send complete information—in other words, sell your services. I can use but one man and he must be a crackerjack in every way. State salary expected first year and give me full and complete details. All communications will be held in strict confidence. Unless you have had Dept. Store experience do not answer. This ad will not appear again.

APATHY IN MARKET.

New York, Aug. 25.—With one exception—that of the previous week end—today's brief period of trading on the stock exchange was the dullest of the year.

The course of the market was altogether in keeping with these apathetic conditions, trading deriving its sole support from further short covering on the more hopeful views entertained respecting Washington's attitude toward price control.

Slight pressure upon metal stocks and equipments represented nothing of a tangible character, and was more than neutralized by firmness elsewhere. Dealings in rails were light, but mainly at higher levels, with Rock Islands again the feature at extreme gains of 1 to 3 points.

Special Issues Strong.

Specialties comprised the other strong issues, notably oils, tobaccos and Great Northern Ore, together with American Can, Chandler Motor, and several inactive stocks.

Interesting developments of the day included transfer of $6,000,000 gold to San Francisco for export to Japan and smaller withdrawals of the metal for shipment to South America.

Competent authorities issued encouraging trade reports, although noting further caution pending adjustment of schedules by Washington. Leading railways issued additional favorable statements of earnings, Atchison reporting a net gain of $880,000 for July.

Bonds were steady, Liberty 3½s again ranging from 99.92 to 99.98. United States registered 4s declined ¼ per cent on call during the week.

OILS AND MINES

It is expected that Butte and Superior Mining company will be able to continue operations for some time as it is not specially affected by the strike at Anaconda properties. Other independent companies, however, which ship to Anaconda will necessarily be compelled to curtail operations. It is possible that East Butte company will close in sympathy with general resistance to labor demands. It is estimated 15,000 men will be laid off in Butte, Anaconda and Great Falls as the result of shut down.

In the second quarter of 1917 Butte and Superior's profits were about equal to those of the first quarter, and brought the profits for the first half year to $7.11 a share, or $2,064,258. The par of the stock is $10, so that in the first six months earnings were at the rate of 142.2 per cent a year.

Reports from Boston state that the Wolverine Copper Mining company dividend is to be cut. The present rate of $7 may be reduced to $5 at the September directorate meeting. The dividend is due in October.

It is estimated earnings of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company for this year will be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 before allowing for excess profits taxes, or at the rate of $14 a share on common after preferred dividends and interest charges.

The American Cotton Oil company has sold $7,500,000 one and two year 5 per cent notes, which are being offered for subscription by the First National bank of New York at 99¼ for the one year and 98 for the two year maturity.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—COFFEE—Reports of frost in one district of Sao Paulo caused scattered covering in the market for coffee futures today. There was further liquidation of September, and after opening 2 to 5 points higher there was some little irregularity. But small offerings were readily absorbed and the market steadied up again later in the morning. The close showed a net gain of 4 to 6 points. Sales, including exchanges, were 46,000 bags. Closing bids: August and September, 7.47c; October, 7.57c; December, 7.77c; January, 7.84c; March, 8.00c; May, 8.14c; July, 8.29c. Spot coffee was dull, Rio 7s, 9¼c; Santos 4s, 10¼c. The official cables reported an advance of 175 reis at Rio and 100 ries at Santos, with Santos futures unchanged to 50 reis higher. Rio exchange was 5-32d lower at 12 27-32d. Receipts at the two Brazilian ports were 86,000 bags; Jundiahy receipts, 55,000 bags.

ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—There was trading on a large scale in many issues on the Broad street curb during the last week, with large blocks of many of the low price issues changing hands. Sales of Ætna Explosives amounted to over 40,000 shares at prices ranging from 7¼ to 5½, with a rally to 7 in the late dealings.

Over 7,000 shares of Curtiss Aeroplane were traded in at from 48½ to 43, but the largest transactions in any one stock were those in Wright-Martin, which reached up to close to 100,000 shares. Early in the week this stock sold at 10⅝, dropped to 9, and then rallied to above 10.

Over 30,000 shares of Maxim Munitions were traded in at 1 to 1¼. Marlin Arms, in which trading was on a small scale, yielded from 121½ to 115½. Submarine Boat dropped from 28 to 25½, but rallied sharly at the end of the week.

The independent oil stocks were influenced to a great extent by the movements in Standard Oil issues, which in turn were affected by fears of unfavorable government price fixings. These fears, however, were removed after the announcement of the anthracite rate was made. The heaviest trading in independent oil stocks was in Crosby Petroleum, which became active on the curb a week ago. Over 7,000 shares changed hands at prices ranging from 51 to 69 cents.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—COTTON—Still lower prices were reached in the cotton market today, December selling about $22 a bale below the high point of the month. The general list closed barely steady at a net decline of 46@58 points. The market opened unchanged to 9 points lower under overnight selling orders, but soon steadied on covering. Offerings increased on a bulge of some 10 to 15 points above last night's closing figures. The renewal of pressure appeared to be encouraged by the continued reports of freer new crop offerings in the south and the favorable average of private crop advices. Stop orders were uncovered as prices eased off, with the more active months showing net losses of 52@59 points. The close showed only slight rallies on covering. January sold at 21.78c today, compared with 26.20c, the high point of Aug. 7, and 27.18c, the high record of late last June. Futures:

A Wonderful Record

Has been established by the Mid West Royalties Corporation by the payment to its stockholders of

104¾% in Dividends

in the first three months of its existence, and this profit-making record has been accomplished by the development of less than one-fourth (¼) of the Corporation's Proven Oil Producing properties in the heart of the famous Bixby Pool. It is reasonable, therefore, to assume that the will repeat this wonderful record again during the next three months for the following reasons:

Mid West Royalties Corporation

(1) Ten (10) additional wells being drilled should more than double present production.

(2) Plant is being installed for manufacture of Gasoline from casing-head gas secured from the Corporation's own wells. Capacity 2,000 gallons daily.

The present policy of the Corporation is to set aside approximately 50% of its net earnings for reinvestment to offset depreciation, thereby affording its stockholders an unusual degree of

Safety and Permanency

While the Corporation has paid large extra dividends and will continue to do so when the occasion warrants, the stock is firmly established on a sound investment and income basis by the payment of Regular Dividends at the rate of

Two Per Cent (2%) a Month

Subject to prior sale, we can offer a limited amount of this stock for immediate acceptance

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The recent cotton break weakened gray goods and there was an easier tone in cotton yarn markets today. Trade was quieter but government purchases were on a large scale. Finished lines ruled steady. Linens were steady and firm, with some government business pending.

Cherokee Oil Company

Capital, $6,000,000
Par value, $1.00
Present price $1.25 per share

Production Within the past 60 days Cherokee production in the Kentucky fields has jumped from 12,000 barrels to 30,000 barrels per month. Five new wells recently brought in are averaging better than 150 barrels per day, and four rigs drilling are expected to bring in from five to eight new wells each month.

Transportation The Cumberland Pipe Line Company furnishes direct transportation for Cherokee oil, with its main pumping station not over two miles from the properties.

The price of crude oil in Kentucky averages $2.27 per barrel

Present Operations In addition to the drilling which is being vigorously pushed on the Kentucky holdings, extensive operations will commence soon on the company's 2,100 acre leases in Butler County, Kansas. This is the pool made famous by the new Trap-Shooter well and others which are reported to be flowing at the rate of from 5,000 to 12,000 barrels daily.

Management The Officers and Directors of the Cherokee Oil Company include local bankers, capitalists, and some of the strongest financial men in the country. The main office of the company is in Chicago, with operating offices at Lexington, Kentucky.

Dividend October 2nd

Dividends Cherokee Oil Company is now on a 10% dividend basis, the first quarterly dividend having been declared payable Oct. 2, 1917, to stockholders of record September 15th. Prospects of extra cash dividends based on increased production and earnings are excellent.

The market for Cherokee Oil is rapidly widening, and we look for rapid trading in this good, independent oil stock in the near future at figures well above the present price.

U. S. TRADE BODY ACTS AGAINST BOOK PAPER MEN

Files Complaint Charging Unfair Methods of Competition.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Charging concerted action to increase prices in the book paper industry for the last two years, the federal trade commission today filed a formal complaint against the "bureau of statistics" of the book paper manufacturers, New York, Charles P. Moore, the bureau's secretary, and twenty-three paper manufacturers.

The complaint alleges unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce.

The respondents, according to the complaint, manufacture the overwhelming part of the $70,000,000 worth of book print paper produced in the United States.

Firms Named in Complaint.

Among the paper makers named in the complaint are:

Bardeen Paper company, Otsego, Mich.
Bergestrom Paper company, Neenah, Wis.
Bryant Paper company, Kalamazoo, Mich.
Champion Coated Paper company, Hamilton, O.
Everett Pulp and Paper company, Everett, Wash.
Kimberly-Clark company, Neenah, Wis.
King Paper company, Kalamazoo, Mich.
Lakeside Paper company, Neenah, Wis.
Mead Pulp and Paper company, Dayton, O.
Miami Paper company, West Carrollton, O.
Monarch Paper company, Kalamazoo, Mich.
The Rex Paper company, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Hearing on Oct. 10.

The charges of the complaint will be heard by the federal trade commission in Washington on Oct. 10.

PLANS MODEL STEEL CITY FOR CALUMET REGION

The Mark Manufacturing company has begun work on a model city for its employés at East Chicago, Ind., which, when completed, will, it is said, represent a total investment of several millions of dollars. The site of the proposed city comprises a tract of 190 acres adjoining on the west the company's big new steel plant and the main line of the Pennsylvania road, with Dickey place and One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street forming the center of the new home community. The work will be carried on under the supervision of Architect Howard Shaw, and the plats are said to follow the best ideas of eastern and foreign industrial cities. Not only will the material comforts of the employés be conserved, but ample provisions are to be made in the way of recreation, schools, shops, and also club facilities.

A large market square 280x350 feet, with business structures of all kinds, is to be a conspicuous feature, in which will be located fountains and other decorative features.

An unusual feature will be the size of the home lots, 48x50 feet, which will allow for garden space beside each house. The houses will be built right up to the lot line, between which and the street and sidewalk will be parkways, which will be publicly controlled to assure their proper and uniform maintenance. Employés will be allowed to purchase homes on five years' time, and if at the end of that time they still are in the employ of the company they will be given a generous rebate on the price.

Milwaukee Boys Seized in Evanston for Auto Theft

Two Milwaukee boys who stole an automobile there Saturday night and drove to Chicago were arrested at Sheridan road and Greenwood avenue, Evanston, by Sergts. Weidling and Ruland of the Evanston police department yesterday. They admitted stealing the car. They gave the names of Claud Church, 18 years old, and Cecil Stedman, 20.

Hog prices at Chicago yesterday were about steady with Friday's low time, but 25c lower than Friday's average. It was a more settled market than has been seen in some time, but no material improvement in the demand was indicated. Top sales were made at $17.35 with the bulk of the hogs selling from $15.75 to $16.90. Pigs were in small offering, but unevenly lower. Quality only fair. Receipts were 5,000 head.

Hogs averaged $2.00@2.10 lower than a week ago and at the close yesterday were $2.50@3.25 lower than the high point Tuesday. After the first couple of days there was a sharp falling off in the demand and prices experienced a reaction the like of which has never been equaled. A new high record of $20.00 was established. Receipts for the week were about the same as the previous week, but much smaller than for the corresponding period last year. Pigs were $2.00 lower for the week.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 2,000; Anglo-American, 400; Swift & Co., 600; Hammond Co., 300; Morris & Co., 700; Wilson & Co., 500; Boyd-Lunham, 400; Western Packing Co., 200; Roberts & Oake, 100; Miller & Hart, 300; Independent, 100; butchers, 500; shippers, 1,500; total, 7,600; left over, 4,500.

CATTLE.

Most of the steers show an advance of 50c for the week, while some of the sales made were as much as 75c higher. A new record price of $15.50 was established for prime steers, while the bulk of the business was from $10 to $14. It was a weak market on Monday, supplies being heavy, but since then all grades have fared well, although the most urgent bidding was for the choice to finished corn fed lots. For cows, heifers, and bulls prices show no material change for the week, the market for this kind of stock having recovered from the early weakness. The display of strength was made in face of increased supplies, western markets getting a total materially in excess of last week and somewhat larger than for the same week last year. Demand was good, however, the cost of beef comparing more favorably with other meats. Calves were mainly $1.00 higher than a week ago, and reached a new high mark of $16.00.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 255,000, against 197,000 the preceding week, 241,000 a year ago, and 168,000 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 5,861,000, against 4,908,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

It was a strong market in the mutton division during the last week. Native sheep closed strong to 25c higher for the period, with some range yearlings up 50c. Most of the native lambs show an advance of 50@75c for the week, with range lambs mainly 25c higher. Trade was active throughout the period, with the sharp demand from feeders a striking feature. The latter outbid the killers for the choice lambs and there was much competition for the moderate offerings. Receipts for the week were not much different than those of last week, but were only about half as large as the corresponding time last year. Lambs closed at $16.50 for both native and westerns. Most of the ewes brought $10.00.

Coming Government Loan Attractive.

The next issue of government bonds will be on a basis attractive to the small investor, if present plans are carried out. The interest rate of the Liberty bonds was too low to make them very desirable on their own merits except to people with incomes so large as to be liable to a heavy supertax. The forthcoming issue is expected to yield 4 per cent or perhaps a fraction more and to be tax free to the small investor, but subject to the supertax.

Farm loan bonds, free of all taxes, sell on a 4½ per cent basis, but there are few of them to be had and they carry no rights of conversion, while the forthcoming bonds can be exchanged for any bonds yielding a higher rate which the government may issue in the future. Good municipals can be bought on a 4½ per cent basis. They are exempt from the government tax, but are liable to assessment locally. The coming bond issue thus offers advantages which more than offset any difference in yield between it and other tax exempt bonds.

As the new loan will have no especial attraction for institutions and people of great wealth, a wide participation in it by small investors would seem to be necessary to insure its success. It is to be hoped not only that all investors will do their share, but that millions of people who never have been investors will serve their own interests and those of their country by subscribing.

Middle West Utilities.

L. N., Dundee, Ill.: The $1,000,000 of new three year notes of the Middle West company are secured by deposit of bonds and notes of subsidiary corporations to the amount of 120 per cent of the notes. The indenture requires that five-sixths of this collateral be mortgage bonds. The notes also participate in the security under $7,812,000 of collateral trust bonds which the company has outstanding. The earnings of subsidiaries have shown a large increase in gross recently and a good gain in net. The notes are entitled to a good rating among collateral trust issues.

St. Paul Convertible 5s.

A. M. D., Yale, Mich.: The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul convertible 5s are secured under the general and refunding mortgage of 1914, which is now a junior lien. As underlying bonds mature and are retired the position of the refunding mortgage will improve. The 5s are convertible into common stock at par until Feb. 1, 1926. Whether this privilege will ever have value cannot be predicted. As the road has always earned its fixed charges at least one and one-half times and usually twice, these bonds are well secured, but not of the highest grade.

Brief Answers.

H. M. R.—Both the Texas Power and Light and the Iowa Railway and Light two year note issues are secured by deposit of first mortgage bonds to the amount of about 130 per cent of the notes. The latter company is earning more than twice its total interest charge and the former about twice. Both issues are well secured investments.

R. L. V.—The Woman's Federal Oil company has been producing some oil, paying dividends of 1 per cent a month, and all the time continuing to sell treasury stock. Shares can be bought in La Salle street at $6.75 or $7, which is a 17 per cent income basis. Evidently they are highly speculative.

O. M. W.—The Northwestern Mutual Life has been in business sixty years, has had a steady growth, a moderate death rate, and economical management. The result is a low net cost of insurance. Total insurance in force passed the $1,500,000,000 mark last year.

ALARM BELLS—At regular intervals in the trenches they are suspended. Here is one in a bomb proof shelter on the Florina front in the Balkans. When the enemy's advance is known their melancholy clangor may be heard echoing down the musty barricades, one taking up the song of another as the troops are roused by the call to action.

ENDLESS WORK BEHIND THE LINES—New trenches are being dug, new railway lines are laid, telephone wires are being rehung. This official British photograph shows a construction crew at work on a railroad behind the trenches of the western front.

HAZEL DAWN, whose latest vehicle is " The Lone Wolf," an up-to-the-minute melodrama produced by Herbert Brenon, gained prominence in " The Pink Lady," a musical comedy of some seasons past. Although she is American born, she was educated in London, where her stage career began. Merely as a point of information, her eyes are hazel, too.

They love to "dress up"

Once there was a Mother with three Babies. Said she, "I'll ruin the Children's best Dresses if I wash them. I'll wrap them up in Tissue Paper and put them on the Top Shelf in the Closet." So the Children wore Dark Gingham Jumpers and all the Neighbors said, "My, my, what grubby little Children. Stay in your own yard, Emily."

You can let your children wear their best fluffy dresses often. Keep their little flannels and sweaters white, and be proud of your children always.

You can keep the children's dresses fresh and clean without any chance of injuring them. Lux, the new soap product, will accomplish results you would scarcely believe possible.. It actually won't shrink baby's flannels or woolens.

For all of their best dresses

The clear, transparent flakes whip up into the thick sudsy lather that immediately dissolves the dirt without a bit of rubbing. The flakes dissolve perfectly, so there is not a particle of solid soap to yellow or weaken the fabric. If the little garments can be trusted to pure water they are safe with Lux!

Get a package at your grocer's or at any department store. Try Lux on all of your children's dainty clothes. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

How to wash fine fabrics and woolens

Fine fabrics—Whisk a handful of Lux into a thick lather in very hot water. Put in the sheer little dresses and petticoats. Stir them about for a few minutes. Then add cold water till comfortable for the hands, and dip the garments through the creamy lather again and again. Do not rub. Any spots may be pressed between the hands. Rinse in three waters—hot. Dry in the sun (colored things in the shade).

Woolens—Whisk the Lux flakes into a lather in boiling or very hot water. Put in your woolens and let them soak until the water is comfortable for the hands. Then work them about in the suds, but do not rub. Rinse in three waters the same temperature as that in which you washed them. Dissolve a little Lux in the last rinsing water; this leaves the woolens softer and fluffier. Dry in the sun (colored woolens in the shade).

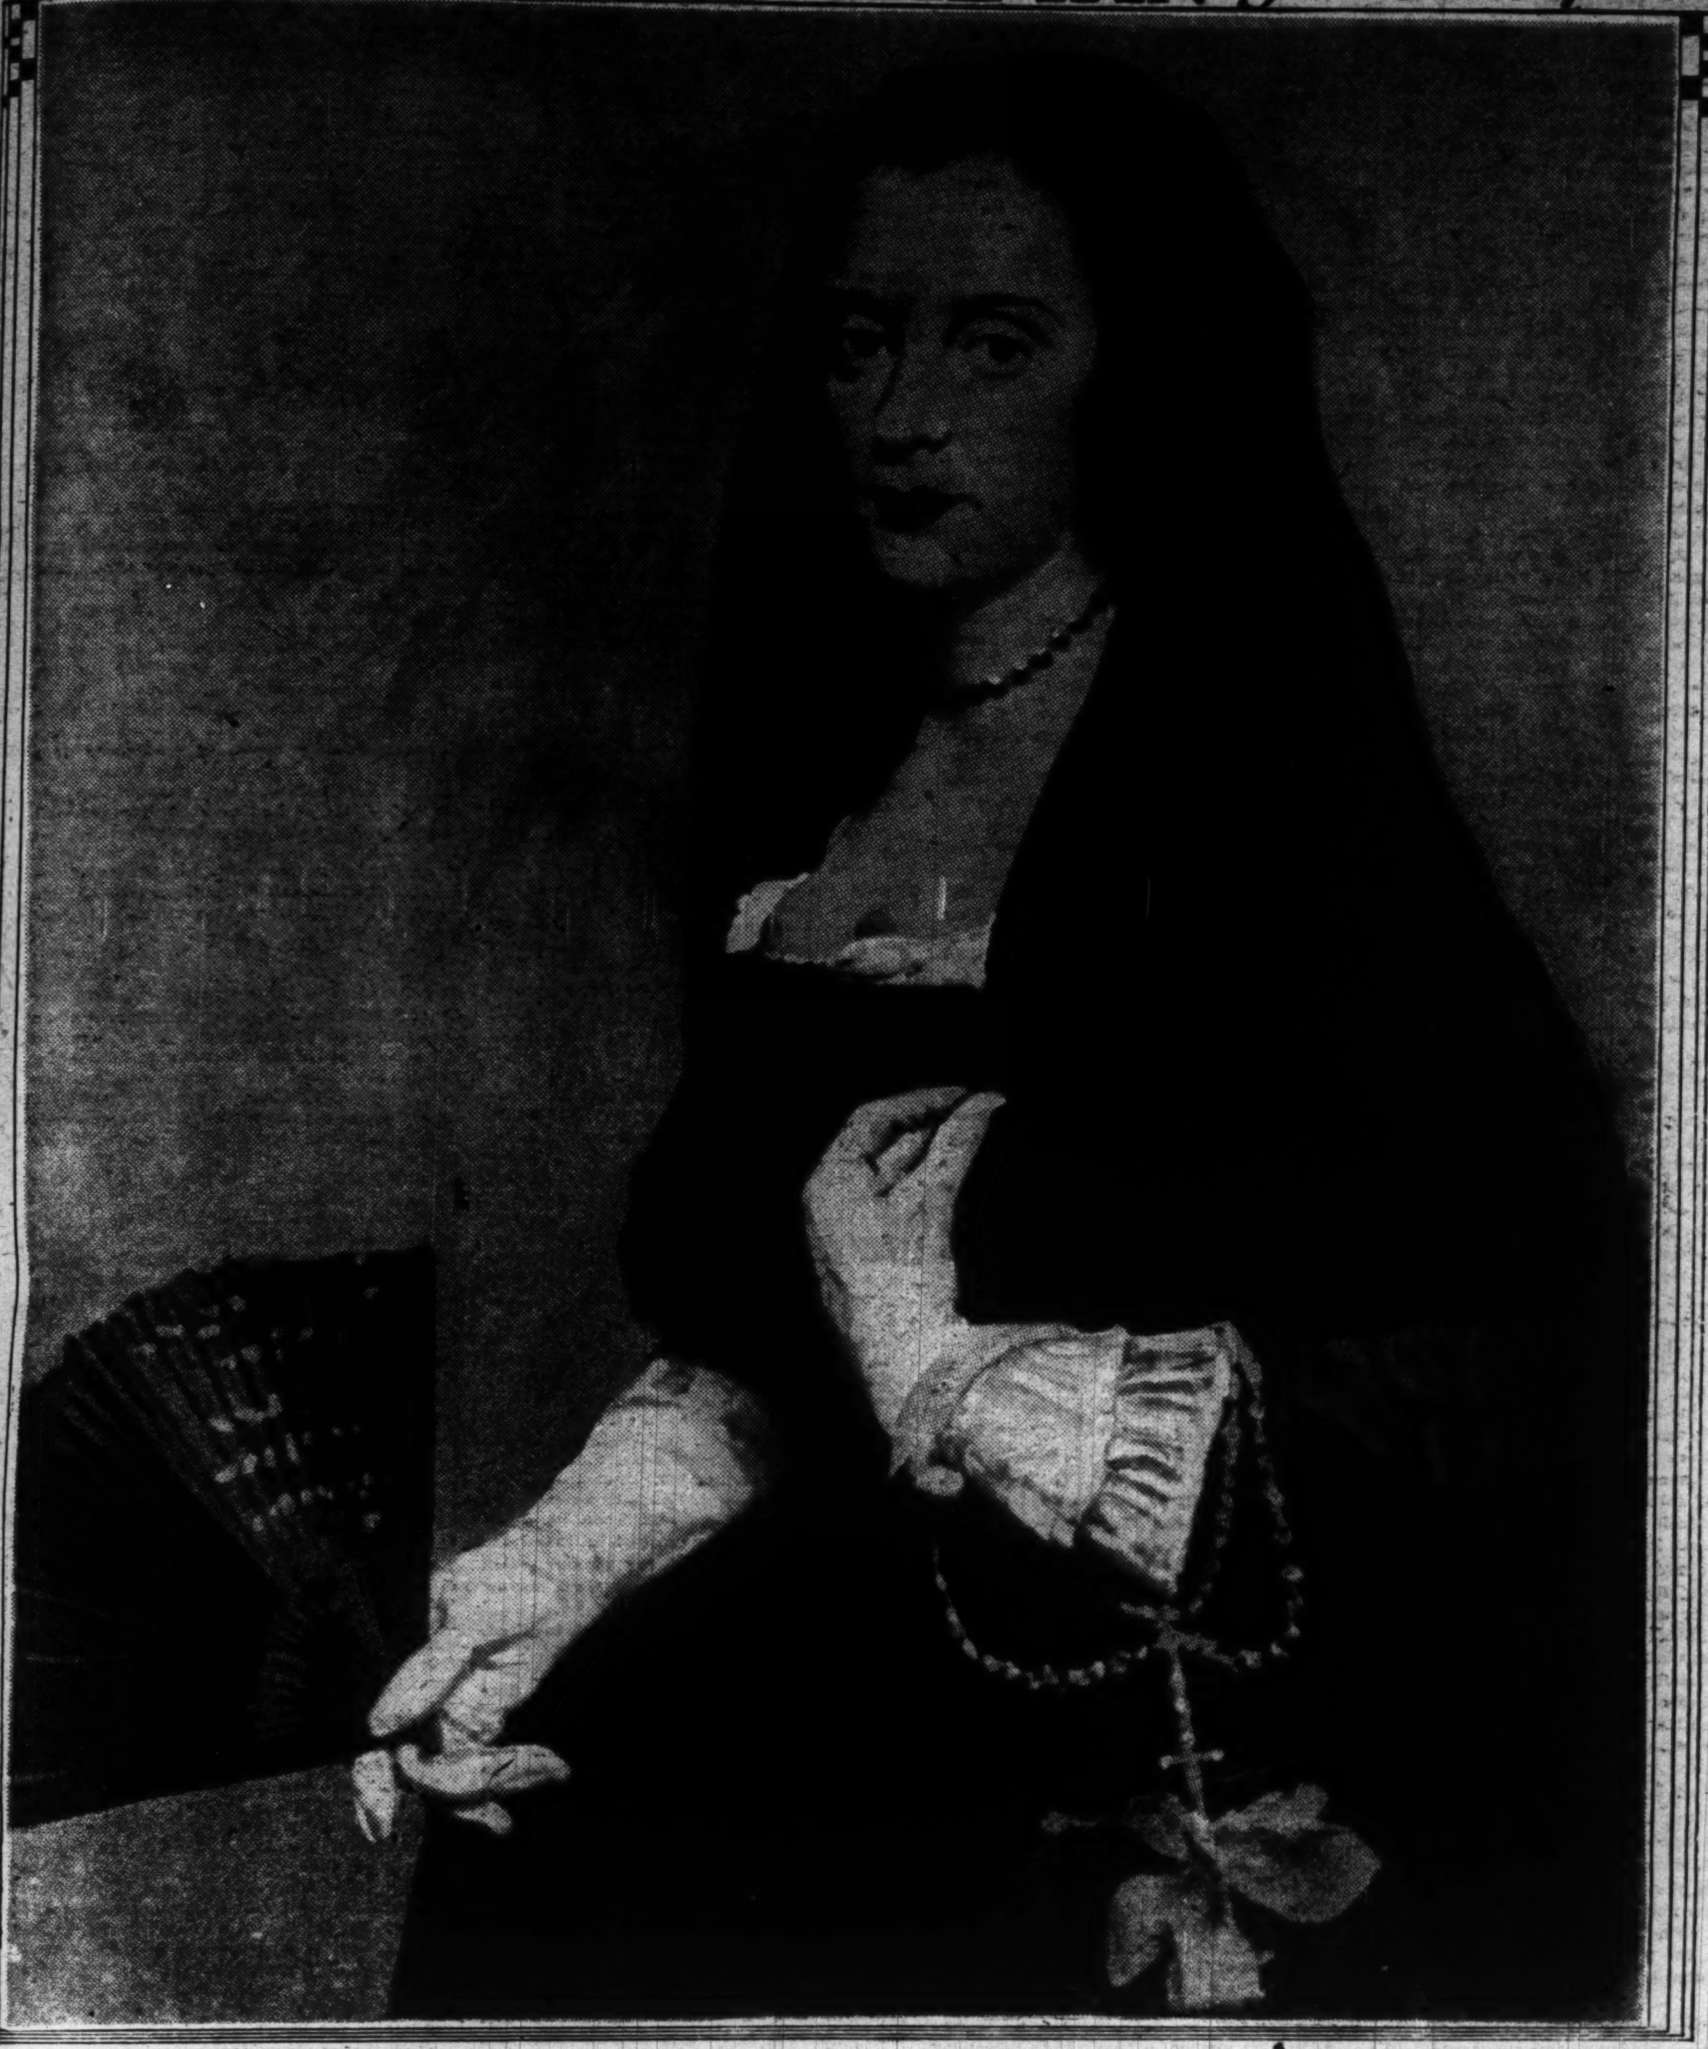
THE LADY WITH THE FAN by Velasquez



By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

The Woman with the Fan. By Velasquez (1599-1660). Wallace Collection, London.

THE art of Spain, darkened by the shadows from its torturing and tortured past, is on the whole an austere art. In Valesquez she gave birth at once to the greatest colorist and the most accurate portrait painter she has ever known. His sheet anchor was a fidelity to truth, and while, in his own time and in his own country, his influence was comparatively circumscribed, his real followers are painters of our own day, especially the French painters of the last quarter of the 19th century.

It was very early in his life that his talent for drawing showed itself, and when at twenty he married Juana, daughter of one of his masters, his successes began. It was at her home, "the golden prison of painting," that he was first introduced to the brilliant circle of artists and writers in which he was later to shine so superbly.

With his portrait of the king's famous minister, Olivares, he stepped into fame and favor. This immediate success of his was characteristic of his marvelous facility. Effort with him seemed actually to cease in the radiant peace and simplicity of his consummate power.

From this time on his life was a long triumph. He was not only Philip the Fourth's favorite, but also his genuine friend. He lived in the king's palace on terms of closest intimacy. He painted Charles the First of England, when, still Prince of Wales, that king visited Madrid. At Rome he painted Pope Innocent X., and so wondrous a piece of work was it deemed that it was carried in state, like Cimabue's picture of old, through the streets of Rome.

His final position of honor as Marshal of the Court, with the duties of superintending the personal lodgment of the king during excursions, proved too arduous for his delicate health. He contracted a fever and after a week's illness died. And seven days later his wife, prostrated with grief at his death, was also stricken. She was buried at his side.

Though Velasquez spent his life among the great ones of earth, no trace of pettiness or vanity was ever discernible in his character. Perhaps, if what Ruskin claims is true, there was a distinct connection between the sweetness of his disposition and the absolute truthfulness of his art. For very often the art which is dedicated to natural fact indicates a special tenderness of mind, and all successful work of this kind is the production of earnest and kind men, large in their views of life and full of intellectual power.

Of this, Reynolds is one instance and Velasquez, a man from one of the most cruel civilized nations in the world, the Spanish, is another. From his portraits you would not suppose him especially kind or good. There is a peculiar sternness about them. But they were as true as steel, breathing always an intense perception of truth.

His portrait of Philip the Fourth of Spain which is in the National Gallery in London is one of his finest pieces of work. He knew that king of iron who is said never to have laughed but three times in all his life, and the face, once seen, is never forgotten.

In this portrait of a woman his marks of greatness are everywhere seen. Form is seen and expression; in a word life which has grown on the canvas so quietly, so naturally and with such natural action of light on the face, that there is, in the skin, the breath of the living in its rare transparency.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

Private Williams, Necromancer

by Robert R. Presnell

"As a Dream It Was Beautiful; as a Reality It Was a Nightmare."

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex., headquarters of the late lamented punitive expedition, is a four walled, towered affair grown with ivy and wild flowers. It was built to conform to the size of the regular army and could not hold the flood of khaki clad men that swarmed in from the north during the Mexican fiasco. They were practically isolated two miles away on the bald crest of a gumbo hill that never knew a blade of grass and formed a happy hunting ground for scorpions and other thingamajigs that add to a soldier's joy.

In one week the barrenness, the gray drab, became a white city, carefully laid out in streets and avenues, with its general stores (called canteens) and its barber shops, its baths, writing rooms, and so on. The days are hot enough to fry the scalp of his satanic majesty and sizzle the hinges of his well known domicile, but the nights—what a recompense! Dreamy, languorous, and cool they are, and filled with music.

That Mexico is a place of romance is not to be wondered at, but the Mexican is accustomed to it and should know better how to treat with the dangers of lassitude. Not so the newly arrived American soldiers, healthy, young, red blooded—what else can he do but fall in love? With what, you ask? That is just it; he does not know what, and it really makes little difference. It is a peculiar one sided affair, very comfortable until it gets troublesome. Some soldiers drink it off and others brood it off. It is only temporary relief at best. The Blue Rose saloon lives on it solely and never gambles on a soldier's thirst.

Old Pietro, lantern jawed, battle scarred, and one eyed, who owns the Blue Rose, was a wise man. He put in a piano, hired a few mediocre Mexican girls to play their guitars, and sold liquor to the numerous soldados that came there to spout saccharine, dripping poetry to anything that would listen. Pietro often was the victim, and the tears that flowed from his single orbit paid a dividend in the cash drawer.

In Private Buck Williams Pietro had found a fit subject for his sympathy. Buck had just received a money order from home for a small sum, sufficient to tint life a rosy hue for the time being, and Buck was one of the mental benedicts that took consolation in Pietro's. As soon as that involuble halfbreed established to his satisfaction that Buck was once more as broke as usual he glided away.

Left alone, Buck lapsed into heavy lidded melancholy. He stayed later than usual, taking a delight in the sensation of languor that imbued him. The place finally emptied itself. Noise ceased. The piano stopped. The silence was like a sigh of relief, and subconsciously Buck raised his head to see what the trouble could be. He was alone. Lanterns hung from the rafters were growing dim in their struggle with sooty chimneys. The air reeked with the blue haze of tobacco and the odor of hops. The deers' heads on the wall looked dingy. Pietro yawned. Buck was sick of it.

Dragging himself to his feet, he ambled out into the night, lighting a fresh cigaret. The sky was clear and studded with myriads of tiny fires set in deep purple. A full moon shone. He smoked unconsciously, walked mechanically, mildly noting the beauty about him, the silence vaguely broken by subdued monotones. Houses became fewer. He passed the last and set out along the white road to the camp.

His pace soon began to lag. On all sides of him lay a desert of mesquite and cacti thrown sharply into bas-relief by the white light. On the horrizon were the lights of San Antonio. So tiny were they that they reminded him of fireflies. The noise of his own footsteps was unpleasant, so he walked on the edge of the road where the white dust lay thickest and served to soften the grating crunch to a pluffy pad-pad.

The same sensation of melancholy crept over him and with it suddenly came the crystallized desire to be loved—loved sweetly, loved humanly. He pictured a face, dark hair and eyes that mirrored the moonlight; lovely lips, half parted in a wistful smile. The silence became eloquent and the face thus created was as sweet music. He fancied her real and felt her face nestle contentedly 'gainst his own; formed for her in his mind the things he wanted to hear. He imagined her singing softly an old lullaby he once knew, and the thought tightened his throat. He saw himself fighting for her, fighting with all the fury of his youthful strength.

He was tearing, smashing, slashing, deriving a demoniacal joy in the struggle. His pulse quickened. So did his pace. And thus he reached the crest of a gentle hill that was just enough of a rise to afford a panorama of the desert. He paused. San Antonio still glimmered in the distance, partially hidden by a black line of trees. They were called "The Hermits" and marked the course of a quiet little stream that spent itself in cooling a tiny strip of the sandy waste land. Beneath their sanctum there was neither cacti nor mesquite. It was a sweet place known as "The Abbey," and it fitted his mood. So he deliberately left the last vestige of civilization behind him and turned into the desert.

Near the oasis, nestled in the shelter of two languid willows, stood a one room adobe "casa." At some time its walls had been whitewashed, but sand and wind had denuded the dry mud in the most prominent places, leaving streaks of dirty white under the eaves and about the door. The roof was shingled with rusty tin cans of conglomerate sizes carefully hammered flat. There was but one window, and through its translucent panes filtered the subdued amber of candle light. Buck had first noticed the yellow gleam like a will-o'-the-wisp a-glimmering through the restless willows, and he suddenly remembered having seen a shack there. Beside him the water gurgled softly through a dead sapling that, one end caught on the bank, stretched its scrawny self into midstream. Above him was the faint, sweet rustle of leaves with the gentle rise and fall of a little lonely wind. It reminded him of other times, happy, idle times, when he could have loved and did not, could have wept and did.

He clung the closer to his dream face, sadly knowing the while that she was but a mirage in a desolate waste, incapable of appeasing his longing for the touch of a woman. Walking slowly along the bank of the stream, he loved best to imagine her singing to him, her soft crooning creeping into his being, striving to touch ever so lightly the hunger that lay there.

High, tremulous, wondrously sweet, another voice floated into the night. So engrossed was he in his own fanciful romance that the voice and his dream were one. And then, open mouthed with wonder, he discovered that the song and the singer were real. It was a lilting Mexican melody with a touch of sadness in the slurring of the notes at the end of each line. Faintly he heard the strumming of a guitar in accompaniment. Something stirred within him as he listened. The sound seemed to come from the adobe shack and he watched the amber window.

Across the light a shadow passed. The singing ceased. There came an agonizing shriek. In that vast silence its effect was electrical. He felt the hair rise stiffly on the back of his neck and the accompanying discomfort of goose flesh. Swiftly, aquiver with excitement, he hurried forward. There came another cry and he broke into a run. He recalled in that fleeting instant how he had fought in his own mind a little while before for a mere vision.

He reached the window and peered within. In one corner of a low vaulted room knelt a girl, her arms shielding her head. Glossy black hair covered her back, clad only in a thin, loose hung garment. Above her stood a man, lean and swarthy, gesticulating wildly. Ill dressed, unkempt, from his bare feet to his iron gray hair, he stood with upraised hand, a typical Mexican peon. The hand fell heavily. The recumbent figure winced and screamed again.

It was too much for Buck. He sprang to the door and, never stopping to try the latch, threw himself against it, tearing it from its anchored in adobe hinges, sending it crashing inward to the floor, himself on top of it. With the sudden inrush of air the candles snuffed out. Another wild cry, a scrambling, a guttural voice imprecating the deity in Spanish. Buck leaped to his feet and away from the open doorway, where the white moonlight silhouetted him, marking him for any missile. A shaft of the same pale radiance slanted from the window to the floor, making twilight of the darkness.

Buck paused for a moment. The shadows in one corner began to take human shape. He could clearly define the white shirt of the Mexican. Now he reached for a low stool. He flung it. Buck sidestepped. It struck the crucifix on the wall beyond and both clattered to the floor. Buck swore under his breath and rushed, seizing the man by the throat and driving him none too gently against the wall.

In the next moment a heavy body descended upon his back and twined itself about him. A shower of blows punctuated by staccato high pitched cries of anger fell upon his head. Sharp finger nails bit into his flesh. Whole handfuls of hair bid his scalp adieu. He shook himself like a terrier and the girl tumbled to the ground, bounding like a rubber ball to her feet ready for a fresh attack. He loosed his hold on the Mexican and gazed at her in astonishment. She stood full in the moonlight at the window, her breast heaving, half crouching, her hands raised like two talons. Never had he seen eyes sparkle like that.

"You little fool," he finally blurted, "don't you want to be saved?"

"Save? Save? What you mean save? You want to keel mia padre, eh? Tell me—eh?" she screamed at him in a high falsetto.

So it was the young lady's father he had been mistreating, and his chivalry had come to an inglorious end. Some one had once told him that in Mexico it was customary and considered perfectly proper for a father to beat any member of his family whenever he saw fit. And he had intruded himself in great perturbation on a simple domestic display of affection. He felt chagrined and a little disappointed. But he smiled apologetically.

"Pobricita, I'm very sorry," he said.

"So?"

"Yes, señorita."

"Soldado let a woman lick heem till he sorry—eh?"

"I came to save you, señorita. I did not know he was your padre."

For a full minute she gazed at him in silence.

"Why you want to save me, soldado?"

"American men fight for their women."

Her antagonism wilted. She drew about her the veneer of her own sex, which has no nationality. The remark pleased her and she laughed low and musically. Buck felt more at ease. The old man stirred about in his corner, muttering to himself. He walked about the room, relit the candles, rehung the crucifix, righted the stool, and sat down to smoke a cigaret.

The incident seemed closed and as far as Buck could determine it was his cue to bow himself out, but he rather fancied the idea of lingering in this out of the way nook, no matter how clumsy his excuse. Furthermore, he felt a growing interest in the girl mingled with a desire to explore a little. She was not exactly pretty, merely exotically attractive. Mexican eyes are brilliant and Mexican lips are full and red. There was a mystery in the free, unconventional play of emotions in her face that added a temperamental charm. She was carelessly dressed, but any other more precise costume would have been incongruous.

At this point in the inventory she spied a thin wisp of red trickling from a slight wound in Buck's neck. With exclamations of regret and pity in her own tongue, of which Buck understood but little, she examined his hurts gently. She sat him down on a stool and, baring his neck, bathed them with water from a rusty pail in the corner. (The army M. D. would have thrown a fit had he seen that pail.) It pleased Buck. He went on discovering new wounds, real and imaginary, making light of them the while, till between sympathy and curiosity they slipped into a light conversation, more or less directed by Buck, for he loved to hear her mingle her English with her Mexican, both with the same accent. Finally he asked her name.

"Ysabella, Señor Soldado," she smiled. "An' what they call you?"

"Buck."

"Beck? Book? Buck?" It was too staccato for her to catch and she juggled it about, laughing at each attempt, yet trying in all seriousness. Then she got it.

"O, Buck! Dat's eet. I lak dat ver' much."

He sat down and lit a cigaret. She waited, but it never occurred to him to offer her one, and, shrugging her shoulders, she ran to her father, dove into his shirt pocket, and procured one for herself. Lighting it, she perched herself on the table, dangling her bare feet to and fro.

Some one spat on the floor. Buck turned his head. It was the old man, who stood leaning against the open door sullenly surveying the scene. His cigaret hung loosely from between his bony fingers just between his chin and the smoke coiled slowly across his face. In the other he held his sombrero. Suddenly he roused himself, jammed his hat on the side of his head, and went out. Buck experienced an uncomfortable sensation and when he again turned his attention to the girl he found her gazing intently at the doorway through which he had disappeared. Her eyes were narrow slits of light.

"Anything wrong with him?" Buck inquired. She relaxed.

"Nada, Buck, it is nossing."

In the interim of silence that followed, during which they both smoked dreamily, he remembered how infinitely sweet her voice had been when he had first heard it under the willows beside the stream. He looked for the guitar and found it leaning against the wall on the other side of the room. In a moment he had it and placed it in her lap. He did not ask her to sing in so many words, but he sat down beside her and waited.

She glanced at him roguishly out of the corner of her eyes, smiled in perfect understanding of his wants. Without any exertion or a seeming move of the hands she struck the chorded strings with the back of her hand. The harmony lingered a faint moment and died out. The smile on her lips faded. Her eyelids drooped and she gazed, unseeing, afar off. It was just such a wistful expression that he had pictured to himself, and now, oh, if only she could say the things he longed to hear.

She strummed softly on the strings. Such music was intended for the quiet hours of the night. It is the "stuff that dreams are made of." She began to sing in a melodious voice, a simple Mexican folksong. It was a sort of half chant in a minor key, that sank deep into Buck's spongelike soul. He had been hungering for just this, and perhaps more.

The hut may have been of mud, but he forgot that. Strings of chili peppers and garlic hung from the rafters, but they only completed the realism on the stage ready set. The floor was of dirt, gouged out in spots by careless hens seeking contentment and respite from the heat, but that was only a trifle and bothered him not at all. She was a Mexican peon, twixt olive and ivory skinned; pretty in her fashion, yet a portion of a class reared in ignorance and poverty, but romance and reason are diametrical opposites and Buck prepared to fall in love.

It was candlelight and moonlight; music and a girl. There were wavering shadows, a stillness of the desert; a sense of mystery and adventure. His innermost soul was lonely and he craved for the touch of a woman

She went on singing, drifting from one song to another without stopping. Her face was tilted upward, just within easy reach, and for the second time a song was interrupted. Buck kissed her full on the lips. With incredible swiftness she slipped beneath the arms intended for her embrace and darted to the other side of the room. With a sudden imperious movement she wiped her mouth.

"Gringo soldado!" she exclaimed. Then, without warning, she flung her guitar. It went wild. Buck stood still, shamefaced and dismayed. The girl's mouth twitched at the corners and the light of anger fled from her eyes.

"Well, senor, why don't you do somting?"

"What shall I do?"

She stamped her foot.

"You ask me dat? Beeg fine man lak you, wiz two strong arms. Oh, senor, how sad! Americano knows nossing of love. A Mexicano man dat love me, he would come an' get me."

Buck had never met a young lady with neolithic tendencies ere this, but he was not to be outdone by any chili guzzling hombre. His former loves had all been parlor affairs, but this offered an opportunity for ingenuity of method with little regard for gentleness, an ingredient in his private recipe which he had never thought. The hot blood mounted to his cheeks. He had great confidence in his strength, if that was all she wanted.

He crept toward her, catlike, with the smile of triumph on his face. She watched him, motionless, scarcely breathing. He was very near. Carefully calculating the distance, he crouched and sprang. She was quicker. As the huge bulk of him crashed into the wall with cruel force she stepped nimbly aside and administered a resounding slap on the cheek. In an instant he recovered himself and faced her, piqued, chagrined, half angry at the smarting red mark on his cheek. She was laughing.

His anger assumed the form of determination, and, discarding all strategy, he fell back on his reserve of brute strength. A mad race began. He took the table at a leap, sent an offending chair whirling into a corner, smashed obstacles thrown into his path, in his mighty effort. She eluded him cleverly, dodging, running, leaping, twisting. Once he caught her by the sleeve with one hand, but she wrenched free, screaming, leaving the sleeve in his grasp.

Panting and cursing his maladroitness under his breath, he kept up the chase. In the moment when he least expected it, victory came. He cornered her, and there was no escape. Despite her screams and struggles, he seized her roughly, slowly constricting the muscles in his arms and shoulders. It was good to feel them obey him and creep snakelike and velvety under his skin. She gasped for breath. He lifted her face by force and kissed her lips. Her arms slipped about his neck and she whispered, "Buck, you are so strong."

The sentence trailed away into nothing. He felt her body grow tense, saw terror rise in her face. Quickly he glanced over his shoulder. By the table, a naked blade in his hand, with eyes agleam, crouched a Mexican, his white teeth looking through a sneering lift in his upper lip. He was hatless, shoeless, and his dirty shirt hung loose at the neck. Back of him, watching narrowly, stood the old man.

Buck flung the girl from him and placed his back to the wall, instinctively flinging his gun hand to his hip. With an empty sensation he realized that he was unarmed. The Mexican saw the movement, and its result, and he grinned a hateful grin. The girl spoke first. All traces of fear had gone and her voice was calm and unconcerned.

"What you want, Phillipo?" she asked.

"Him," was the laconic reply.

"But I want heem, too."

Phillipo made a gesture of annoyance and made toward the waiting Buck. She stepped in front of him.

"Pig!" she snapped, and spat in his face. The man recoiled, anger flaming his bronze cheeks. Then followed a harsh jumble of excited gibberish, none of which Buck understood, but in the end the girl stepped aside and shrugged her shoulders.

"Ver' well," she said, "he ver' strong. I not afraid for him."

Thus thrown upon the mercy of the court, Buck began to think rapidly. He was stubborn and proud and knew nothing about discretion versus valor. He saw no way but to fight, and fight he would. All obstacles in the shape of feminine opposition having been removed, the Mexican once more faced Buck. Animal like, he wished to play a little with his victim. Folding his arms elegantly, he smiled sardonically.

"You wish to go home now, eh?" he said.

"All hell will smell of garlic before I do!" Buck snarled back.

The man only understood the words "hell" and "garlic," but he was able to interpret the tone as one of defiance. He hesitated. Buck felt like a toreador on display, half his attention being fixed on the bull and the other half on his lady in the grand stand, for she had literally barricaded herself on the top of the table. She caught his eye, and in the instant dove into the bosom of her dress, drawing out a small blade. Buck looked at the miniature weapon. It seemed like a toy. He was ignorant of the art of knife fighting, and concluded that better none at all. A quick jab to the jaw and a getaway was his play, and that game he knew, yet he was not without a sense of the dramatic. He took the knife, kissed it lightly on the handle, and handed it back. Ysabella squealed with delight.

Whatever may be said to disparage the Mexican, he can never be branded a physical coward, although he sometimes resorts to stealth to accomplish his ends. He fights furiously, bravely, but without mentality. Phillipo knew that the moment had come, and he shifted his knife from hand to hand. His frame became tense as he prepared to spring. Buck saw and waited. His head seemed to slink into his massive shoulders. The whipcords in his arms and back were on a hair trigger.

Phillipo leaped into the air. At the same instant Buck left his feet. They met in mid air with terrific force, Buck's hammerlike fist crunching home. They flew apart and fell to the floor. Buck righted himself at a safe distance. Phillipo staggered to his feet, blood streaming from his nose and an eye, dripping down his shirt. Ysabella applauded with a shrill cry.

"Bueno, mia carrisima!"

The old man danced nervously about the door, wailing to the Virgin Mary and shouting directions to his protégé.

Blinded by blood and rage, Phillipo rushed headlong, slashing the air about him between great gasps for breath. Buck seized the pail of water in the corner and flung it. Part of it struck its mark and the rest hit the wall, trickling down in dark streams. It halted the onslaught for the space of a second; time enough for Buck to drive a terrific blow to the chin. Phillipo went down, rolled and clamored to his feet, spitting and cursing. He was dazed. He lunged again, but unsteadily, lacking fury and speed. Buck met him in mid air again with a torrent of vicious jabs that sent him stumbling against the wall, shielding his face with his arms. Buck followed up, carefully picked the vulnerable spot, and delivered the blow. Phillipo crumpled up noiselessly and slithered down the wall to the floor and lay in a still heap.

Ysabella cried out in exultation. The old man groaned. Fear prompted him to rush to Buck's side to timorously beg for clemency, for the peon worships force. Ysabella pushed her father aside and flew to Buck's arms.

"You are ver grand, Buck. I love you. I will come to you tomorrow and we will be married."

But Buck's fighting blood was aroused. The last thing he wished to do was to get married just then. He glanced about the dirty hovel, looked at the sorry sight in the shape of Phillipo, got a whiff of the old man's garlic breath, and romance oozed slowly out of his soul.

"Married?" he said. There was no look of the dying calf in his eyes.

"Si, manana we will be married." She clung to him fondly for a caress.

"I don't want to get married."

"Wat?"

"I said I wouldn't marry you."

"You mean sat? You—you—oh-h-h-h-h!"

She flew at him like a starved lynx, beating him with her fists, biting, tearing his clothes, cursing in Spanish. The old man added his feeble and indignant aid with a candle stick. Buck fled. He actually ran, slowing down only when the footing became rough.

The night air and the desert were paradise. He stumbled, and in reaching out to catch himself grasped the broad flat tubor of a spiny cactus. He swore. It was not enough to satisfy his rage. He kicked the cactus to shreds and thus punctured his legs with several thousand more barbed needles, only adding to his fury. He felt as though he must vent his strength on something inanimate, so he thrashed several other cacti that stood in his path, and finally, puffing with near exhaustion, he reached the white San Antonio road. For the first time he raised his head long enough to take his bearings. Far away on the hillside he saw the streaks of white tents. It brought a ray of real joy to his bruised feelings, and he set out.

As busy as the evening had been, there still remained another ordeal, that of passing the vigilant guard. He circled the camp, watching his opportunity, till he arrived at the back by the corral. Weariness began to tell on him, and it was beginning to grow light in the east, so that it was useless to attempt concealment. In desperation he made a dash for it. Snap went a taut rifle sling.

"Halt! Who's there?"

Buck groaned and sat down in disappointment.

"It's Private Buck, M company," he answered.

"What the —! Are you drunk, or what?"

"Hun-ugh."

"Get up."

Buck obeyed.

"Corporal of the guard, No. 5," called the sentry. The summons was relayed from sentry to sentry till it became barely distinguishable in the distance. The guard turned to Buck.

"Looks like you been in a wreck. You're covered with blood. What's the matter?"

"Scrap."

"Get licked?"

"Nope."

"That's all right, then. Here, corporal!" The last was addressed to the noncom who appeared on the scene swinging a lantern and shouldering a rifle.

"Coming through the lines against the general orders, corporal."

The corporal lifted his lantern and peered into Buck's face. Then he grinned.

"All right, toddle along, Buck."

Buck knew where the guardhouse was and headed for it, followed in rear by the corporal. At that place the officer of the guard looked over his prisoner, wrote out his name and company, and sent him to the hospital. It was getting very light, and the company cooks were astir in the mess shacks, chopping wood and lighting fires.

The nettles in his hands and legs had ceased to be a source of pain to Buck. All he craved in the entire world was a cot to lie down on and a few hours in which to sleep. He swayed from side to side with exhaustion. At the hospital the night steward stripped him and laid him out on a table. Then he began to laboriously pick out the cactus needles. It mattered not a whit to Buck. He went to sleep. A few hours later he awoke. A different hospital attendant was still picking barbed needles. A soldier brought him a cup of coffee and a sandwich. It tasted like nectar. Meantime, pick, pick, pick, and under the soothing influence of the tweezers Buck dropped off again, mumbling, "I should have knocked her block off!"

And the hospital man paused to listen, but he gleaned nothing.

A COUPLE of years ago Victor Rousseau loomed up on the literary horizon of the United States with the publication in this newspaper of his "The Flights of Francois," as one of the most promising writers of the day. If you read that series of short stories you will remember them by the sparkling, virile, moving style of the author, his keen observations and his plot inventiveness. Herewith is offered another serial by this writer who is now become one of the outstanding figures in current fiction. Besides this story, he is the author of a serial story now appearing in one of the leading magazines, and of numerous short stories appearing in the current periodicals. This story, a masterly study of human nature, a mystery that will hold your attention from the first installment to the last, and a love story of unusual power is perhaps the finest piece of writing Mr. Rousseau has done. You should begin on the first installment today and read it every week.

Joan Wentworth.

FIRST INSTALLMENT.

JOAN IS SUSPENDED.

"I LET him see I wouldn't stand for any language like that, and I reckon he understood, even if I didn't have to say much," remarked the dark haired girl to Joan Wentworth. "It doesn't seem to have occurred to Dr. Lancaster yet that a nurse is a human being under her uniform. If he'd treat us half as nicely as he treats some of his lady friends," she added in a suggestive tone that changed into the accentuation of ordinary speech under Joan's discouraging look. "I've seen him driving them round town nights in his auto, and I've never seen the same one twice. I guess he takes it out on us when they've been mean to him."

Joan did not answer her. She was watching the head surgeon as he came into the operating theater. At his entrance the general buzz of conversation ceased as if the outpouring of words had been cut off with a knife The students on the benches settled themselves in their places and craned their heads forward intently. The two assistant surgeons, Ivers and MacPherson, assumed attitudes of constraint, for everybody was constrained in Lancaster's presence. The orderly, who had been peering through the crack of the swinging door into the anesthetic room, where the head nurse was holding the patient's wrist and watching the face beneath the mask intently, straightened himself and stood up in military fashion. Only the visiting doctors seemed at their ease as they advanced to shake hands with John Lancaster.

They had come from several neighboring cities, drawn by the news that Lancaster was to perform his famous operation of arterial excision, which was just then the subject of discussion in the medical press. Plenty of surgeons had tried to remove a section of one of the larger bloodvessels, but only Lancaster had succeeded in bringing down the mortality to 15 per cent.

Lancaster was something of a mystery both to his colleagues and to the nursing staff. The Lancaster fund supported the Southern hospital, and John Lancaster was firmly established at the head of the institution. The board of guardians, which existed according to the terms laid down in his father's will, had apparently only an advisory capacity and it was supple and plastic in Lancaster's hands. And John Lancaster was more feared and admired than any doctor in the country.

Feared by most for his tyranny, admired by a very few on account of his extraordinary skill, he seemed to have a dual personality. The man whose fast life was the scandal of the conservative little southern seaport, who was ostracized by the better families, whose infrequent appearances in the hospital were usually the occasion for injustice, storms, and dismissals, changed in the operating theater into a man whose gentleness and humility and skill made him adored for the time by all who came into contact with him. But it was only rarely that a case occurred that required his attention.

On such occasions his manner was in itself remarkable He would slip stealthily into his private room, dress there, and emerge masked like a mummy to perform his miracle almost in silence, and afterward to make his escape in a way suggestive of his having performed some shameful action.

So much Joan Wentworth had heard. Naturally she watched his entrance on this her first day of surgical work with absorbed interest unshaken by the dark haired girl's scandalous revelations. But Lancaster came in unmasked, and Joan could discern nothing humble or secretive in the self-satisfied face or the brisk manner in which he greeted the visiting surgeons.

He looked a man of seven or eight and thirty, and he bore his years heavily. The eyes were lined and a little sunken; the features, which Joan had seen only a few times during her eighteen months of work at the hospital, exercised, as they had always done, a rather repellent effect upon the girl. The face was eminently cruel and hard. Nevertheless the man obviously dominated the assembly.

He dominated her. She was much more afraid of some nervous lapse in Lancaster's presence than of seeing the use of the knife. The hissing of the steam tank, the nervous movements of the spectators upon the benches, whose heads seemed to swing with a uniform and rhythmical motion, the deepening sense of constraint, acted upon her with a sort of hypnotic effect not lessened by Lancaster's decisive manner.

She pulled the tray of instruments out of the boiling water and set it down upon the table by the side of the bichloride solution. Lancaster, who had been pulling on his rubber gloves, came to her side, and plunged both hands into the antiseptic fluid. There was a look of self-conscious satisfaction upon his face, and Joan thought that every gesture and each movement was designed to impress the visitors. Presently she became sure of it. The man was acting. A feeling of disgust came over her.

Lancaster cast a quick glance at Joan.

"New nurse?" he asked.

"My first morning of surgical work, Dr. Lancaster," she answered.

He grunted in a contemptuous sort of way. Joan flushed to the hair. He turned to the other girl.

"You there!" he shouted. "Look alive with those sponges!" And he cast a quick glance toward the visitors, as if to see whether they appreciated his harshness.

A look of chagrin came over the dark haired girl's face, but she ran to obey and dropped the wet sponges into the bichloride with shaking fingers. At the same moment the swing door opened and the stretcher with the patient appeared, wheeled by the orderly. Behind it walked the head nurse, still maintaining her crouching attitude as she moved. The stretcher stopped inside the theater and the head nurse and orderly lifted the man who lay upon it on the glass table.

He mumbled and tried to raise himself. The nurse put her hands about his shoulders, pressing them down, while the orderly held the body, protesting against the indignity about to be offered to it, to which it had emphatically not consented, whatever arrangement had been decreed by the brain. Lancaster's harsh voice boomed through the theater:

"That's no way to bring a patient here, Miss Symons! Deep anesthesia!"

The head nurse lifted her face for an instant. "There's a history of nephritis, Dr. Lancaster," she said. "The pulse is 150, and Dr. MacPherson said——"

"Who's running this business?" shouted Lancaster, striding toward her; and Joan was sure that he looked out of the corner of his eye toward the visitors.

He snatched the green ether bottle out of the nurse's hand and poured a quantity of the fluid upon the mask. The struggles ceased, the man sighed deeply, and his limbs relaxed. The nauseating stench of the ether fumes made Joan's head reel. It seemed to fill the theater. Miss Symons, flushing, but displaying no resentment, took the bottle from Lancaster's hand and resumed her position, holding the patient's wrist and peering into his face, the green bottle upraised. Lancaster went back to the foot of the table and the visiting surgeons clustered about him. Joan had never found him so detestable as at that moment.

The girl who was in charge of the sponges whispered bitterly to her:

"He doesn't know how to treat a woman—not a lady. He isn't our kind. My, he must have been on a terrible racket last night! He can't keep up that gait much longer unless he gives up his work here."

Joan ignored her; she had concentrated all her attention upon Lancaster's probable demands; she was resolved not to be found wanting. It was said that Lancaster was absolutely merciless and had ruined many a girl's career by refusing to allow her to complete her graduating course. He was tyrannical, overlooked nothing, and never appreciated good work. Rumor went that when a certain nurse had once handed him benzine instead of alcohol he had taken her by the shoulders and run her bodily out of the hospital, forbidding her to show her face there again.

"He can't last long if he leads that sort of life," the dark haired girl repeated. "You'd think he'd be old enough to have learned how to pretend to be a gentleman even if he isn't one."

Joan shook her off mentally as one chases away a persistent fly. For the tenth time she counted the instruments in the tray. Lancaster picked up a scalpel, and MacPherson and Ivers took up their positions, one on either side of him. The operation was beginning.

The visiting surgeons watched, with an occasional whispered remark. The assistants already were snapping the little forceps upon the ends of the divided arteries. Lancaster issued his commands from time to time, without looking back:

"Sponges!"

"One—two," whispered the dark haired girl. "Three—four—five——"

"Bistoury. Scissors. Dilator. No. 4 Simms."

Joan never faltered. She felt easier in her mind; her quick hands found the instruments in the tray the moment Lancaster demanded them. Meanwhile the dark haired girl never ceased counting the sponges:

"Six—seven—eight—nine——"

Suddenly Lancaster stopped, wheeled, and turned fiercely upon her. "For God's sake, stop that clatter!" he cried.

The girl let a sponge fall, snatched it up, and shot an apprehensive glance at him. Joan saw that she was losing her nerve in spite of her brave talk of a few minutes before. She redoubled her eagerness, but Lancaster's treatment of her companion was now beginning to frighten her. It was the critical time of a very dangerous and difficult process. She tried to pull herself together.

Yet without looking up she realized that a sense of general apprehension had stolen through the operating theater. The nurse at the head of the table, looking like a veiled vestal, had not shifted her position since the beginning of the operation, except that from time to time her hand shifted slightly as she let one or two drops of ether fall upon the mask. MacPherson and Ivers stirred busily, their heads bent level with their chief's as they moved to and fro at their work. The patient began to mutter again. Then a hand upraised in weak protest, struck a clamp from Ivers' fingers. It rattled upon the floor.

"Keep him quiet, Miss Symons, confound you!" shouted Lancaster.

"Dr. Lancaster, the pulse——" she began. But, after a quick glance at the head surgeon, she shrugged her shoulders, tilted the bottle, and deliberately poured out nearly all the ether remaining in it. The renewed stench of the anesthetic filled the room. Joan saw the benches swing, the craning faces seemed to become multiplied; Lancaster and the two assistants, the visiting surgeons, were tiny gnomes, an immense distance away, surrounding a tiny table on which a doll-like figure lay extended. She tried to bring them back into focus, but could not; and, what was worse, she felt that she had lost the nurse's sense of divining the surgeon's requirements before he gave expression to them.

Something was wrong, and although nothing had been said, even the students on the top row of benches farthest from the table were aware of it. The assistant doctors appeared as busy as ever, and yet they seemed at a loss, and once or twice looked up at Lancaster as if his technic was puzzling them. Joan saw two of the visiting surgeons exchange brief glances, one with inquiry, the other, answering, with uplifted eyebrows. Once Lancaster stopped; he resumed his work, stopped again, and stood staring at his work. Then he wheeled round upon Joan, the upper part of his body seeming to move upon a pivot while his lower limbs remained stationary.

The head nurse rose to her feet, not looking at the patient. Joan realized that she was crying, and her strong, epicene face looked grotesque in grief. The orderly came up and together they placed the patient on the stretcher. And suddenly Joan knew that the man was dead.

As the stretcher was wheeled out of the theater Lancaster turned toward his visitors.

"A very successful piece of work," he said. "It's a pity the poor fellow will never know how much I have done for him."

Joan felt the visiting surgeons' disgust at the execrable jest. Lancaster seemed to sense it, too.

"Unfortunately," he continued, "the best of surgeons is not proof against the stupidity of a nurse."

And he turned upon Joan fiercely. "What is your name?" he demanded.

"Miss Wentworth, Dr. Lancaster."

"Well, you're no use here. You're wasting your time. You've killed a man this morning," he bellowed. "If I can't have women about me with rational heads on their shoulders I'll get a gang of Chinese chop suey men. Get out and earn your living as a stenographer or saleslady. That's all your talents are fit for, Miss Wentworth!"

Joan looked at him in amazement. At his first words, at his tone, she had felt the shock of anger in her heart gather itself and leap to meet his own. But his rage frightened her, her head ached, and she was sick from the fumes which still penetrated the theater. She tried to answer him, but could not utter a word and broke into tears instead, sobbing in complete nervous abandonment.

Lancaster turned from her with a wry face. "Well, gentlemen," he said, with an affectation of joviality, "better luck next time. I'm sorry the operation was not successful, but, after all, the patient's life is not the principal thing. The method was correct, you see, but I did not reckon on an incompetent assistant."

"Put the blame on the anesthetic, Dr. Lancaster," said a white bearded surgeon, with chivalrous intent. "With a nephritis history operation's useless. Better let them die peacefully."

"I did not quite grasp the technical innovation you spoke of, Dr. Lancaster," said another. "To my mind it was the original Leonard operation, except that——"

"Why did you divide the arterial coats below the site of the aneurism?" queried a third.

Lancaster led them from the theater, expostulating and explaining. The dark haired girl lingered with the sponges. The assistant surgeons had already gone hurriedly out. Joan put her tray away. She still was unable to control her sobs.

Suddenly Lancaster reappeared, furious after the cross examination to which he had been subjected. He came straight toward Joan with a face of malice. Unconscious of her pitiful aspect as a child might have been, she raised her streaming face and looked at him.

"You had no right to speak to me like that, whatever I did," she said.

"Whatever you did? Whatever you failed to do! What do you think you are here for?" he stormed.

He glared at her, turned away, hesitated, and then came back.

"That's just the way with you women," he cried. "You lost that case for me. And now you are thinking about your dignity. You shouldn't have taken a nurse's vocation. You women don't know what you can do and what you can't till you find yourselves in a post of responsibility, and then you fall down. What made you take up nursing, anyway? Thought our style of caps becoming, I suppose."

"I've done my best to qualify. I've never been blamed before."

"Well, you've made a big mistake," said Lancaster. "That's all. A—very—big—mistake," he added, emphasizing each word with a nod. "And my work and patients' lives are too important to allow mistakes to happen. You're too pretty to be a nurse, anyway," he added in a lower tone.

"You don't need to tell me that, Dr. Lancaster!" cried Joan furiously.

He made a gesture of mock despair.

"That's right, get on your high horse again!" he said. "Just remember that I'm at the head of the Southern hospital, and what I say goes, that's all."

He swung upon his heel and went out of the room, leaving her gripping the table fiercely in her humiliation. The dark haired girl, who had been fussing in a corner, came up to her.

"He's a beast!" she exclaimed passionately. "He hates women—decent women. My! If he'd dared to speak that way to me I'd have told him what I thought of him, right in the middle of the operation. I don't care for anybody when my temper's up. I could tell you a few things I've heard about him if I were minded to. Do you know he went on a five years' spree once?"

"I don't care what he did!" cried Joan passionately.

"Well, I guess you could make it your business to know," answered the other. "A girl's got to fight her way the same as a man. He threw up his job and just went away for five years, drinking and living with tramps, and then had the nerve to come back as if nothing had happened. I got it from a girl that used to be friendly with him. He's——"

She broke off abruptly as the orderly appeared with his rubber broom and bucket.

"What are you going to do about it?" inquired the girl in a low voice. "I reckon you don't want to forfeit your diploma any more than the rest of us. Listen! You go and see him"

"Never!" said Joan.

"Don't be a fool, Miss Wentworth! You go and see him at his house. It's what any one would do in your place. Fool him by making him think he can do what he likes with you; play with him and hold him off by hook or crook until you're graduated, and then laugh at him. I'd do it if I had to. My! if you heard some of the stories that are going round——"

The head nurse beckoned at the door. "The lady superintendent wants to see you at once, Miss Wentworth," she said. "You're to go right into her office."

She looked at Joan resentfully. Her face was quite composed again, but her eyes were reddened. She knew that Lancaster had been at fault, but she had seen Joan's blunder, too. Miss Symons was one of those women who can acquire the faculty of a man's strength without losing the qualities of their own sex. She was a tower of strength toward weakness, but she had no pity for a lapse of duty.

Joan walked the dreary length of the corridor to the lady superintendent's room. The white haired woman was seated at her desk, pretending to be making up her accounts and composing herself for the interview.

"Miss Wentworth!" she began, turning round in her chair as Joan appeared at the door, "you have made Dr. Lancaster very angry. He says you are totally inefficient. What was it that happened this morning?"

"The ether made me faint and I couldn't see the instruments for a moment, and Dr. Lancaster happened to want a scalpel quickly," answered Joan.

"Well, it's a great pity," said the other, "because it was your first day and we had to get somebody to take Miss Martin's place and I selected you because I relied on you particularly. Anyway, you are suspended." Joan looked at her stupefied. Though she had nerved herself for this, she realized at that moment that she had never expected the decision.

"You mean—that—I am to leave the hospital and lose my diploma?" she asked.

"I don't know yet," answered the lady superintendent evasively. "I suppose Dr. Lancaster will decide that later after he has laid the matter before the board at their next meeting and looked over your record. As you know, he doesn't usually change his mind. And what he says goes with the board. Anyway, Miss Wentworth, you may as well take a holiday for a week or so until you hear from us."

She turned back to her books, while Joan, after looking at her for a moment in silence, turned and went into the corridor. She made her way toward the hospital entrance. And the great wooden arch, through which she had passed hundreds of times without noticing it, suddenly became vivid with detail; the hospital, which had been a part of her unconscious life, looked strange and new to her.

Joan had a room in a nurses' boarding house a few minutes' walk away. The nurses' building had been burned down two years previously and the funds of the institution had not enabled it to complete the reconstruction of the edifice.

She walked mechanically homeward, hardly even yet realizing the magnitude of the blow which had befallen her. The events of the morning were already becoming blurred and unreal. Avonmouth lay almost deserted in the noontide glare. The shuttered houses, gay with striped awnings, looked down on the white, dusty streets. The little park that contained the confederate monument was bright with geraniums, but the grass was parched and withered, and the feeble efforts of an automatic sprinkler seemed almost instantly absorbed by the thirsty ground.

Joan made her way toward an overhanging tree, brushed away a prickly caterpillar from a seat beneath it, and sat down. She looked across the park at the red blotch made by the hospital against the water oaks. She was trying to estimate the magnitude of the catastrophe that had happened to her, to free herself from the stupefied wonder and passionate resentment that held her. Two hours before life had seemed reasonably bright; now its entire course was changed. For she did not doubt that the woman superintendent had been trying to soften the news of her dismissal.

Her mind ran back to the beginning of all things for her—her father's death. That had happened ten years before, and the mortgage on the estate, ruined after the war, had grown like a spreading sore, eating away field after field, until it swallowed everything except nine hundred dollars. After the enforced sale, Mrs. Wentworth and her daughter had gone to Avonmouth for the sole reason that the mother remembered a wealthy godmother there, distantly related, whose activities she hoped to enlist on behalf of her daughter. It was characteristic of her that she should not have known the woman had died six years previously.

Still, Avonmouth was the nearest large town in which a girl, flung on the world untrained, might hope to support two people. Joan had long before wanted to be a nurse. She decided to attempt to enter a hospital, but now her mother's slow, mortal illness kept her nursing her at home. Six months after their arrival Mrs. Wentworth died. What remained of their nine hundred dollars after the doctor's and funeral expenses had been paid would suffice for Joan's merest needs until she had graduated from the Southern hospital. But the physician who attended Mrs. Wentworth in her last illness had secured the girl her position as a probationer, and Joan was as happy as she could expect to be. Since that date he had moved away, and Joan was altogether alone.

At home they had known hardly any one, for the whole region was in that condition of resettlement that began in the seventies and is still proceeding. Their friends had scattered to the north and west; their letters had long since ceased. Prosperity, stalking through the nation, had left a little ridge of poverty between the swaths of its progress through the foothills of the back country. In Avonmouth Mrs. Wentworth's illness, and afterward the hospital work, had kept the girl both from making friends and from the realization of her need of them. Her whole mind was set upon obtaining that diploma, which would mean an assured living, and before her eyes was ever the spectacle of such poverty as she had known at home among others and had been approaching her mother. After she graduated, perhaps, life might begin to unfold before her eyes. But even this she realized only vaguely; she lived altogether in the moment.

In the town of forty thousand inhabitants Joan was as isolated as she had been in the latter years at home. Her life was as unsophisticated and as simple, and she was so unacquainted with the conditions and circumstances of existence that her dismissal seemed to her an irreparable disaster.

She had won good opinions, she had been praised, and it seemed monstrous that her faintness at a critical moment should have ruined her whole life prospects. What made the tragedy the less tolerable was the admixture of the farcical. There was a simple and absurd explanation: Mrs. Webb's colored cook, Amanda, had quarreled with her mistress that morning, and Joan had had to go to the hospital without her breakfast.

The White Feather

by Lechmere Worrall and J. E. Harold Terry

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in the West Crest private hotel in an English seacoast town when England has been at war one month. Mrs. Sanderson, the proprietress; her son, Charles, serving in the English admiralty; Mr. Pollock, the justice of the peace; his daughter, Molly, 19; Christopher Brent, Molly's fiance; Mrs. Miriam Lee, a widow of 35, the latest arrival at the hotel; Miss Myrtle, a spinster; Fräulein Schroeder, a colorless little German woman, claiming twenty years of English naturalization; Pennicuik, a young English soldier, and Fritz, a servant in the house, are the characters. Brent is looked upon by all the other hotel occupants, except Molly and Mrs. Lee, as an irresponsible idiot, due to acts and conversation he affects, especially when war talk, which is uppermost in all conversation, is conducted in his presence. A young English girl, an hysterical enthusiast, breaks in on the hotel party one morning carrying a basket of white feathers, one of which she is going to present to every man she meets who has not enlisted. In the presence of almost the entire hotel patronage she asks Brent if he is going to enlist, and why not. He says he is not, but his reasons are evasive. Molly cringes under the disfavor Brent thus brings down upon himself by what her father calls cowardice. Brent tries to gain Molly's absolute faith in him without disclosing the nature of his real business. Brent finds Fräulein Schroeder has made drawings of the English harbor and its defenses. Brent installs a dictaphone in the hotel, and hears conversations held by the German spies. He learns of a plot to signal a German submarine from the hotel by burning the hotel to the ground, the occupants along with it. The plotters tell Pollock Brent and Mrs. Lee are German spies. Pollock theatens arrest of Brent. Molly believing Brent to be Mrs. Lee's dupe, decides to save him. She steals a paper from Miriam's drawer and confronts Brent with evidence of Mrs. Lee's treachery. Mrs. Lee overhears her telling Brent what she has found, and to save the situation Miriam pleads guilty to Molly. Molly calls Charles in to take action with Miriam, and their conversation results in Charles disclosing to Miriam that he, too, is a German spy. He welcomes her to his own little band of spies. Miriam aids Mrs. Sanderson, Fräulein Schroeder, Fritz and Charles in their getaway after the guests had gone to bed and the bomb had been set. Charles was to remain behind long enough to see there was no hitch. Fritz was to get rid of Pennicuik, and these two later were to join Mrs. Sanderson and Fräulein in the automobile Miriam had telegraphed her two supposedly German spy confederates to have awaiting promptly. With the two women safely ensconced in the waiting car, and seated opposite Miriam's armed confederates, who proved to be the two plain clothes men Brent had telegraphed for, Miriam drives them directly to the English police headquarters.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

CONCLUSION.

NEITHER Brent nor Molly ever forgot entirely the night that followed. To Molly the whole thing seemed like a nightmare. The atmosphere was charged not only with impending death and futile rage and bitter disappointments, but with actual evil. It seemed to her, so unused to contact with such things, actually to pervade the air. Fräulein had been carried in, a little, twisted, convulsive figure in her brown wrappings, her unconscious face dewed and twisted. Her jerkings were horrible to see, and Molly, who with the rest had crowded into the hall, turned and fled down the passage to the sitting room again, where she remained huddled up in an armchair, shaking with what was more distaste than fear.

Chris had not followed her there. In that disorganized household some one had to take the lead and it devolved naturally on him. The case was hopeless, as every one could see from the first, but still the doctor did all he could and Mrs. Sanderson sat in a kind of stony despair by the bed. Mr. Pollock went booming round the house, Miss Myrtle, feeling neglected, had hysterics and brandy and soda in her room, and Charles remained—always with that fixed immobility of his—in the room next to fräulein's, his guard around him. So much Chris had conceded to the misery and terror of Mrs. Sanderson.

When the house was fairly reduced to order Chris went in search of Molly. He looked in her room, but she was not there, and he knew enough of her to be sure she would not be seeking solace either with Miss Myrtle or her father. He went to his own room, wondering if she had gone there to look for him, but that, too, was empty. And when he went down to the sitting room he found he had been forestalled. Miriam, whose life had taught her to think of every one's feelings when the work in hand permitted her to do so, had no sooner done all she could for fräulein than she went in search of Molly. She had seen her rush from the hall and had realized what the whole affair must mean to a girl who probably had never come across anything worse than a cut finger in the whole of her life. She had found Molly hiding her face in the cushion and shaking all over.

Growing up is a perfectly natural process if the ordinary time is allowed for it, but when a normal law suffers violent upheaval it can become unnatural, and Molly had done all her growing up since the morning before. The nervous and mental strain had consequently been very much more intense than if the usual experiences of life had gradually unfolded themselves to her step by step.

That little nightmare of a writhing figure in brown and the knowledge of what had gone to bring it to that state was so overpowering to Molly that in the shadow of it the whole scheme of life seemed wicked and unbearable. She supposed she loved Chris, but after all what was love in the face of these events which it was so powerless to affect? She did not think, as she would have done the night before, that because Chris did not come to her, therefore he did not love her. She knew that he could not and was even able to feel that she would have loved him less if he had. But nevertheless, in the whirlpool of these events which took no heed of her, as a person negligible to either side, she felt terribly alone and unhappy. She needed personal comfort, and Miriam, who had long outgrown any such thing for herself, knew that such must be the case. As a woman who has suffered much will, she saw her own youth in Molly and was tender of it accordingly.

Miriam was feeling rather shattered herself. It had not been pleasant to realize by fräulein's sudden convulsion at the police station that she had managed to take poison. It had not been pleasant, if it came to that, to witness the fury and misery of the two women when they found they had been tricked. Miriam, like Chris, had moments of loathing the necessities of her work. The drive back to the house had partaken of the nature of a nightmare, herself and the doctor seated on either side of the unconscious but convulsed form. The fact that fräulein in her mania had been quite prepared to sacrifice half a dozen lives did not entirely dissipate the discomfort Miriam felt that, primarily through her action, this one life was drawing to such a tragic close. She, too, was anxious to keep doing something, and her thoughts had turned to Molly because she knew that there she was really needed.

Just as Molly was feeling frantic almost to hysteria point strong arms came round her, she felt her tangled hair being smoothed away from her wet face, and her dressing gown wrapped more warmly round her shivering little figure.

"There, my dear," said Miriam's warm, rather husky voice. "There's nothing to mind about now. Everything's all right and everything's going to be all right."

It was one of those moments when some one of her own sex is more to a woman than a man could be. When once the stress of emotional scenes was over these two would dislike each other again as much as ever. Molly would always distrust Miriam, while for her part the widow, while allowing that Molly was a "sweet little thing," would always consider her totally uninteresting. But just now Molly flung herself on Miriam, clinging hold of her, and Miriam held her tightly—and both women were sincere, though if they were to repeat the performance when life had righted itself it would become pretense.

Miriam fetched a rug and wrapped Molly up, then disappeared to return in a few minutes with the homely but comforting remedy of hot milk. While Molly was drinking it she brushed out her hair and mopped her face with rose water, and added a dusting of powder, all of which, especially the last, did more to make Molly feel herself again than any amount of brandies and sodas or conversation would have done.

"There," said Miriam at length, giving a final pat to Molly's hair. "Now you're feeling better, aren't you?"

"O, you are good," said Molly, "but you only make me feel worse in a way. To think how I have been hating you."

"Never mind, it was quite natural, and it's all over now, anyway."

"All over," repeated Molly. "Yes, everything's all over—you are quite right there."

Miriam paused, brush in hand, and looked at her inquiringly.

"What do you mean when you repeat it like that?" she asked. "What's all over?"

"Everything between me and Chris."

"My dear child, excuse me, but what utter nonsense. You are just tired out, that's what's the matter, and you're seeing everything out of focus. Everything's going to begin all over again for you and Chris, and going to be much better than ever before."

"I don't see how it can," said Molly miserably. "I'm sort of feeling two things at once. I don't know how to explain it."

"Try and tell me about it," suggested Miriam, sitting down beside her.

"Well, it's like this," began Molly. "Part of me feels that I am not worthy of Chris and that he's been so great and wonderful and splendid and saved all our lives, while I was being petty and self-absorbed and let myself suspect him of all sorts of dreadful things. I don't see how he can ever forgive me or feel the same to me again. And the other part of me—" she paused.

"Well, go on," encouraged Miriam.

"It sounds very absurd, but the other part of me can't forgive Chris. You see, he's lied and lied and lied to me. Of course, I can quite see he had to, and I know he hated doing it, but still the fact remains that he can, doesn't it? And I can't help feeling that now I should always be uncertain about Chris, about what to believe. Just when I was loving him most, and he was being nicest, I should think, 'I wonder if this is true or whether he is only saying it?' Oh, it sounds horrid of me, but don't you see what I mean?"

Miriam nodded and took both of Molly's hands in hers. "I quite see what you mean, my dear," she said, "but won't it make a difference to you when I tell you that Chris sees it, too? It's what he's been afraid of, but I have known him a great many years now, and I can tell you this, that he has always realized the danger of his work—that it might upset his values, I mean, and make him think less of lying than other people—and the consequence is that he is more rigorous than any other man I know in his personal affairs. You could always believe him about anything like that. And, Molly, I don't know how much you know of the world, but you surely know that there are not many men who could be such a good pal to me as he has been without ever saying or doing or thinking anything that one man might not do or say or think in relation to another. Ask any of his friends and they will all tell you Christopher Brent is the straightest pal on earth."

"I know. 'm sure he is," replied Molly a little more cheerfully, "but you must see it is difficult to feel quite the same about it at first, isn't it? It isn't that I blame Chris for any single thing he's done. It was his duty, and I think he has been splendid. It's only that it's a little—well—disconcerting—to find he could deceive one so well."

"Suppose you forget about your side of it for a bit, Molly. Realize that Chris hated it just as much as you do, only for his country's sake he had to sacrifice everything, even you, if necessary. He has had an awful strain in these last twenty-four hours, my dear, and it's up to you to make him happy now it's all over."

The idea caught at Molly's imagination and she sat up eagerly, fresh life kindling in her face.

"If I can do that," she began, then stopped as Chris himself came in.

"There you are, Molly!" he exclaimed. "You poor little thing I have been looking for you everywhere, and now I can't stay with you after all. I must go upstairs again. Miriam, you had better come, too; the doctor says it's only a question of a few minutes."

Miriam stood up and once again Molly had the feeling of being slipped into the background while more important things were attended to. She looked after them and the tears rushed uncontrollably to her eyes. But the next minute Brent ran into the room and came up to the back of her chair as she knelt upright on the seat looking over it.

"Hush, Chris; hush, darling," she said.

"Don't go to bed, sweetheart, wait for me," he whispered, and taking her head between his hands he made as if to kiss her, then checked himself and went quickly out of the room again.

Molly remained kneeling up in the chair, then with sudden determination she, too, went out and up the stairs, and crept toward the door of the room where fräulein lay.

. . . .

Fräulein lay drawn up in a contorted position under the bed clothes, her head was pressed right back into the pillow so that her ashen pale features jutted sharply up from it. A little froth lay at the corners of her mouth. Her eyes were open and staring, but she was quite unconscious.

Mrs. Sanderson sat by the bed shuddering violently. Her motor bonnet was off and her fair, grayish hair was disordered and hung about her tear wet face. She held the dying woman's wrist and kept on appealing to her by name, as though to pierce her fluttering consciousness.

Charles sat beside her, and the only expression in his pale, impassive face was sheer distaste for the whole affair. Nevertheless, what remnants of humanity the downfall of his hopes had left him were centered in his mother, and, since he was permitted to sit with her through these most trying moments of all, he did his best to comfort her by dint of stern calm rather than by any consolation. Two soldiers stood just behind him and two more were at the door.

ror. It seemed to her by now that a nightmare had become the usual mode of life. Miriam was already beside the doctor on the other side of the bed. Chris stood by the window, looking out of it. He felt the long drawn painfulness of the scene rather as Charles did—as an infliction that had to be borne. But although the dying woman had been Charles' companion, it was Chris who was the more moved by the sight. It was not a pleasant death, not the quiet and inevitable drawing to the full of one who dies in due time, but rather a sudden and violent disruption of the life tissues. Everything that was sordid and ugly in the work of spies seemed concentrated and fused in the stiffening figure on the bed.

Charles and his mother were both, in their different ways—his clear cut and positive, hers muddled and hopeless—aware that all the glamor and glory had been stripped off their exploits. No one engaged in what was glorious would have been driven to end like fräulein; that was the bare fact, and there was no getting away from it. Even the silent soldiers posted about the room were dimly conscious that the excitement and the thrill of the spy hunt had dwindled to a terrible drabness. There seemed no glory on their side, either; only unpleasant necessity.

Suddenly a more violent convulsion than ever before jerked fräulein's body up upon the bed, and in that moment her distorted, passionate spirit passed.

Chris, who had turned from the window to come to the bed's foot, was conscious of an immeasurable feeling of relief, as though a heavy weight which had been pressing on all of them in that house was lifted. He became in a moment the man of decisive action again. In a low, quick voice he ordered the removal of Charles, and as he himself conferred with the doctor and the inspector he saw out of the corner of his eye that Miriam was attending to Mrs. Sanderson

"She had better be taken down to the police station," he ordered. "You can't possibly sit up any longer, Miriam, and there she can have a woman warder with her. Corporal, you take Herr von Mantel with you. You have got the bomb, haven't you?"

"It's waiting outside in a bucket of water, sir."

"Very well, that's all, then. Tell the colonel I'll come down and see him in the morning."

Molly crouched back against the wall of the corridor as Von Mantel with his guards passed along it, followed by Mrs. Sanderson between Miriam and the inspector. Then Chris came to the door of the room. The light was behind him, so that his figure showed dark, but even so she could see by the sudden droop of it how worn out he looked. Her brain registered the fact unconsciously, though naturally at that moment the stark horror of what she had seen possessed her to the exclusion of everything else. She ran toward him with a frantic cry.

"Chris, take me away," she sobbed. "Take me out of this, or I shall go mad. O, Chris, Chris!"

"Why, Molly, what did you come up for? How wrong of you! You poor child," and, putting his arms around her, Chris picked her up bodily. She let her head fall on his shoulder, but still clung to him tensely. "You must go to bed, Molly," went on Chris.

"No, no," she begged, "don't send me to bed. I can't bear it. I shan't ever sleep."

"But what shall I do with you, sweetheart? I am dead beat myself."

Molly had the first moment of genuine inspiration of her life. "Put me down a minute, Chris," she whispered, and, running to the big window at the end of the corridor, she pulled aside the heavy curtains. A cold, pure, gray light suffused the passage, the first breath of dawn. The garden still lay dark, but beyond it the sea glimmered palely and a line of gold gleaned at the rim.

"Let's go out, Chris," said Molly, "just for a few moments. Look at the sky and the sea, it all looks so clean."

Brent turned her face up toward his and scrutinized it in the wan light. Even Molly's triumphant prettiness showed signs of weariness; there were dark marks under her eyes and she was very pale, but Chris thought he had never seen her look so pretty, or, rather, more than pretty. This was indeed Undine after she had found her soûl; but, as he looked, he gave a sigh to the lovely thoughtlessness that was gone.

All he said, with the absurdly boyish note in his voice she had always liked, was: "Molly, darling, how frightfully clever of you! Come along, before anybody catches us." He took her hand and together they hastened down the stairs. In the hall he insisted on muffling her up in a big coat. Then they went across the veranda into the garden. The lawn was covered with innumerable twinkling points of dew and the glossy leaves of the laurel shone bright. The shrill, confused chirping of the birds came from the elm trees. Chris and Molly went to the little gate that led on to the cliff path and stood there looking over the sea. The destroyers had gone; nothing remained to tell of the events of the night before, and the slowly brightening sea looked as innocent of war as the quiet of the English garden in which the two stood.

Chris caught Molly to him.

"Dear little sweetheart," he said. "The nightmare's over. Look up at me."

"I—I—can't," said Molly. "I feel so ashamed. O, Chris, to think we were all criticizing you and that all the time you were being so wonderful and splendid!"

"Don't be a little goose, darling. I wasn't wonderful and splendid a bit. I was only doing my job. And I tell you, I'm jolly glad it's over, if it's only so that you can be nice to me again."

"How can you want to have anything more to do with me?" asked Molly "narrow minded, silly little prig, that's what I am."

"Molly, I shall shake you. Do you know what you are? You are the dearest, sweetest, goodest little child there ever was. When I think of all you give me, I squirm, yes, I do, darling, I positively squirm."

But Molly shook her head and refused to be comforted.

Suddenly Chris changed his tactics and appealed to the new Molly whom he felt had come to life that day.

"Sweetheart," he said, "I am just about all in. Don't worry me any more. I'm so tired, I hardly know what I am doing, and so sick of the whole sordid affair and the wretchedness of it. Nobody need think it's been a glorious or a wonderful experience; distorted human nature is the most appalling thing one could come up against. Now it's all over, I feel like a pricked balloon."

Molly's hand stole out and she began gently to stroke his hair.

"O, it's been hateful," he burst out, for the first time regardless of what demands he made upon Molly and not seeking to spare her, "and there's that terrible little woman lying upstairs now. I wish to heaven they had burned the house down; it reeks of evil as though it could never be clean again. Ah, Molly, recapture your lovely gayety for my sake. Make me laugh. Don't let go of me."

Molly flung out her arms and pressed her cheek against him.

"Hush, Chris; hush, darling," she said. "It's all right now. You have got me to take care of you."

And she never guessed that Christopher had maneuvered for her to feel that flow of strengthening. She was sure that her arms could hold and support him, and he was self-reliant enough to be glad that she should herself be helped by the tender delusion.

THE END.

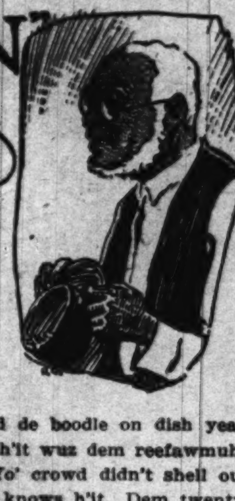
"FOR BRUTUS is an HONORABLE MAN"

by H.R.R. Hertzberg



Marse Doctuh's Fackletotum Does His Voting Early—and Late.

UNCLE JOSHAWAY—for that is how he himself pronounced his name—was Marse Doctuh's fackletotum. Ever since he had heard Marse Doctuh (in whose service he was supposed to act as coachman, groom, gardener, floor scrubber, window washer, and splitter of kindling, though he constantly failed to make anything like reality out of the supposition) tell a visitor that he was his "apology for a factotum" Uncle Joshaway, with the southern Negro's passionate affection for good, long, sonorous words, entirely regardless of their meaning, insisted on having himself known and referred to by his Afro-American kinsfolk and acquaintances as "Marse Doctuh's fackletotum"—the "kle" interpolated in the word being a further manifestation of the Negro's devotion to high-sounding polysyllabic verbiage.

And a loyal old soul was Marse Doctuh's fackletotum. Nowise of a heroic nature, he would nevertheless have laid down his life to save that of Marse Doctuh, or of "Marse Doctuh's lady, Miss Belle, yo' know, an' she sho' am a belle yet, dough huh haiah all silver now 'stid o' gold," or Marse Randall, Marse Doctuh's son. Yes, with the sole if broad exception of everything resembling real labor, Uncle Joshaway would have done whatever could be done by him for his "white folks," undoubtedly.

It was therefore his delight, as well as his exclusive occupation for several weeks, to electioneer in Marse Randall's behalf when Marse Randall sought the office of city attorney of his native southern town. And his black face seemed to shine with the best kind of patent leather polish under his crown of white wool, when he congratulated Marse Randall on his success, the day after the election.

"Yassuh, Marse Rayndle," said he, "yo' Uncle Joshaway sho' is a happy fackletotum. He sho' is. 'Case, gennuhly speakin', dis hyeah city she sho' boun' tuh be all right, all right, now dat my Marse Rayndle gwine tuh run h'it."

Marse Randall forbore from interrupting Uncle Joshaway to instruct him that the city attorney was not a plenipotentiary official, did not "run the city" by any means. Because he knew that Uncle Joshaway would not have believed even him in this particular, would have attributed the disclaimer to the disclaimant's exceeding modesty. For in the fackletotum's eyes any office held by his Marse Doctuh's son and heir, by his own Marse Randall, must perforce be the most important and exalted office the community—and, for the matter of that, the whole country and the whole world—could possibly afford.

"Dass de daidest kine o' daid suttinty, o' cou'se," Uncle Joshaway went on. "Gennuhly speakin', Marse Rayndle. An', suh, mo' speshubly speakin', suh, Ah's happy fuh a plumb puss-nal reason, too. Yassuh, plumb happy, Marse Rayndle, 'caze mah own sel'f, yo' ole Uncle Joshaway, dis hyeah Marse Doctuh's fackletotum, Ah sho' hez went an' done mah sooper—sooper—sooper——"

"'Superfine?' or 'supereminent?' or 'superannuated?' suggested Marse Randall, smilingly.

"Thank yo', Marse Rayndle, thank yo', suh," said Uncle Joshaway with a bow. "Dem's all three mighty nice words, dem is, but 'sooperanniwated' am the finest o' de lot, an' h'it's de one Ah wuz aftuh. So den, suh, tuh persume, Ah sho' hez went an' done mah sooperanniwated best tuh he'p yo' git dat office yo' done got."

"I know it, Uncle Joshaway," the young man assured him. "And I appreciate it heartily. Your friends all voted for me, I feel satisfied, owing to your good, steady work during the campaign. And you have lots of friends."

The old darky grinned his pride, widely.

"Huh-huh, dass right. Ah done good wo'k in dat campaign. Yassuh. But Ah done bettuh still, suh, in de votin' on de 'lecshun day h'itself."

Here Uncle Joshaway paused, in expectation of an encouraging question. The personage known as the interlocutor in Negro minstrel shows is not a stage invention, but is copied from life—since no Negro will enjoy telling a story unless he is coaxed to go on now and then. Wherefore Marse Randall assumed the part of interlocutor at this time.

"So you did even better on election day itself? And how, Uncle Joshaway?"

"Well, suh, Marse Rayndle," resumed the fackletotum, "gennuhly speakin', suh, dis heah' lekshun day sho' hez been a grand, 'spishus, mighty 'spishus 'cashun fuh' yo' ole Uncle Joshaway. Yessuh. "No, suh. Ah ain't a-braggin'. Dass a fac' an' Gawd's own trufe," declared Uncle Joshaway in protest against the incredulity which appeared on Marse Randall's countenance. "Gawd's own gawspul trufe, Marse Rayndle, an' Ah done h'it jess ez easy! All dat money jess come a-runnin' an' aysk me: 'Please, suh, tuck me in!'"

Caze Ah done vote dere fo' times in fo' diff'unt precinx, 'tween 12 an' 6 o'clock, closin' time. Yassuh. An' Ah got fo' dolluhs at haylf past 12 an' five at 'bout 3, an' six at 'bout 5. But dey mo' bettuh yet tuh come. Yassuh. Dey sho' does 'preciate a 'Merican citinzen jess' biffo' de closin' o' de polls, suh, fuh mah layst vote, dat Ah put in 'bout a quawter tuh 6, yo' Uncle Joshaway done tuck in a new yalluh ten dolluh bill, ev'y bit of h'it, Marse Rayndle, suh.

"But say, Marse Rayndle, why does dey call yo' crowd dat yo' done run wif de boodle pawlytishuns, huh? Why does dey? 'Caze h'it ain't so. No, suh. H'it sho' wuznt' yo' crowd dat had de boodle on dish yeah 'spishus 'cashun—h'it wuz dem reefawmuhs ev'y time, suh. Yo' crowd didn't shell out wuth a cent. Ah knows h'it. Dem twenty-seven dolluhs Ah done got dey all come fum dem reefawmuhs, suh."

Randall stared at the old Negro in sheer amazement. That he had sold his vote did not surprise him, although it seemed unusual that he had been able to "repeat" so often and so lucratively. But that he should have voted the enemy's ticket against his "white folks"—this appeared incredible indeed.

"You raked in twenty-seven dollars voting against me?" Marse Randall found himself saying.

Uncle Joshaway stared in his turn.

"Whass dat, Marse Rayndle? Me vote agin yo'?"

"Certainly. Weren't you bought up by the other side?"

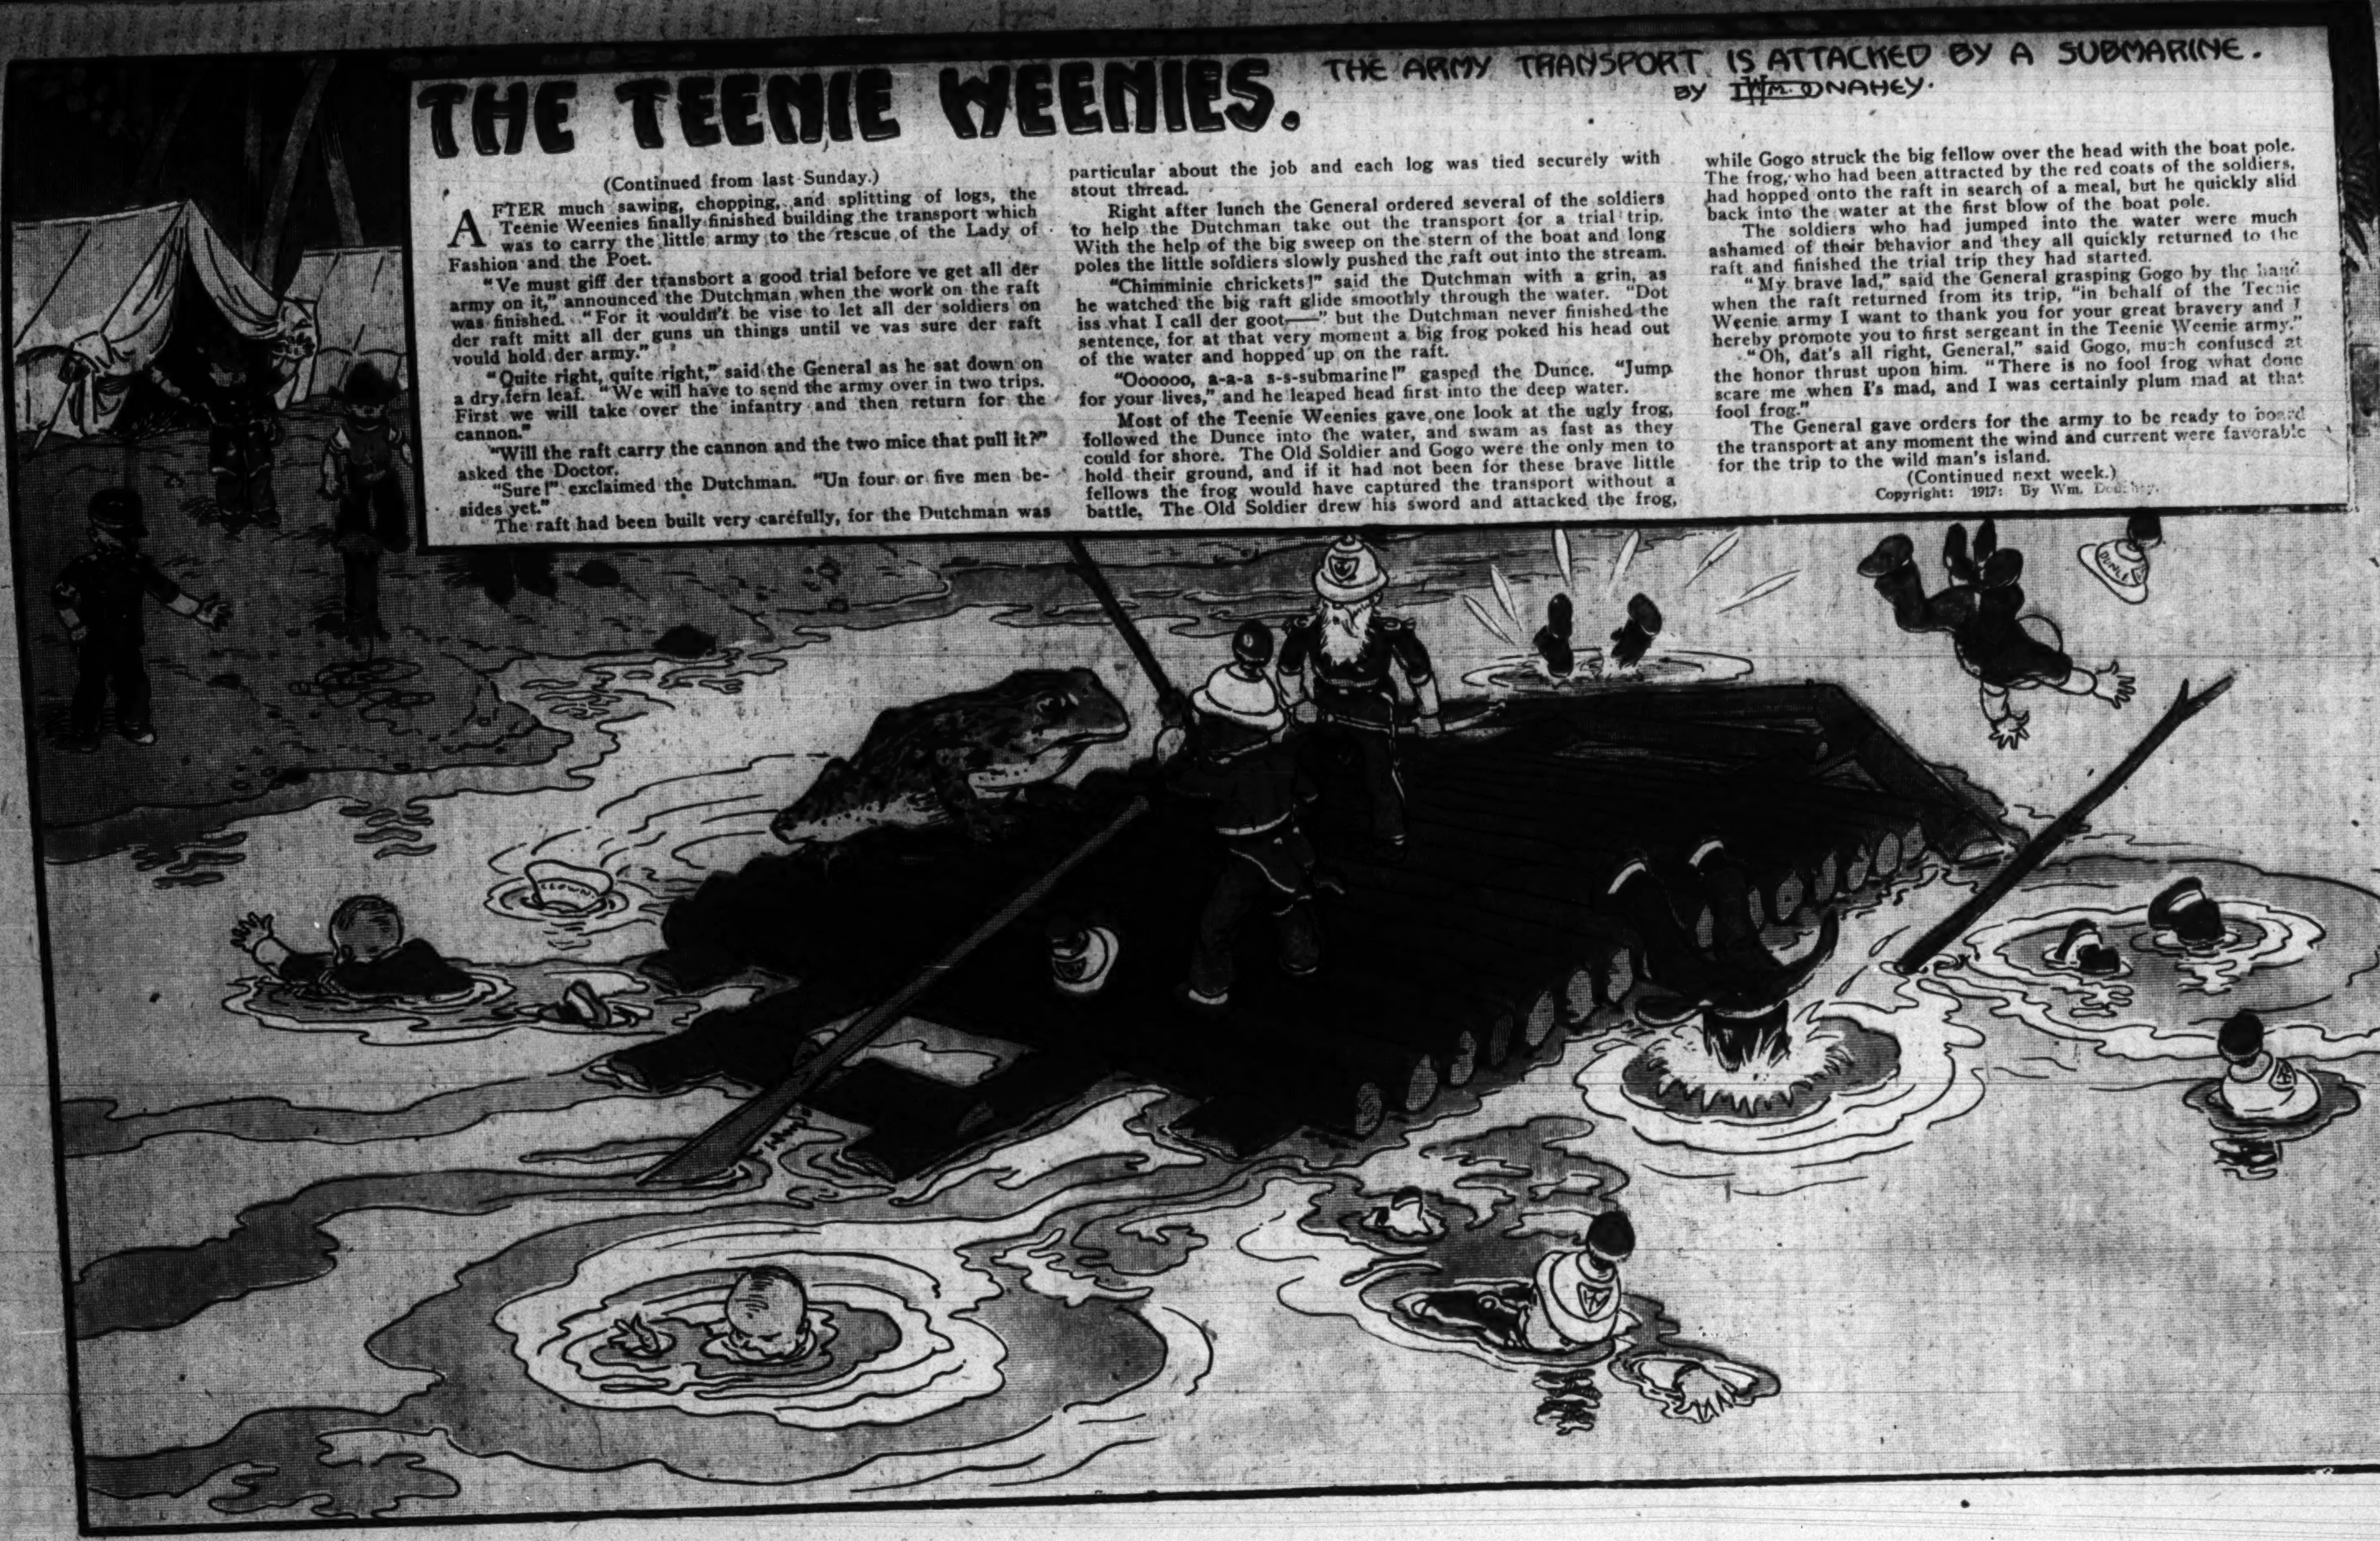
"O, Marse Rayndle!"

Absolutely blameless innocence and deeply reproachful repudiation of a wholly, inconceivably, unjust charge were sounded in the fackletotum's voice and pictured on his face.

"Vote agin yo'? Uncle Joshaway vote agin yo'? Marse Rayndle, yo' suttnly, suttnly must know a heap bettuh dan dat! Co'se Ah nebbuh vote agin yo'! Co'se Ah nebbuh! Co'se Ah done scratch de name o' dat lowdown po' white trash dat done had de awedassity tuh try an' beat Marse Rayndle, scratch h'it—hawd!—on ev'y one o' dem five tickets Ah due vote! De idy! Vote agin yo'! Why, Marse Rayndle, ef Ah done dat dat would a bin disawnuhrubble, suh! Yassuh, disawnuhrubble!"

A statue of righteous and very painful indignation, done in animated ebony, was Uncle Joshaway, as he concluded:

"Shame, suh, Marse Rayndle! Yassuh, shame on yo' fuh thinkin' dat Ah done dat kine o 'thing, fuh plumb fuhgittin' dat Ah is Marse Doctuh's fackletotum an' jess boun'—jess boun' tuh be a awnuhrubble man!"



THE TEENIE WEENIES.

THE ARMY TRANSPORT IS ATTACKED BY A SUBMARINE.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

AFTER much sawing, chopping, and splitting of logs, the Teenie Weenies finally finished building the transport which was to carry the little army to the rescue of the Lady of Fashion and the Poet.

"Ve must giff der transbort a good trial before ve get all der army on it," announced the Dutchman when the work on the raft was finished. "For it wouldn't be vise to let all der soldiers on der raft mitt all der guns un things until ve vas sure der raft vould hold der army."

"Quite right, quite right," said the General as he sat down on a dry fern leaf. "We will have to send the army over in two trips. First we will take over the infantry and then return for the cannon."

"Will the raft carry the cannon and the two mice that pull it?" asked the Doctor.

"Sure!" exclaimed the Dutchman. "Un four or five men besides yet."

The raft had been built very carefully, for the Dutchman was particular about the job and each log was tied securely with stout thread.

Right after lunch the General ordered several of the soldiers to help the Dutchman take out the transport for a trial trip. With the help of the big sweep on the stern of the boat and long poles the little soldiers slowly pushed the raft out into the stream.

"Chimminie chrickets!" said the Dutchman with a grin, as he watched the big raft glide smoothly through the water. "Dot iss vhat I call der goot——" but the Dutchman never finished the sentence, for at that very moment a big frog poked his head out of the water and hopped up on the raft.

"Oooooo, a-a-a s-s-submarine!" gasped the Dunce. "Jump for your lives," and he leaped head first into the deep water.

Most of the Teenie Weenies gave one look at the ugly frog, followed the Dunce into the water, and swam as fast as they could for shore. The Old Soldier and Gogo were the only men to hold their ground, and if it had not been for these brave little fellows the frog would have captured the transport without a battle. The Old Soldier drew his sword and attacked the frog, while Gogo struck the big fellow over the head with the boat pole. The frog, who had been attracted by the red coats of the soldiers, had hopped onto the raft in search of a meal, but he quickly slid back into the water at the first blow of the boat pole.

The soldiers who had jumped into the water were much ashamed of their behavior and they all quickly returned to the raft and finished the trial trip they had started.

"My brave lad," said the General grasping Gogo by the hand when the raft returned from its trip, "in behalf of the Teenie Weenie army I want to thank you for your great bravery and I hereby promote you to first sergeant in the Teenie Weenie army."

"Oh, dat's all right, General," said Gogo, much confused at the honor thrust upon him. "There is no fool frog what done scare me when I's mad, and I was certainly plum mad at that fool frog."

The General gave orders for the army to be ready to board the transport at any moment the wind and current were favorable for the trip to the wild man's island.

FASHIONS, BEAUTY, CONTESTS.

PART 6

·SUPER-SERGES for the SUB-DEB·

by Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

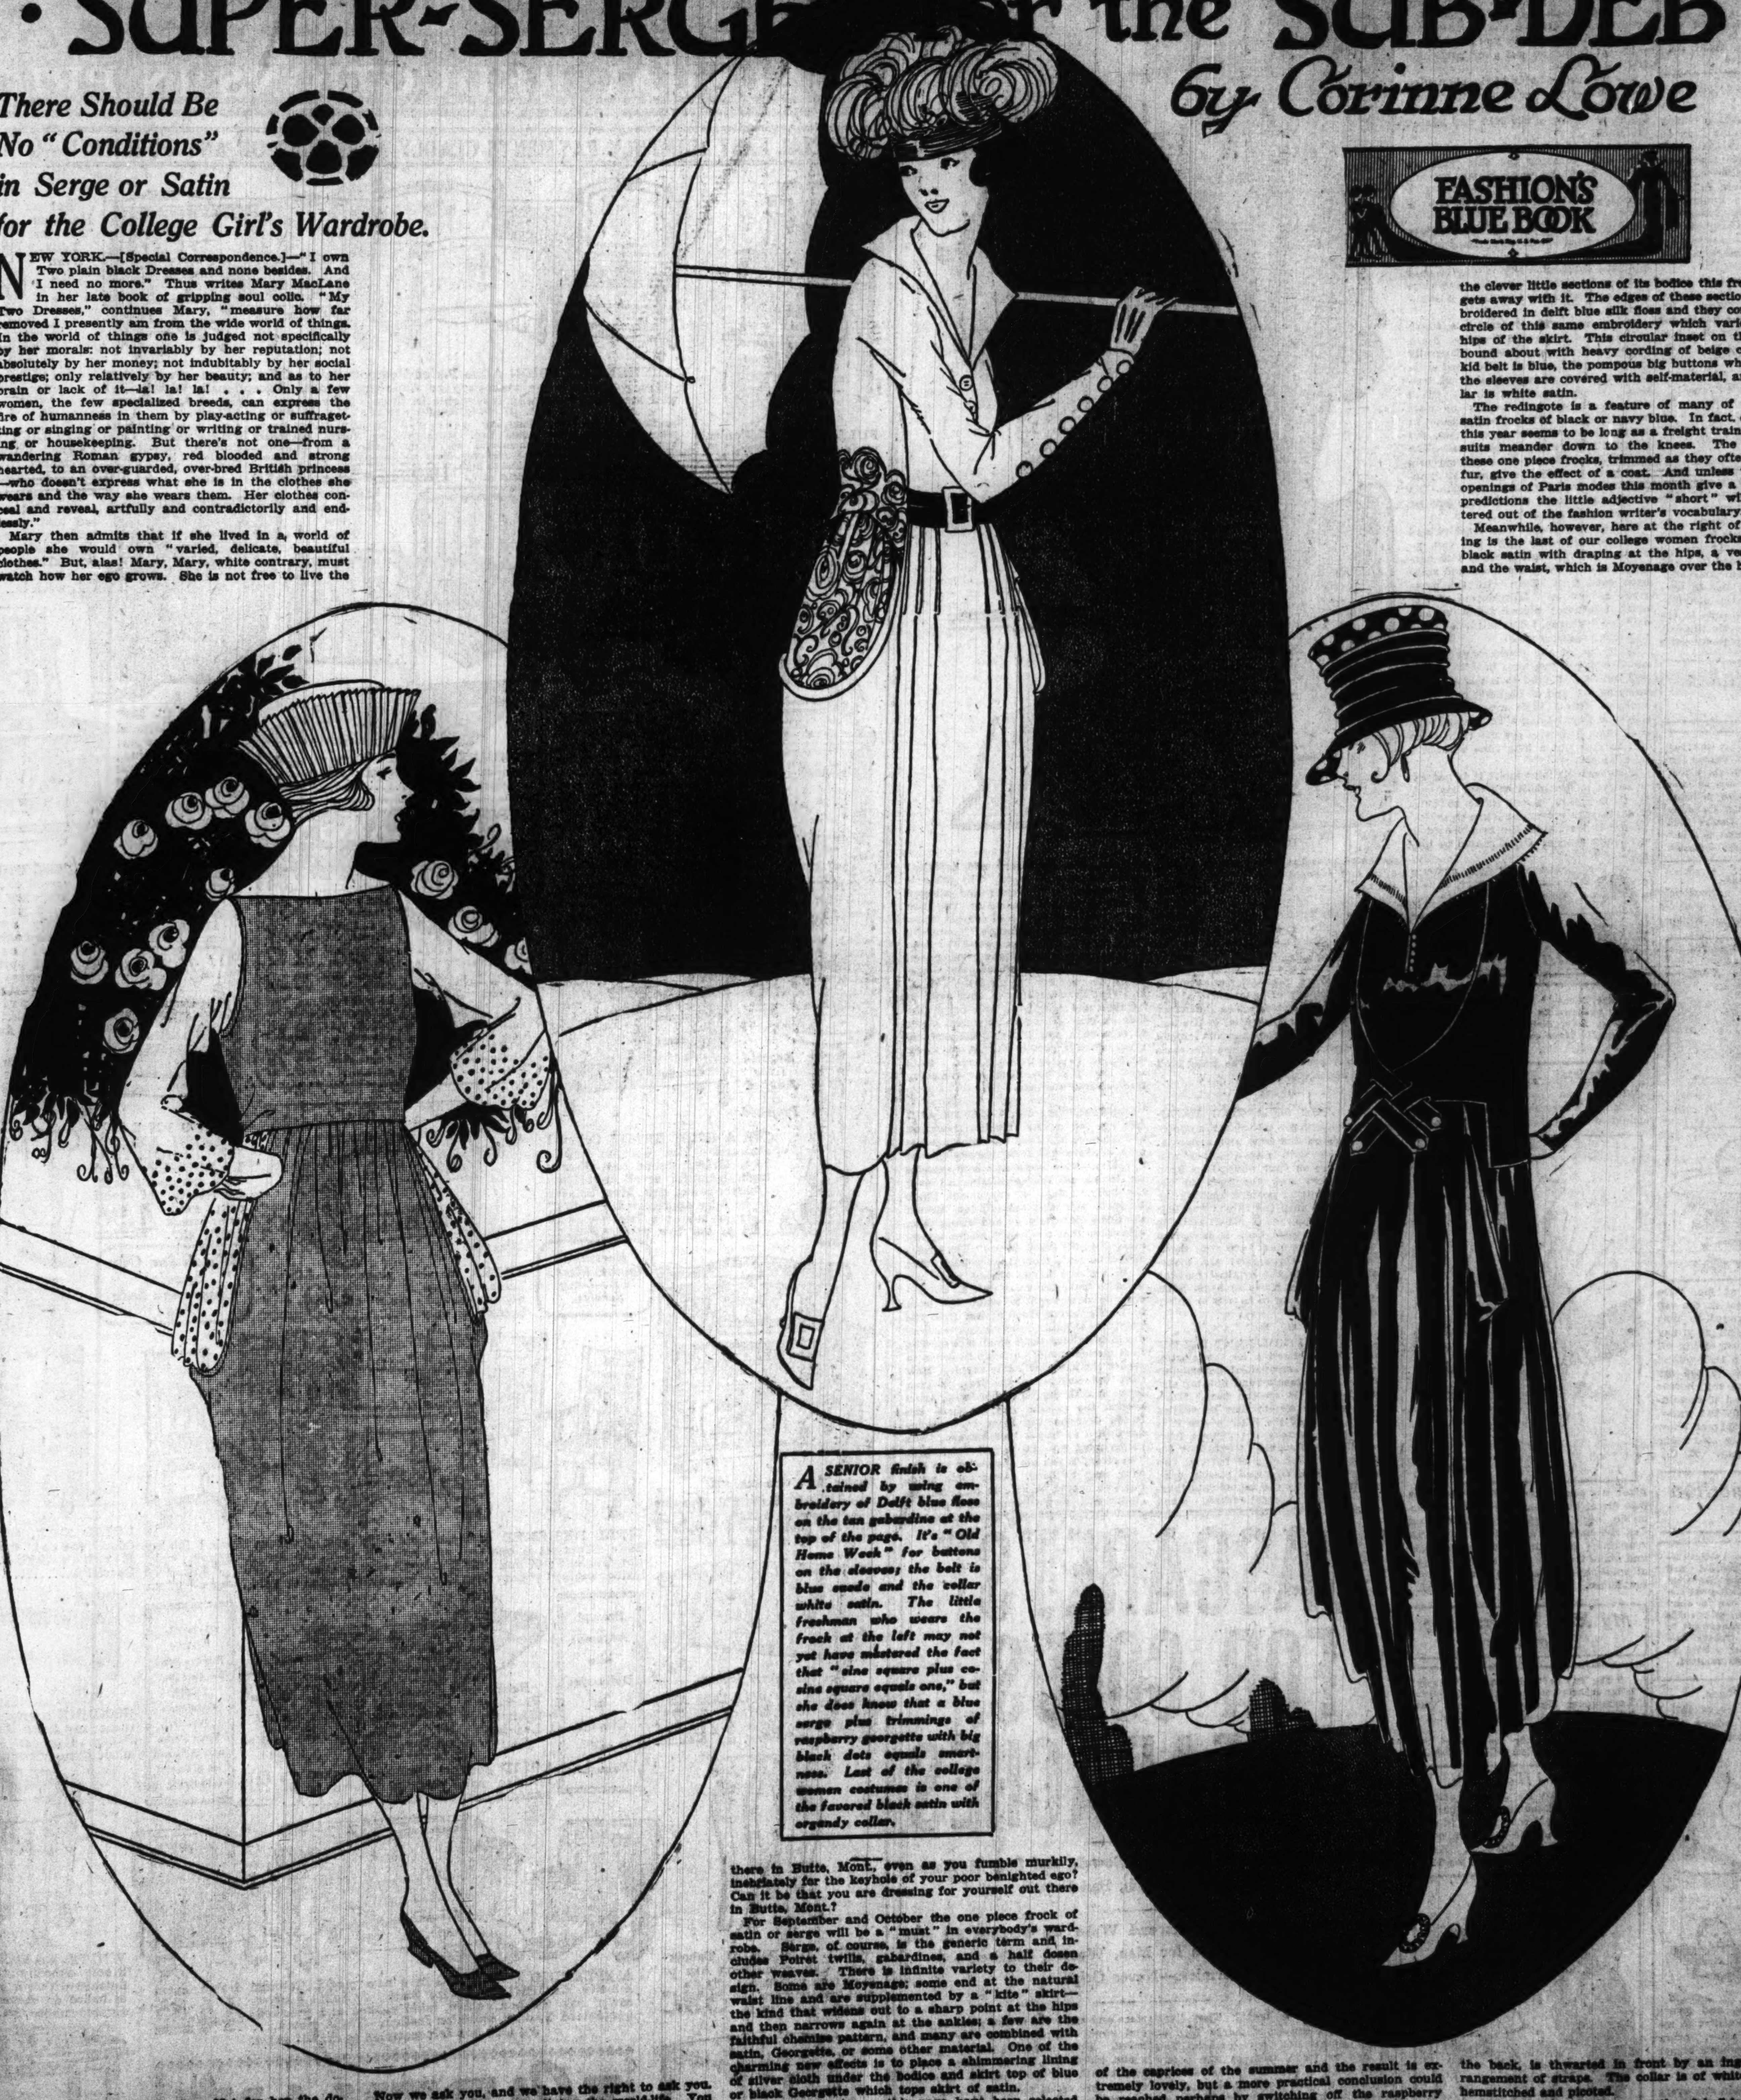
There Should Be No "Conditions" in Serge or Satin for the College Girl's Wardrobe.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—"I own Two plain black Dresses and none besides. And I need no more." Thus writes Mary MacLane in her late book of gripping soul colic. "My Two Dresses," continues Mary, "measure how far removed I presently am from the wide world of things. In the world of things one is judged not specifically by her morals: not invariably by her reputation; not absolutely by her money; not indubitably by her social prestige; only relatively by her beauty; and as to her brain or lack of it—la! la! la! . . . Only a few women, the few specialized breeds, can express the fire of humanness in them by play-acting or suffragetting or singing or painting or writing or trained nursing or housekeeping. But there's not one—from a wandering Roman gypsy, red blooded and strong hearted, to an over-guarded, over-bred British princess—who doesn't express what she is in the clothes she wears and the way she wears them. Her clothes conceal and reveal, artfully and contradictorily and endlessly."

Mary then admits that if she lived in a world of people she would own "varied, delicate, beautiful clothes." But, alas! Mary, Mary, white contrary, must watch how her ego grows. She is not free to live the care-free life of the community. Not for her the domestic life where unthinking ladies nip off each morning the dead leaves of their window plants! Not for her the gay, seductive groups where girls dress solely to please Tom, Dick, or Harry. She has a "Me." She must stay right at home and watch over that cute little soul of hers.

But, O, Mary, Mary, how is this? For as we follow the growing pains of "I, Mary MacLane," we come upon this startling ache: "The Two Dresses are at present of serge and voile. Their identity changes with change of fashion. . . . They are cut well and fit me well."

Now we ask you, and we have the right to ask you. How is this? You are not living the world-life. You own that you don't go in for "chattering women" and "monotonous, casually bloodthirsty flirtations with man." Then why, we want to know, do you bother to change the cut of those Two Dresses? Wherefore does their identy change with each change of fashion? Are you fussing up for those cold boiled potatoes on which your soul is lifted to such ether of pure joy? Are you conscious of the critical gaze of the lambent eggs which each morning shoot such quick, trembling lightnings through your spirit? Or—can it be possible—has the fashion ptomaine got you out there in Butte, Mont., even as you fumble murkily, inebriately for the keyhole of your poor benighted ego? Can it be that you are dressing for yourself out there in Butte, Mont.?



A SENIOR finish is obtained by using embroidery of Delft blue floss on the tan gabardine at the top of the page. It's "Old Home Week" for buttons on the sleeves; the belt is blue suede and the collar white satin. The little freshman who wears the frock at the left may not yet have mastered the fact that "sine square plus cosine square equals one," but she does know that a blue serge plus trimmings of raspberry georgette with big black dots equals smartness. Last of the college women costumes is one of the favored black satin with organdy collar.

For September and October the one piece frock of satin or serge will be a "must" in everybody's wardrobe. Serge, of course, is the generic term and includes Poiret twills, gabardines, and a half dozen other weaves. There is infinite variety to their design. Some are Moyenage; some end at the natural waist line and are supplemented by a "kite" skirt—the kind that widens out to a sharp point at the hips and then narrows again at the ankles; a few are the faithful chemise pattern, and many are combined with satin, Georgette, or some other material. One of the charming new effects is to place a shimmering lining of silver cloth under the bodice and skirt top of blue or black Georgette which tops skirt of satin.

All of the frocks on this page have been selected particularly with a view to their advisability for the girl who is getting ready her wardrobe for college. The one to the left, for instance—no matter whether Patty be freshman or senior, this charming, simple little dress of blue serge will fit in well with higher mathematics and Greek verbs. In the original model the sleeves and hip drapery—the latter is just a section cut away and filled in with the Georgette—the combined material is of raspberry Georgette with large black dots. Raspberry and navy blue have been one of the caprices of the summer and the result is extremely lovely, but a more practical conclusion could be reached perhaps by switching off the raspberry and turning on a Copenhagen or delft blue Georgette with black dots. This alliance of navy blue with some other shade of cerulean—French blue, Copenhagen, soldat, or sky blue—is one, by the way, which is noticed in every realm of the early fall models.

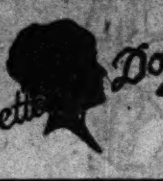
For the dress up frock of Patty, the senior, who wants to look her smartest when she goes into town on Saturday for the matinee, we selected the beige gabardine shown at the top of the page. It is a habit of many new models to pretend to being a bolero, and by the clever little sections of its bodice this frock almost gets away with it. The edges of these sections are embroidered in delft blue silk floss and they complete the circle of this same embroidery which variegates the hips of the skirt. This circular inset on the skirt is bound about with heavy cording of beige color. The kid belt is blue, the pompous big buttons which parade the sleeves are covered with self-material, and the collar is white satin.

The redingote is a feature of many of these new satin frocks of black or navy blue. In fact, everything this year seems to be long as a freight train. Coats of suits meander down to the knees. The panels of these one piece frocks, trimmed as they often are with fur, give the effect of a coat. And unless the formal openings of Paris modes this month give a jolt to our predictions the little adjective "short" will be mustered out of the fashion writer's vocabulary.

Meanwhile, however, here at the right of the drawing is the last of our college women frocks. It is of black satin with draping at the hips, a vestee effect, and the waist, which is Moyenage over the hips and in the back, is thwarted in front by an ingenious arrangement of straps. The collar is of white organdy, hemstitched and picoted.

"I'll chase the antelope over the plain," is the promise made by the lover of the old fashioned song. In the old days, perhaps, the lady had no need of such services. Now, however, she might be likely to take him at his word, for the shy animal is being starred in many of the season's best productions. Suits seen in Paris for the last few months have been trimmed with this skin. Hats also have been decked in the same way. Indeed, leather of all kinds will be a feature of this autumn's suits and coats.

A Freckle May Be Worth $1, But Not On Your Pet Nose



Says Antoinette Donnelly

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

IF YOU'D been born with a funny looking, strawberry shaded fuzz on top of your cranium like the writer of this column, and been pursued all your early days by a freckle weighted sun with an aim that never failed to register dark spots, you'd understand the irony of the consoling expression offered the like of us: "Every freckle is worth $1." And you'd agree that freckles may be worth $1 apiece, but not on your pet nose!

Of course, if you had two or three noses you wouldn't mind having one of them all freckled up. Worn with your gingham dress or your gardening trouserettes, it would be part of a picturesque whole. But for nice, stylish, dressup purposes you want the plain white instead of a polka dotted skin.

Now for a drive on the pesky things.

No use preaching prevention. We beauty doctors have been doing that since time immemorial, but the freckle crop yields bounteously each year.

So, on with the attack.

"Freckles," says Dr. William A. Pusey, skin specialist, "are due to an irregular distribution of the pigment-forming cells in the skin and their appearance is caused or exaggerated by exposure to sunlight, which stimulates the formation of a pigment by these cells. Tanning is a similar manifestation of stimulation of pigment formation by light. The only difference between them is that in persons who tan there is an even distribution of the pigment-forming cells in the skin, while in those who freckle the distribution is uneven. The pigment cells become especially numerous in small fixed spots, which accordingly appear darkest, forming freckles, when the skin is influenced by causes that stimulate the formation of pigment."

There are skins so fair that no efforts at protection suffice. But a thick coating of a heavy cosmetic powder affords some protection from light and is of some use in preventing freckles or tanning.

The removal of freckles or tan, except by time, is frequently a discouraging and more or less unsuccessful job. The remedy that works on one face will fail entirely on another. So you have to experiment until you get your particular freckle antidote.

The frequent rubbing of the pigmented spot with lemon juice is a popular measure and if carried to the point of causing some scaling of the skin may lighten the spots.

Sponging with hydrogen peroxide solution, after washing the skin with an alkaline soap and warm water, or cautiously rinsing with ammonia water is a procedure that also causes some bleaching of the pigment.

Strong solutions of corrosive sublimate make the most effective applications, but it is one of the most dangerous poisons and such application should only be used under a physician's direction, and even then the results are sometimes unsatisfactory.

Lemon juice with glycerin is a staple old remedy for tan and freckles. Some skins rebel at the glycerin. Generally the trouble is that it is not diluted sufficiently. Pure glycerin is a great irritant. It should, therefore, be mixed with water so that it may be mild enough for use. There are few cases in which, if this dilution is sufficient, the mixture will not prove beneficial. The proportions of lemon juice and glycerin may be equal or they may be varied, according to the effect upon the skin. As a rule, the thinner the skin the smaller the amount of lemon juice.

If there are one or two freckles and they are noticeably ugly, you can remove them by touching them with carbolic acid. If there are more and stubborn ones, treat them with the paste made as follows: Oxychloride of bismuth, 1 drachm; calomel, 1-6 grain; peroxide of hydrogen, 1 drachm; lanolin and vaseline, - ounces each.

Keep out of the direct rays of the sun, for unless you have become gradually tanned and used to it you will find yourself sick and in frightful pain from sunburn. Get a little exposure in the sun each day, adding a little more burn each time. This way you will train yourself to stay out a long time without a burn at all.

If the skin is kept moist it is not apt to sunburn, though it will tan. Markedly tanned skin is not liable to burn. Therefore, to prevent sunburn where exposure is inevitable, the skin should be gradually tanned. Or, it should be kept moist.

For the treatment of bad sunburn, grease with glycerin and water, or with any grease. Common dry baking soda sprinkled over the sore parts of a sunburn and covered with a wet cloth is the best kind of a remedy for relieving the pain. If any parts are blistered puncture the blistered parts before you apply the soda. The soda keeps the blister wound clean as well as promoting its healing.

One of the worst cases of burned face, neck, and arms I ever saw was cured by the simple remedy of equal parts of linseed oil and limewater. The limewater is cooling and the linseed oil is healing. California beach patrons use this remedy almost exclusively. They use the same thing as a preventive. The linseed oil smell is distasteful to some.

A. C.: THE SQUATTING EXERcise is excellent for reducing the superfluous flesh on the hips and abdomen. Stand erect, with feet together and hands resting on your hips. Rise upon the toes, then sink the body to the floor in a squatting posture, bending the knees sharply until the thighs and legs are doubled upon each other and the weight of the entire body is supported by the toes. You must keep your trunk perfectly erect throughout the movement. Return to the original position and repeat twelve times to begin with, gradually increasing to twenty or thirty times.

E. B.: FOR PERMANENT RELIEF nothing is so effective as the electric needle for the removal of superfluous hair and I can recommend nothing else when the hair is on the face. However, a good depilatory may be applied to other parts of the body where it is necessary to remove superfluous hair. The following formula is excellent for this purpose: Sulphide of barium, two drams; oxide of zinc and starch, each three drams. Mix the ingredients thoroughly and keep tightly corked. When applying this depilatory add sufficient water to make a paste. The paste is then spread on the part and allowed to stay on for a few minutes. You then wash it off and apply cold cream. There will be resulting irritation. Generally you can tell when the paste has been on long enough by a slight burning sensation. The sun and water have a tendency to promote the growth of hair, and that is why after a few days of bathing and lolling on the beach the hair on your arms and shoulders seems to take on a new lease of life and appears doubly prominent. A stamped, addressed envelope, please, and I shall mail you the directions for removing freckles and sunburn.

CONSTANCE: COLD HANDS AND feet are indications of poor circulation and exercise and deep breathing are the only effective means of remedying the difficulty. This is an excellent exercise for toning up the circulation all over the body: Make a convenient lunge forward, say with the left leg, stretch the arms out sideways and swing them around so that the hands, palms uppermost, describe small circles. The circles should be made from front to back; that is to say the hands should move upward to make the front half of the circle and downward to make the back half. The hands move almost from the waist line to half a head above the shoulder in describing these small circles. The final circles should be large in order to render the shoulder joints supple. Now shift the position of the legs, lunging forward with the right and swing arms around the reverse way, so that the hands describe the front half circles downward and back half upward. The palms must now be turned downward. The stronger you get the faster the circling may be done. After some practice you should be able to make fifteen circles each way without exhaustion.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

His Fatal Plunge.

Every one was having an uproariously good time in the plunge when I heard a girl a little way from me whisper to another, and looking at me, "Do you see that girl over there in the red bathing suit? She is engaged to that handsome fellow we are all so crazy over. There he is now, just diving off the springboard." Feeling a trifle puffed up, I turned just in time to see my lover dive, but what was my horror when I saw his hair, instead of remaining on his head, float off on the water. He had forgotten, and I did not know that he wore a wig. I was so furious that I broke the engagement. E. C.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

Lost in the First Race.

I lived on a farm and every fall I attended the county fair, where all I cared to see were the race horses. I knew every horse, jockey, and owner from the Atlantic to the Pacific; to me the racetrack was a paradise, every jockey a hero, and every owner a bigger man than the president of the United States.

At home I took old Dobbin out every day and did my best to make a race horse out of him. I might have been successful, but the last time we were out I tried to keep a neighbor from passing us, old Dobbin entered fully into the game, and before I knew what had happened Dobbin was going a two-forty clip down the road, while neighbors carried me home on a barn door with a broken arm and shoulder.

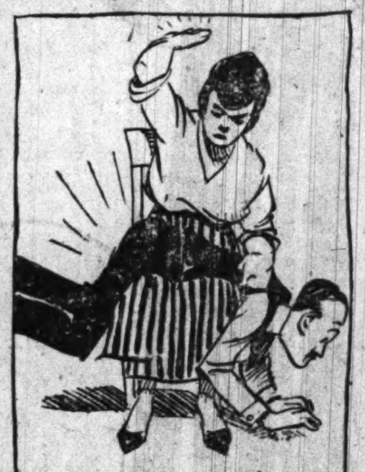
By the time I was able to be up and around all desire to be a jockey was gone.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

The Boss of the House.

When I was engaged to my wife I continually impressed on her that a man should always be the boss of his home.



After we were married I put this idea into force, but apparently it did not coincide with my wife's views, for one day she gave me a good old fashioned spanking. Since then I wash the dishes and make the beds and receive occasional spankings. Otherwise I am boss of the house. C. M.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

He Found His Trouble.

One evening my friend and I attended an outdoor band concert in the park. As he was tired and I was talking to a few of my girl friends he sat down on the edge of a running fountain. As the water had nearly reached the top he got his coat tails in it. He sat there until I returned, not knowing he was in the water. As he got up to escort me home he found his trouble. Imagine my embarrassment as he wrung it out! E. M. G.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

If your birthday falls during the week beginning today, you are a child of Virgo, the middle sign of the Earth Triane. This, a bleak, barren sign, dicating a materialistic, matter of fact rn of mind, together with a shrewd, ld blooded estimate of life and people. You are qualified for success in various rections, and may become a successful wyer, chemist, journalist, novelist, holar, politician, and proofreader. Your born love of detail would make you inluable in attending to the finer details a large corporation. You possess also keenly accurate and discriminating eye hich would make you a fine literary tic. You are extremely fond of music. The order and method of your mind is rried into your business and personal bits and causes you to excel as an ganizer and in things that require attion to detail. This trait also makes you excellent scholars, because you n pigeonhole your knowledge in avail- e form and bring it to light at just right moment.

o detail is too trivial to escape you. ce you make up your mind to ferret something, every resource of your ture is brought to bear upon the solv- of the problem. This is true, even en the end in view is nothing more portant than the satisfying of personal riosity. Be careful that this unconrable mania for analyzing the hidden rings of life does not rob you of the l joy if living. When this curiosity of urs is directed toward the personal airs of your friends, then it becomes thing of terror instead of an asset. u are without a doubt the healthiest ple in the world. If you Virgo people, h your wonderful digestion and assimtive powers would give up all medie except fresh air, wholesome diet, ly hours, and regular habits, the wonful vitality that you would gain and p would be the envy of every one.

ou are possessed of an intense power loving. This, however, is governed great self-control, so that you are er demonstrative. Women of this n make excellent wives and mothers. marriage with Pisces, Feb. 18-March has often resulted in harmony and piness. Virgo married to another of same sign is a wonderfully sympatic union if each will give up domiring tendencies. Virgo and Libra, t. 22-Oct. 23, also make a brilliant ch. You will be successful during iods beginning May 10 and Dec. 28, but unfortunate during the week beginning June 21.

Your colors are amber, gold, and black. Your birthstone is the sardonyx.

Baby Jim had found Virginia's candy sack and had appropriated the contents. Later he confessed his sin and tried to impress the listener with the idea that, bad as the case was, it might have been worse.

"I ate all of Virginia's candy," said he, "but I left the bag for her to pop."

ALPHABET IN FILET CROCHET.

Today a filet crochet alphabet commences. Six letters are given.

Consider each letter a square made up of tiny squares 20x20. Each square or mesh is made of 1 treble, 2 ch., 1 t., over 2 ch. Chain 45, divide into 20 meshes. Repeat row of meshes. To make the initial follow the pattern forming the letter with solid meshes. A solid mesh is made of 1 t. over 1 t., 2 t in open mesh, 1 t. over 1 t. Two rows of open meshes are left all around the letter.

It may be simpler to make the letter first in a 16x16 square and finish all around with the two rows of open meshes, turning with 1 t., 5 ch., 1 t. at corners. As errors usually come in the solid work it is well to keep the pattern as small as possible, saving some time if the work has to be taken out.

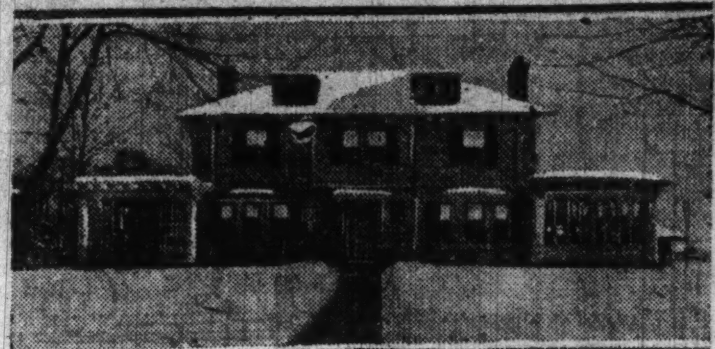
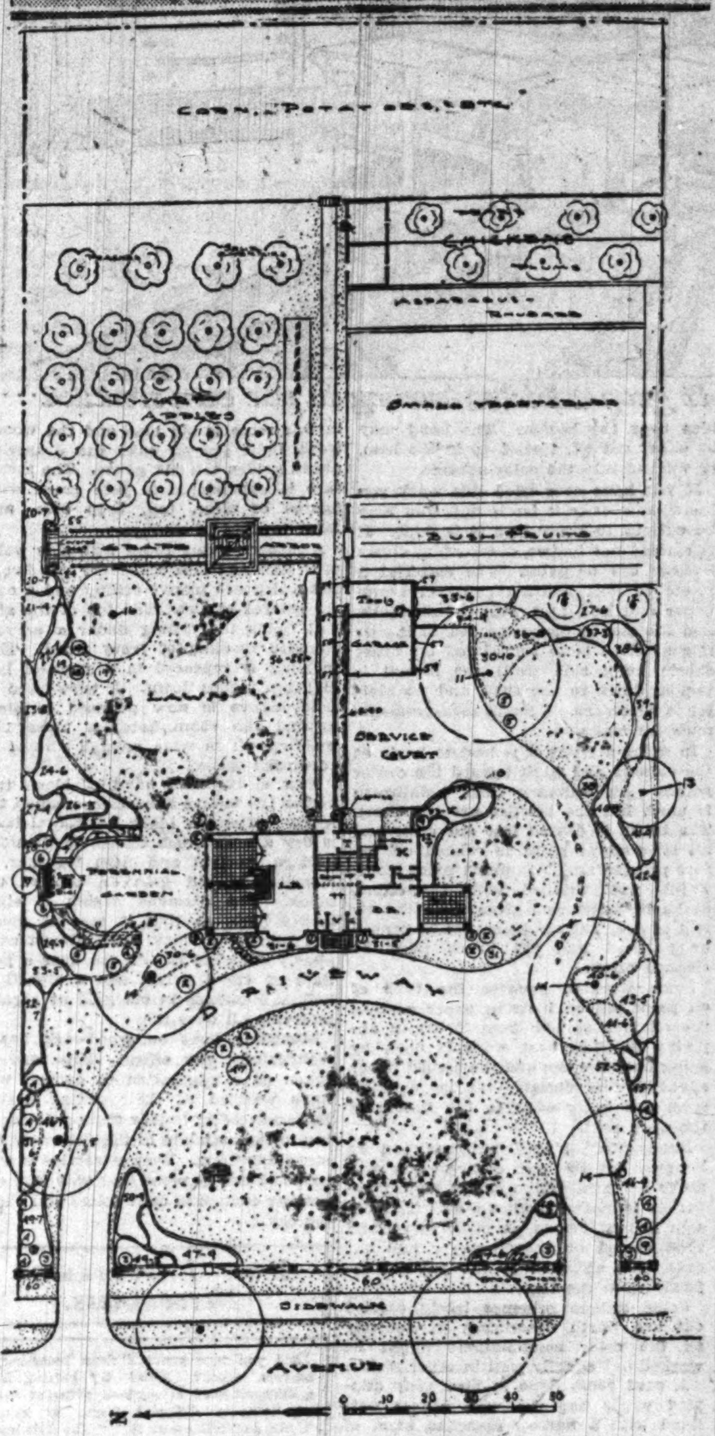
AN ACRE LOT DEVELOPMENT.

FOR the sake of variety we interrupt the logical sequence of the series in "Planning the Home Grounds" to present a development of a lot 150x290 feet, by Hilbert C. Dahl, a student at Pennsylvania State college. The house plan is that of the dwelling shown, which, however, is taken in different surroundings.





The practical combination of liberal food production with an artistic setting for a charmingly comfortable home is admirably solved. In this vicinity it may be desirable to afford greater protection from north and west winds on a lot of that size. While the hygienic requirements of lawn space are beautifully met, individual preference for a tennis court at the rear would necessitate a shortening of the orchard space. The same thing would apply to the installation of a bathing pool.

Personally we cannot enthuse over the public demand that all lines converge to so useless and trifling an incidental as a sundial. Invariably a seat is so arranged that all attention is of necessity focused on the stupid emblem of inefficiency. We would much prefer a sparkling fountain or a small pond for fish and aquatic plants. In the inaccessible backwoods and on isolated estates of the unredeemed wilds the sundial serves a purpose, but not in civilized communities. With the tendency to prairie landscaping, a tomahawk might far more appropriately be stuck in the ground and a house and other appurtenancees projected around it. However, a sundial is demanded, and there it is. Set on a Greek base, before a seat of futurist design with a colonial house opposite, the incongruity would be classic. Mr. Dahl's exceptional talents are merely bent to the popular demand.

Where cherries thrive so well as in this vicinity one or two additional trees would provide variety. Personally, we would prefer regular apple trees instead of dwarfs. Planting them eighteen or twenty feet apart, alternate spacing. The substitution of walnuts for two or three of the shade trees would further provide for culinary needs.

In the following planting key we have taken the liberty to substitute hardier specimens for Nos. 10, 23, 58, and 60, as those planned would surely winterkill in this vicinity. Many others will thrive only in the sandy soil of the shore regions, and require a heavy mulch for winter protection. Nos. 18 and 19 act as herbaceous perennials here and require heavy winter mulch, especially in clayey soil or heavy loam. No. 46 must be completely sheltered in winter: Its beauty fully warrants the trouble.

A CORRECTION.

Under "Questions and Answers," last Sunday, there was an error in transcribing: Japanese Honeysuckle and English Ivy were given with Boston Ivy, in answer to No. 1. It was the intention to include those as vines for window boxes, under No. 3. Boston Ivy is the only "vine suitable for a brick wall" it was intended to give.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour.

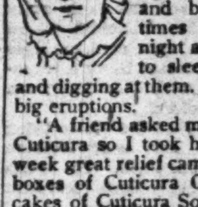
"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

Burning Itching Pimples Covered Forehead and Face for 3 Months When Cuticura Healed.



"Pimples covered my forehead and face for nearly three months. They were hard and a deep red and some festered, but most came to a head. They were scattered over my face and forehead and caused great disfigurement. They itched and burned and many times I woke up in the night and could hardly go to sleep with scratching and digging at them. Soon they became big eruptions.

"A friend asked me why I did not use Cuticura so I took her advice and in a week great relief came, and I used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and four cakes of Cuticura Soap when I was entirely healed." (Signed) Miss Ruth McElwain, 302 Sycamore St., Normal, Ill., January 22, 1917.

Cheap soaps, harsh soaps, coarse, strongly medicated soaps are responsible for half the skin troubles in the world. Use Cuticura Soap exclusively for all toilet purposes.

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hair removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone paste, she can, in the privacy of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone. —Advertisement.

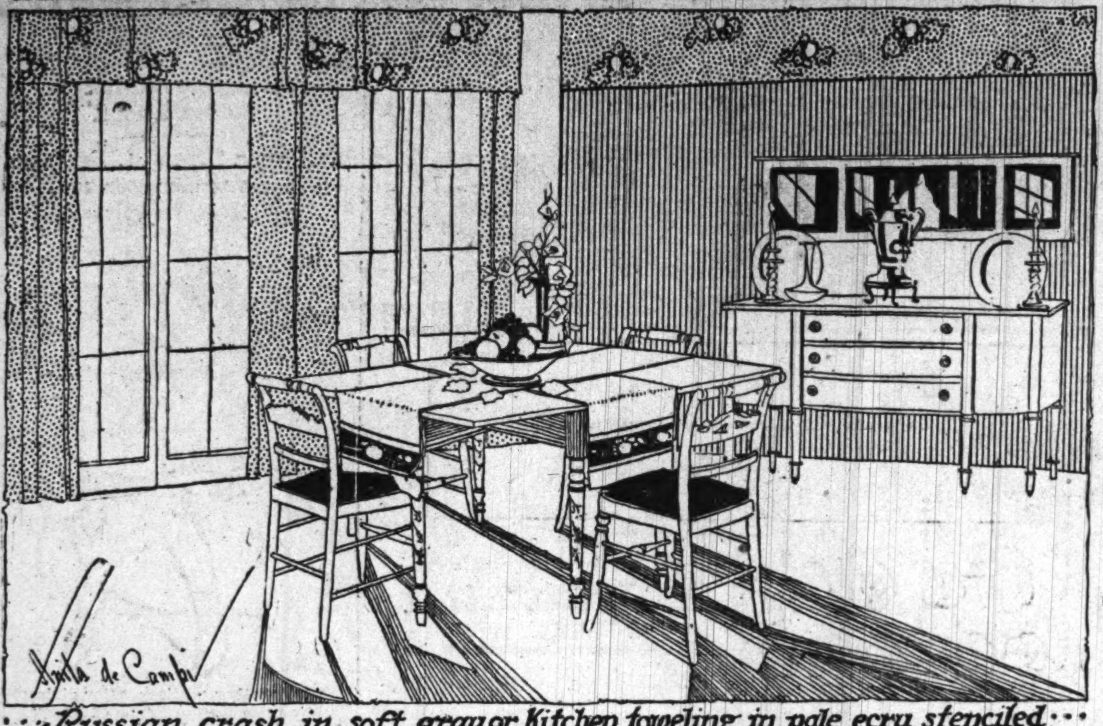
MANY A HOUSEWIFE HAS FOUND NEW METHODS IN TRIBUNE COLUMNS

The HOME HARMONIOUS

by Anita de Campi



Russian crash in soft gray or Kitchen toweling in pale ecru stenciled

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

AMONG the decorations that are not new, but that have revived popularity, is stencil work. One of the reasons that it is in vogue again, particularly among homemakers who enjoy experimenting in craftsmanship, is that it can be made to simulate blocked linen. As real blocked linen is very expensive, a good quality coming to about $8 a yard, and stenciling can be done at home at a very low price, it is a most satisfactory substitute.

I have seen some charming schemes originally done in hand blocked linen, copied in stencil so cleverly that they could hardly be told apart. Such a scheme I have illustrated here. The valance across the top of the French doors (which open out) is in delicate gray linen blocked with a pattern of fruit, very conventional plums, mock oranges, and leaves.

The side walls are in dull blue and gray pin stripe and a frieze at the upper wall has the blocked linen stretched exactly as wallpaper would be upon it. Casement curtains on the French doors are made of dull blue silk gauze. They are finished at the top with little celluloid rings that slide easily on the white enameled rods. At the bottom the hems of these curtains are weighted with shot.

Two linen runners on the table are in light gray trimmed with bands of the figured linen. The floor is covered with blue carpeting. The furniture is enameled French gray, and the chair seats are upholstered in blue haircloth. There are no pictures in this modern style room, the chief ornament being a translucent bowl filled with Venetian glass fruit in brilliant colors.

The stenciled copy of the whole thing simply substituted soft gray Russian crash in place of the linen. The crash lends itself admirably to such treatment and it is distinctly inexpensive.

Another excellent fabric for stencil work is ordinary tea towel linen. This may be had in either gray or light ecru. It usually comes with a band of red or blue near the border. The band may be either cut off, turned up in the hem, or worked into the color scheme.

If you have ever tried this work you know how easy it is; if not, you may be curious to know how it is done. It is carried out in two different mediums —either dye or paint. The material is stretched over blotting paper or newspaper and held taut with thumb tacks, and the stencil design tacked to it. Or if grasscloth is to be painted (or other fabric hung side wall) the stencil is tacked flatly to the stuff and no blotter is necessary. Careful measurements must be made.

In doing a frieze it is best to begin at the corners and work toward the center points. An ordinary thick paintbrush is used, but the bristles are cut short. The brush is dipped into the color and all superfluous paint is rubbed off before proceeding. Too much paint clogs. Paint, well thinned with turpentine, soaks in better and gives more the effect of dye. The stroke should be tapped or pounced and the brush must be cleaned often.

Some workers squeeze the tube of oil paint out on blotting paper so that the oil is absorbed from it before applying it. The best work is done by going over the ties and the stencil paper edges of the design—that is, working from the outer edge to the center of the open part.

Ready-made stencil patterns can be bought, but the apt craftswoman will make her own design out of stencil paper—it is not difficult to do. The design is first drawn on plain paper and then traced on stencil paper and cut out. The strength of the pattern depends upon the ties.

Some unique schemes lately carried out are worth describing, particularly as the color combinations might be worked out equally well in other media.

A card room done in blue gray stippled paper has the wall spaces outlined with a narrow stenciled band of tan leaves. At every angle in the band a black square with a smaller blue square in its center is set in. The upper part of the side wall, to the depth of a frieze, is marked off with upright oblong panels very simply indicated by lines of blue paint. In the center of each one of these oblong panels is stenciled a playing card motif—a heart, a club, a diamond, a spade. The carpet in this room is old blue and the woodwork light grayed oak; the draperies are in golden tan silk gauze. The furniture is upholstered in jade green with figures of olive, tan, deep blue, and faint touches of mulberry.

A modern living room with side walls of robin's egg blue and ivory woodwork has a delicate mauve ceiling and a castor colored carpet. The top of the side wall joins the ceiling under a narrow rounded molding of ivory wood. This molding is repeated in a parallel line eighteen inches down. A wide band of pale mauve is now pounced in clear around the room between these two moldings—it is wide enough almost to cover the space.

Now a five inch band of black traverses the mauve band clear around the room. After the black horizontal band is dry a very much elongated diamond pattern, upright and close together, is stenciled in old gold on top of the black. The diamond design is eight inches high, so that it reaches above and below the black band, almost completely covering it. At the door a portiere of violet velvet has a stencil of hollow diamonds in old gold at regular intervals all over it.

Stenciling done on woodwork has a wonderfully gay effect. This may be taken as a suggestion to owners who have wearied of their ceiling beams. Before deciding to tear them out according to the mandate of the decorator, try stenciling them. Very attractive is a remodeled dining room that was formerly somber enough in dark colors and Flemish oak.

FOR AND BY BUSINESS GIRLS.

Mary King.

TAKING A DAY OFF.

"I GUESS I'll take a day off tomorrow," says the business girl to herself on her way home from the office. If she is the sort that doesn't look further than today in regard to her own welfare, and if she recognizes no such arbitrary dictator as a conscience, the matter is therefore settled and the next morning there is a telephone message at the office to the effect that Miss Business Girl is ill and will not be down today, but will report for work—I almost said duty—the following morning.

If, on the other hand, a conscience is listed among her personal assets, and if, moreover, it proves to be of a ticklish quality, she will have to justify her actions to it. She usually has no great difficulty in persuading herself that she is doing an injustice to no one, except perhaps to herself, but the latter so slightly as to be almost negligible.

Thus, she argues with herself: "I'm so badly in need of a rest, and this twenty-four hours will just fix me up fine. I'll go back to the office feeling a great deal more enthusiastic about tackling the job, and so for the next few days work twice as hard as I have been working." And she concludes: "Yes, I'll spend all day tomorrow in bed."

Or, her reason for staying away from the office might be that she has so many chores to do for herself that she simply has to take a day off to do them. There's shopping and mending and darning and pressing. So, she argues, she must have a day to herself every once in a while to keep her wardrobe in a presentable condition.

A day off for an outing is even justified in that she goes back to the grind rejuvenated, and with enough "pep" to carry her creditably through the next few weeks at least.

And so every day in any number of stores, offices, and other places of business girls are taking time off from their duty without sufficient reason, at the same time trying to justify their absence, not to their employers or their associates—that they cannot do and make no attempt at it—but to themselves.

The fact is, this taking leave of absence for a day so easily becomes a habit that the business girl addicted to it really falls into the way of feeling that she has to have a day to herself, away from the office, every once in awhile, and never stops to realize the consequences of her actions.

It is usually the girl who works for a firm that "docks" all employés for being late or absent who takes the most frequent leave of absence, as she reasons that as long as the firm pays her no salary for the day off and she can afford to give up the day's allowance, no one is out anything by her failure to report for the day.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

This is all wrong, as she would discover for herself if she gave the subject a few minutes' careful consideration. Her inexcusable (to any one but herself) and frequent days off are dearly and trebly paid for. Her employer pays with inefficiency, brought about by lack of help, or an uneven distribution of labor.

Her associates pay by having their privileges curtailed or eliminated; and this irresponsible habit of taking a day off whenever she feels like it brings positive hardship to those of her associates less fortunate than she, who are absolutely dependent on each day's wages for their bread and butter and night's shelter, and who for some unavoidable reason are forced to remain away from their post for a day—and are "docked" for it. She herself pays, because every absence is a black mark against her record; and she cannot expect to succeed to a better position when she is doing her best to prove to her employer, not how indispensable she is, but how easy it is to get along without her.

Her action has a permanent injurious effect on women workers in general, as she promotes the idea among employers that women are not dependable employés.

How I Overcame Nervousness.

Cure or Kill.

Owing to my nervousness I missed a great deal of pleasure, for I was unable to take part in such recreations as skating, canoeing, automobiling, etc. I was so timid and undecisive and so easily startled that my friends had no desire to have me accompany them in such sports. Then when I came to Chicago a friend suggested that a good way to overcome my form of nervousness would be to continually cross those streets where the traffic was thickest. I decided to try his plan. After dodging trolley cars and motor vehicles for a few weeks I found myself a great deal more bold and more self-possessed. H. H. S.

Real Love Stories

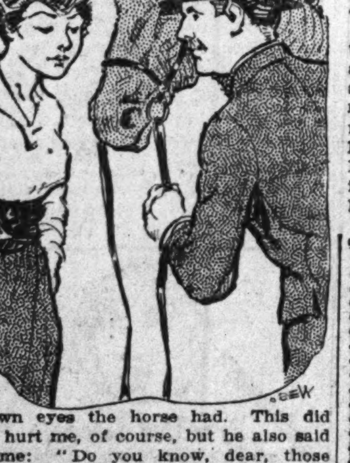
This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

Thought of Him Brings Tears.

IF I had known myself better then I would not have turned him down and be sorry for it years and years after.

It was yet in the old country. I was very much in love with a man about six years older than myself. I thought nothing could happen to separate me from him. But alas! The first shock my love received was when I learned that my lover was a widower. We were standing by a horse when he suddenly remarked what beautiful big brown eyes the horse had. This did not hurt me, of course, but he also said to me: "Do you know, dear, those brown eyes remind me of my poor little wife, who was taken from me in the midst of our happiness?"



Well, my hope that I was the first one he really loved was ruined, yet I could not help to love him just the same. Happy days followed and I already hoped he would understand my feelings, since he never had mentioned the dead wife again for many weeks.

But then he planned for a visit to his home and asked me as a matter of course to go to the cemetery and find a poem he could use on the monument he was going to buy for his dead wife. He said he had not much time to attend to this matter and that I would sure know best what to write on a dear wife's monument. Only for the respect I had for the dead I went to find a poem, but I felt unhappy and was doubting if I would not better give him up than to torture myself all the time.

But O! when I met him again before his departure I felt that should he propose now I would be only too happy to accept, and when he really started to tell me of his love for me my heart leaped with joy. But in the moment of my greatest happiness I turned my back upon him, never to see him again. That was so.

After he had proposed to me, asking me to become his wife on his return from home, he continued: "But, my dear, I never told you before; there is some one else who will also claim your love, and I think that you will make an ideal little mother for my 5 year old son, and that my dead wife, could she speak, sure would approve of you."

Well, instead of making all of us happy, I acted so silly as to tell him that I was not born to raise another woman's child, and turned away.

I then married a boy who promised to take me to America. I would maybe be able to think of my former lover as a selfish man, but for a letter he sent to me before I parted, wishing me happiness and telling me I was right, that he had no business to claim a girl like me. I can't think of him without tears coming to my eyes, and I heartily wish that he will meet a better woman than I am.

Girls! Use Lemon Juice!

Make a quarter pint of beauty cream for little cost.
Clears, softens and whitens the skin.
Brings out the hidden roses!

By all means, girls, prepare a lemon lotion to keep your skin flexible and young looking. You will soon realize that true loveliness does not mean the powdery look or waxen colorlessness of some hot-house flower, but is typified by the velvety softness of your skin, your peach-like complexion and rosy-white hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms, and particularly rough, red hands. You'll like it immensely.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

KROEHLER 3-PC. SET DUOFOLD ROCKER CHAIR

PARLOR SET BY DAY BEDROOM SET BY NIGHT

The frames of Duofold, Chair and Rocker can be furnished in quartered golden oak or mahogany finish. They are upholstered over steel springs and covered with brown imitation Spanish leather. As a parlor set the Divan does not give the slightest suggestion of a bed—the bedding does not show.

$49.50 $4.00 Cash

One operation converts Divan into full size bed with separate bed springs, which are guaranteed not to sag. The mattress and other bedding can be kept in duofold when closed without their being seen. This 3-piece set is undoubtedly an unusual value. It is to your interest to inspect it.

Brown Mahogany. American Walnut. Table 48 in. Top.

$16.50 $1.50 Cash Chiffonier and Wardrobe combined—chiffonier fitted with desk attachment; grained oak finish; well made.

$54.50 William and Mary design, brown mahogany or American walnut. Table, 6 ft. extension, 48 inch top. Chairs have blue leather slip seats, high backs and match table in every detail. The cabinet work and finish of each piece is perfect. Extra chairs can be had at $4.90 each.

$8.95 $1.00 Cash Grained golden oak finish, fitted with beveled mirror; deep drawers. This dresser is an extra value. It will pay you to see it.

The Home Harmonious

EVERY year the home becomes a more important factor in our daily lives. More and more are we taking an ever-increasing pride in our home surroundings. No longer are rooms shut off to daily use and reserved for the Sunday caller. No longer are the curtains drawn to shut out the light and to preserve the furniture and draperies for the future generations. Now we LIVE in our living room. Every corner of the house is used and used continually. The furniture of merely decorative purposes has been superseded by furniture of comfort. So strongly do we feel that our character may be reflected in our surroundings that we take personal pride in every piece of furniture that adorns our home. We are glad to say, at all times, that we have built up our own "Home Harmonious."

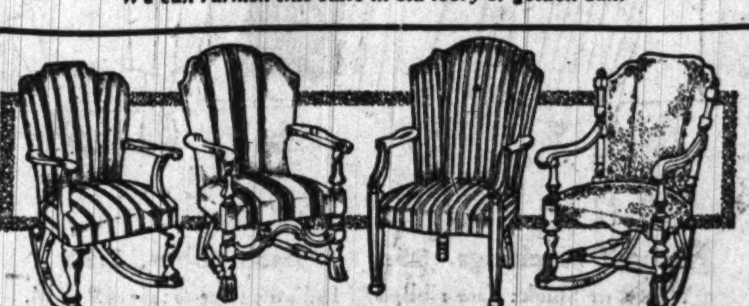
Beauty in Every Room

BEING satisfied to occupy but one room in our home has become a thing of the past. We want an equal standard of beauty and refinement in every room. Our living room must be livable. It must have comfortable and pleasing pieces of furniture. Our bed room must be a striking announcement of our ability to choose suitable and sensible kinds of furniture; and our dining room must be an example of harmonious furnishings. Even the kitchen must be outfitted in the Home Harmonious spirit. And the care of selection extends far beyond furniture. The curtains, the floor coverings, the hangings—everything must be properly selected. Things need not be chosen from expensive lines; they must be chosen from lines that represent good and dependable quality.

Our Furniture Department is on the fifth floor.

A real bargain opportunity that you should be quick to grasp. The chairs and rockers herewith illustrated are the very latest style, have well constructed mahogany frames—in brief, high class merchandise all the way through. On the opposite side we describe these very desirable pieces.



Damask, velours and tapestries of the best grades are the coverings used, and each seat has its full quota of springs. Chairs or rockers of this kind usually retail from $30 to $35. We bought them all at a saving—125 in the lot—and offer them Monday at 18.75

COMMON STORAGE OF FOODS.

> The most efficient and economical way of prolonging the table season of many food products is through common storage. Even, cool temperature, secured and maintained by ventilation, is the prime essential. This retards life processes and the development of destructive agencies. It preserves edible qualities and at the same time a vigor in such a food as potatoes which makes them no less valuable for food than they are for seed purposes. It is said that the grower does not yet recognise the value of good storage in maintaining the vigor of seed. Much less do eaters recognise how storage care, even in the smaller ways, is a detail that makes both for economy and perfection of quality.

SHUT a man up in a closet or box and he soon stifles; the quicker, the higher the temperature. Let him live in a room where the air is bad and his vitality is steadily, though perhaps imperceptibly, lowered. If it is also excessively warm he wilts.

In a not unsimilar way are those living organisms called fruits and vegetables affected by the air they breathe and the temperature they have around them. Probably half of the food, or more, which people in cities consume has in some way deteriorated, first in flavor, because it has been kept in poorly ventilated storerooms in stagnant, impure air. Food exposed on counters of rooms filled with people soon loses flavor and vitality.

Quantities of fruits and vegetables literally perish because shut up at night in small and dirty stores where the ventilation is none too good by day and does not exist at night. Fruit and vegetables which might keep over for a day or several in a well ventilated kitchen also perish in a night in an unventilated place, especially if it is also hot.

Conservation of pure, cool air for the benefit of our food products is something we yet have to learn or think about. On a large scale—that is, commercially—the problem of prolonging the life of a food by cool and airy surroundings has been worked out, but in small management there is shocking waste because living food is treated like dead firewood.

In our present efforts to preserve foods it is the season to remember that to preserve or to secure a prolonged service of various products in as nearly their original condition as possible much less labor may be involved than by other modes of preservation, but not less care. Let us emphasize "care." We call this method storage. The age old way is now called "common storage" to distinguish from the new, perfected, and expensive method called cold storage. More food is preserved still by the old way than by any other means whatsoever, because it is adequate for the most staple of our perishables.

Experts on common storage, on a commercial scale, tell us that its efficiency is dependent on ventilation and insulation. Ventilation is secured not by machines but by constructing storehouses in such a way that the heavier cold air entering at the bottom will drive out the warm and lighter air, if a vent is supplied for its escape, in the shape of a shaft or cupola or some similar arrangement. This ventilating principle may be worked out in containers as small as a box or as big as a barn. It is possible by taking advantage of "the cool of the day," or the night, and then by closing all intakes or hatches, when the air is hot, to secure a more even temperature than by uneven refrigeration. Uniform temperature conditions are highly essential. A proof of this is that foods taken from cold storage so rapidly deteriorate.

The rapid cooling of almost any food we wish to keep, instead of leaving it at a tepid temperature favorable to the growth of micro-organisms, is advisable. It has practically the same effect as the blanching and sterilizing of the canning process does. A government bulletin on storing apples says: "With slow cooling and irregular temperature conditions there is a marked deterioration in the natural flavor of the apple which seriously impairs the dessert quality of much of the fruit held in storage." But there are foods to which this necessity of cooling does not apply.

Insulation in storing is secured in various ways, sometimes by a false floor or some similar device for increasing the circulation of air, just as a false bottom in our canner secures the circulating of the boiling water.

In warm and iceless countries the method of cooling by securing a circulation of air is so well understood that perishable foods are generally preserved for just as long a time as where ice is obtainable, and all foods are better cared for by adhering to this method. The whole front of fresh meat shops in the city of Paris is open by day and closed only by an iron grill at night. In various countries the thing called a "garde manger" (larder, food safe, or, in broader use, pantry) is a large wire box, raised and lowered by a pulley and hung where it is airy and shady.

Simple common storage rightly worked out,—supplemented through cooling by evaporation, is all the means of keeping and cooling many peoples have who live much more largely and continuously than we do on perishable foods. If we would daily air our city basements we might store foods in them.

There are various government bulletins which describe common storage on a large scale, and others are in preparation, it is said, to meet our present needs. There are suggestive points in Farmers' Bulletin 548 on "Storing and Marketing Sweet Potatoes," and Farmers' Bulletin 847 on "Potato Storage and Storage Houses." No. 852 is on storing apples.

Two recent bulletins put out by the University of Illinois have sections on storing of vegetables. One of these is Bulletin No. 4, on "Food Conservation," issued by the department of household science for the Illinois Farmers' institute. ing. The other is circular 198 of the agricultural experiment station, with the title "Home Vegetable Gardening," by C. E. Durst.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

by Marion Harland

Raising Ducks for Market.

"I WONDER if some of your readers are living on farms and possibly have a knowledge of how to raise white Pekin ducks for market? I am advised to leave the city and go to a place where I can get more ozone, and I thought, and have been assured, that the duck business is a good one for small farms. I think that perhaps some of your kind readers may have farms and could supply me with technical advice concerning these fowls. Please do not throw this into the waste basket. The subject is vital to me. I am compelled by a speech difficulty to leave my former occupation, and so you may imagine how important it is that I should settle satisfactorily this question of which I write. Should you have knowledge of the United States farm loan act, can you advise me regarding this? L. A. L."

Who of our many farm workers and students can answer these questions? There must be some one possessed of the information desired, and there is no doubt that person will be glad to give it. The man who must change his occupation has many trials to contend with, and it is in line with the helpful spirit of our constituency to be eager and ready to offer aid so far as possible.

Earning Money at Home.

"Can you advise me if there is anything in the line of work I can do at home, such as addressing envelopes, circulars, or any kind of copy work." "MRS. F. J. W."

I have answered this inquiry by a personal letter, but it is typical of so many other women who are longing for a means by which they can earn a little money at home that I print it here in the hope of calling out some responses which will be of service to this correspondent and to others of the same class. Can any one answer this appeal suitably?

Market for Tinfoil.

"Will you kindly advise me as to where I can sell tinfoil? M. P."

Will any one who can answer the question write to me for the address of M. P., inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope for reply, that the answer may be sent direct to the inquirer?

Formula for Copperas.

"Like S. E. A., who requested directions for making copperas in a recent Corner, I knew the formula for this preparation years ago and will give it now as I remember it. The commercial term for copperas is sulphate of iron and it resembles resin in appearance, except that it is green, instead of yellow. Here is the formula requested: Dissolve the copperas and dip the goods to be dyed into the liquid until it is of the required shade. Dry between the drippings and when the goods is dark enough, wash it in strong soap suds, which will brighten and set the color. I hope some one else may send the directions, as I am not quite sure I recall them exactly. F. W."

We are grateful for any help in this line, but I hope, with F. W., that some more adequate formula may be given, since in the one printed above no statement is made of the proportions of the copperas and the hot water. This must, of course, determine the depth of color [illegible]

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try This! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it, if you will just try a little Danderine.—Advertisement.

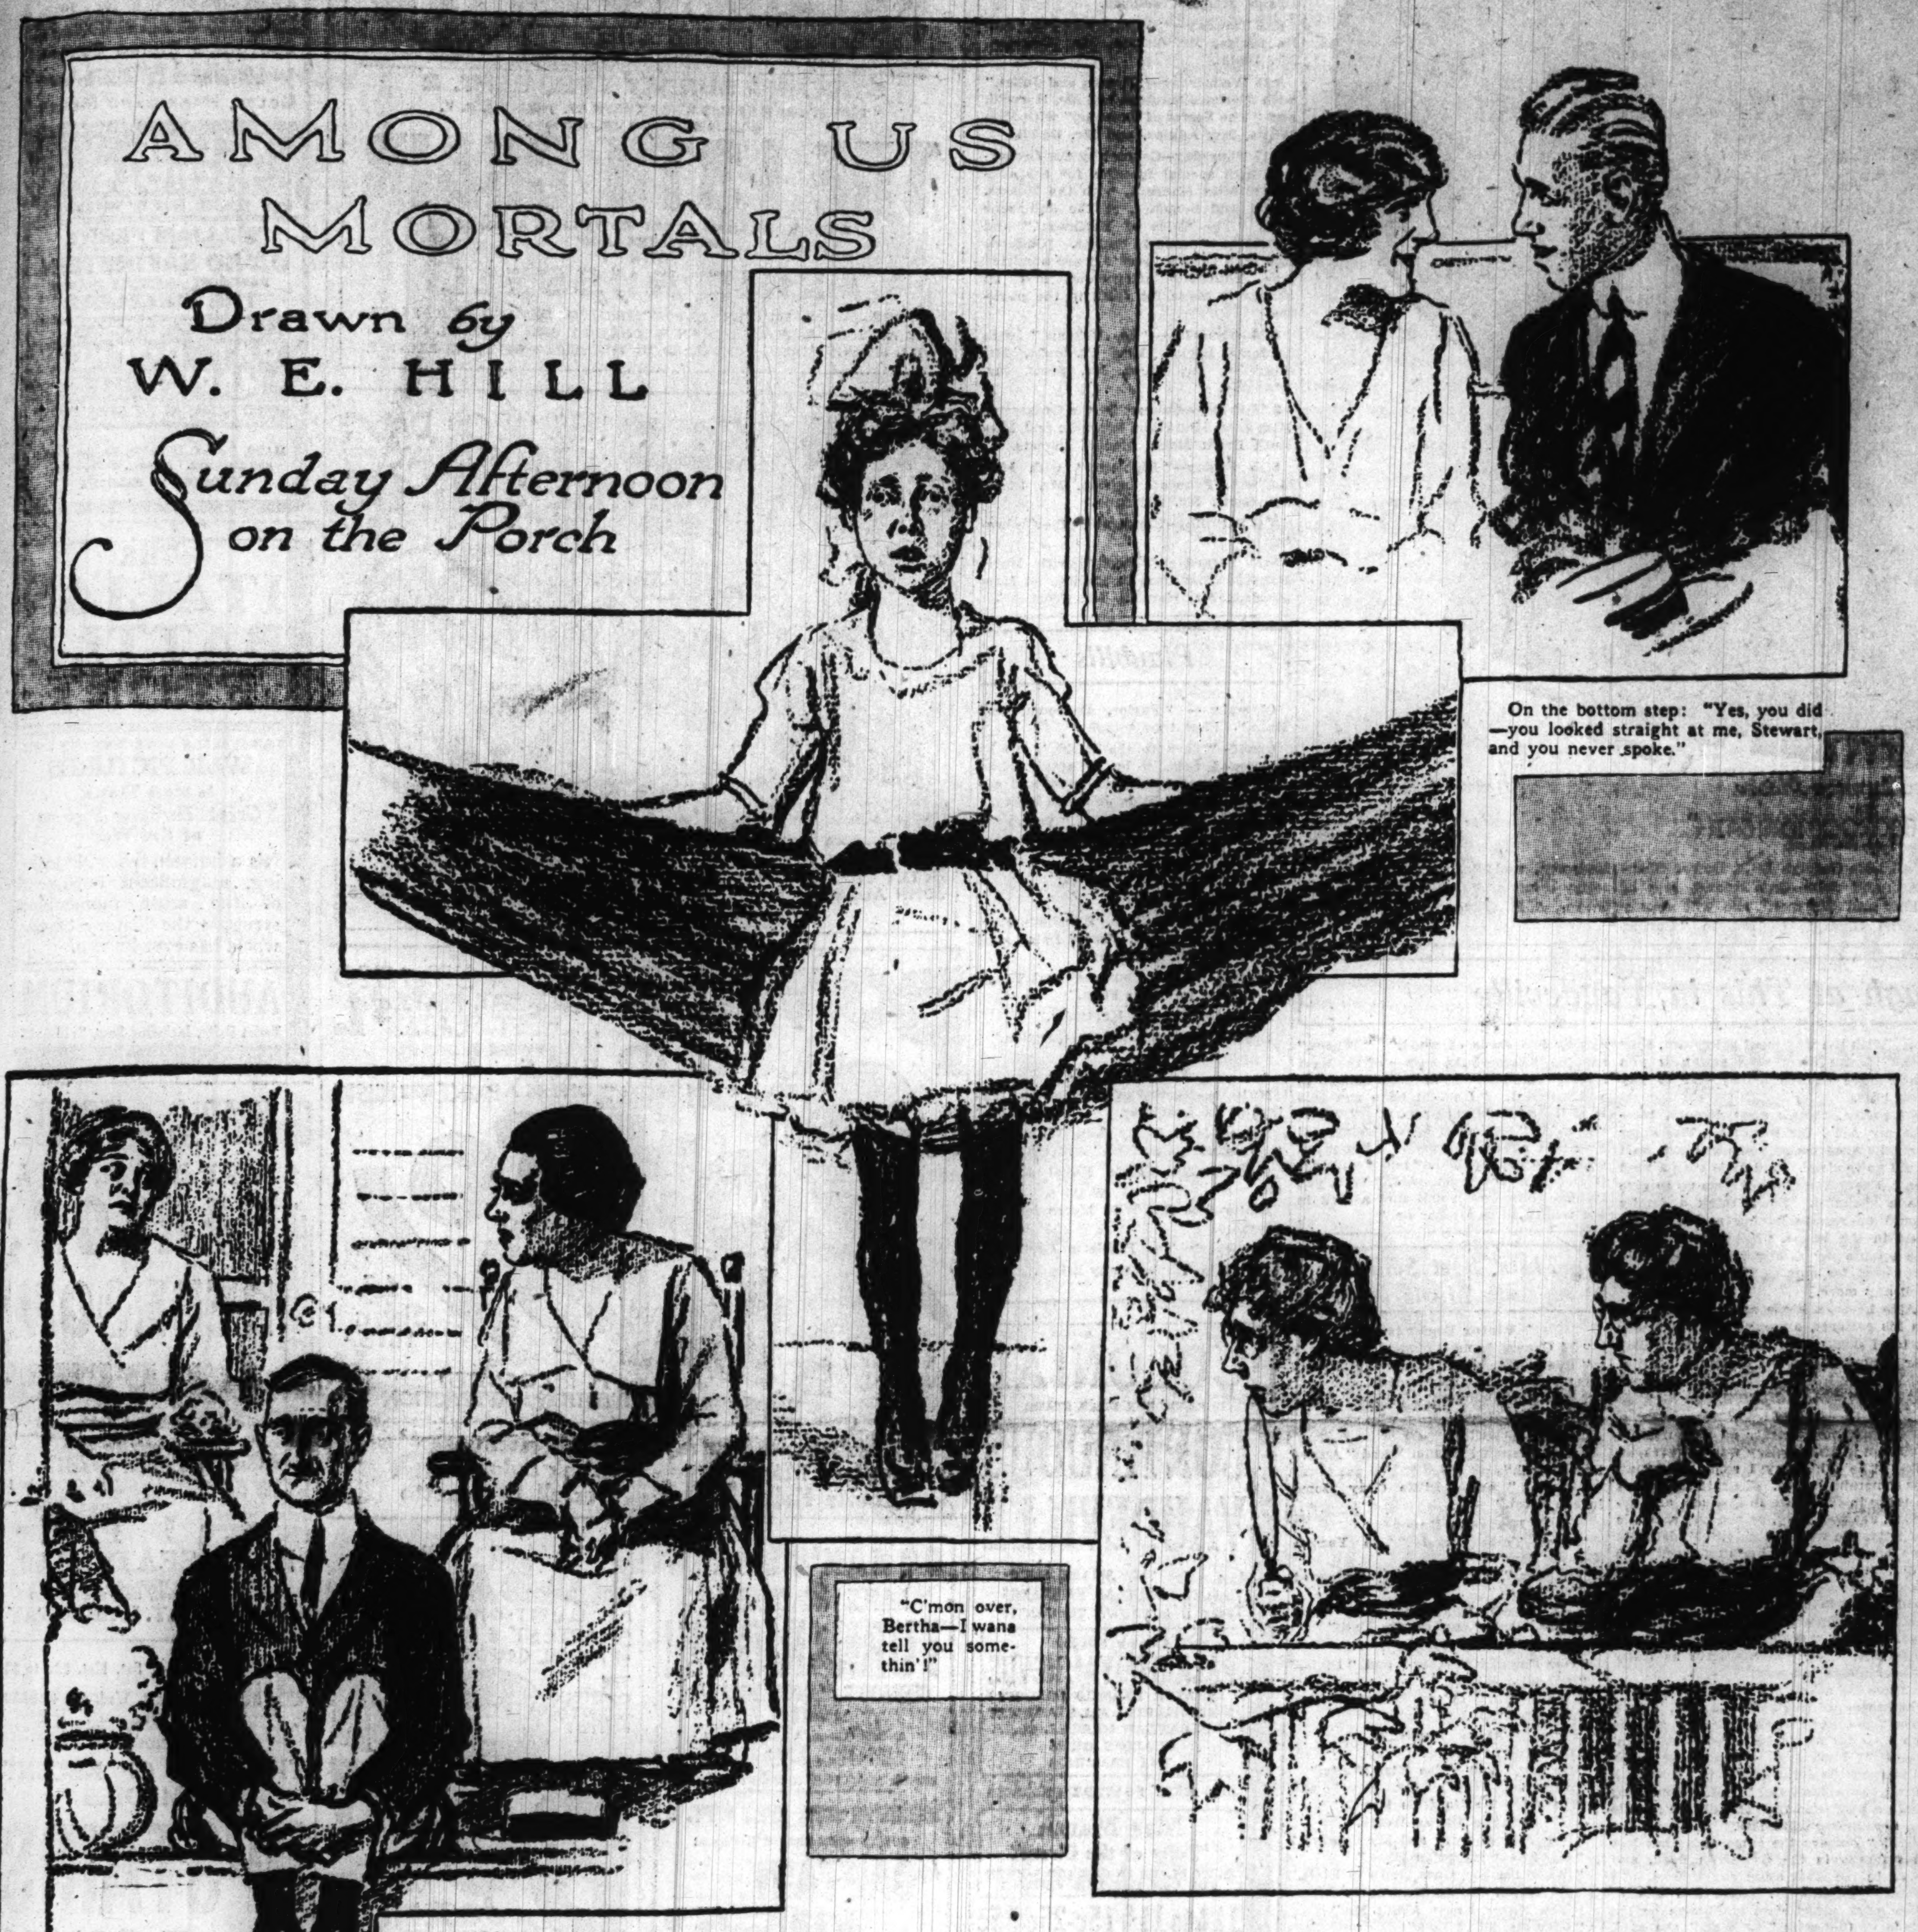
If We Do Not Win Abroad We Shall Have to Fight at Home.

AMONG US MORTALS

Drawn by
W. E. HILL

Sunday Afternoon on the Porch

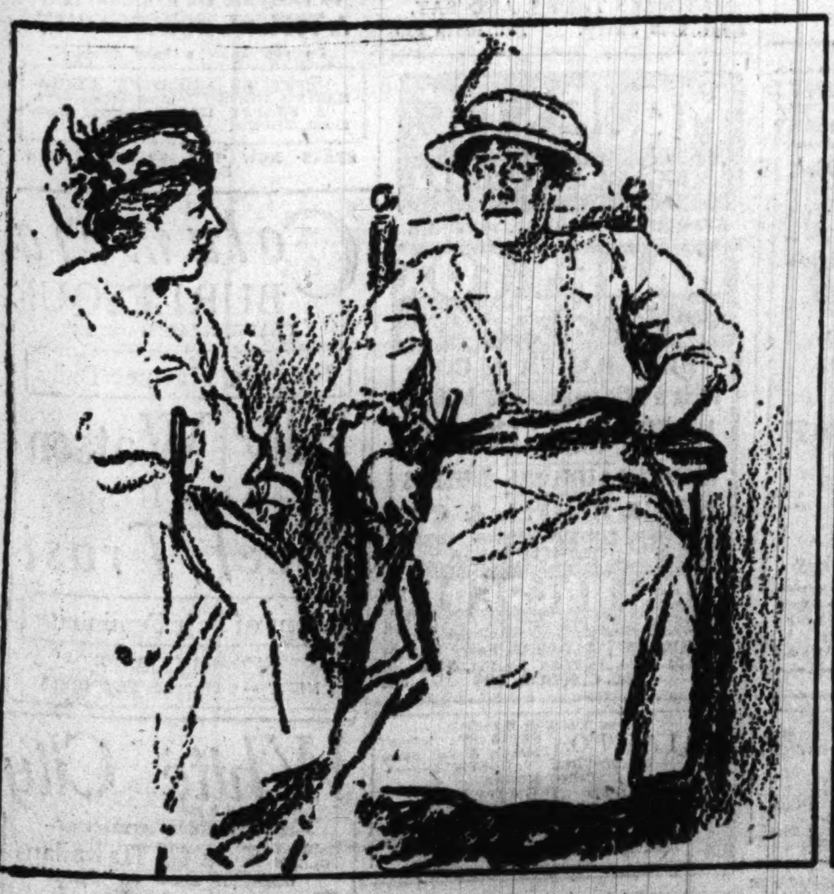


On the bottom step: "Yes, you did—you looked straight at me, Stewart, and you never spoke."

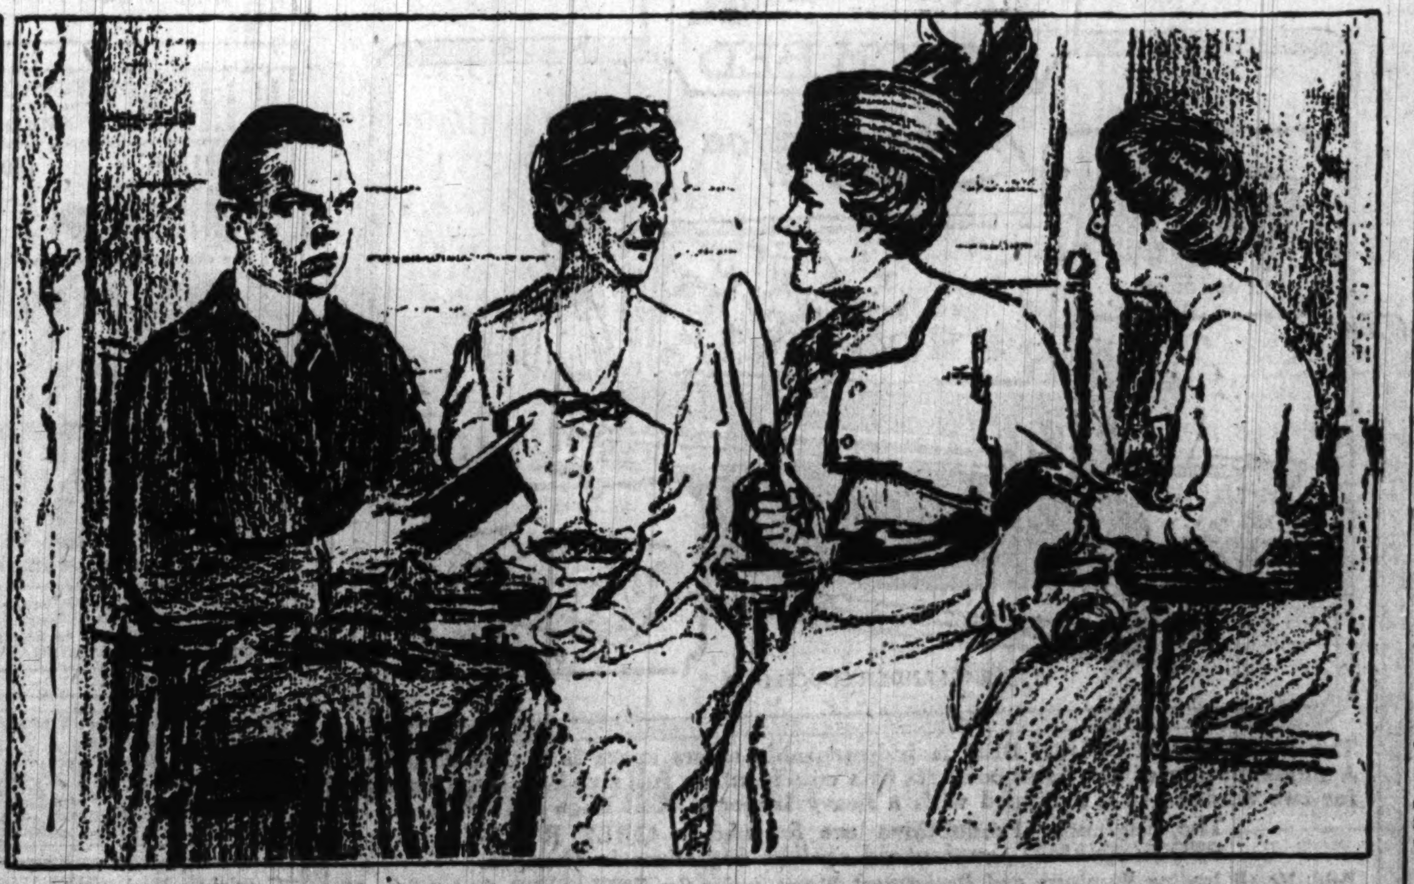
"C'mon over, Bertha—I wana tell you somethin'!"

It is a quarter of seven, and Cousin Lynn, who came in at four, is staying bravely on. The pantomime in the background means: "Don't-ask-him-to-supper!"

The Misses Hogate, who see everything that goes on, and more, too, from behind the vines.



Very warm and moist lady caller, who is sticking to the paint on the rocker and listening somewhat distractedly to Aunt Josie's account of her system being all run down.



George, going on seventeen, and trying awfully hard to get by as a man-about town, hears his mother start the anecdote about how cunning he looked in his little nightie when, at the age of three, he lisped: "Mamma, can the angelth look down and thee if I throw them a kith?"

Summer News of the Theaters

An attempt to establish an "American" ballet in New York is under way by Adolph Bolm, one of the agile Muscovites who appeared here with the Russian dancers at the Auditorium. The dances (given at the Booth theater) are from Russia, Java, Japan, Ceylon, Assyria, and India; the dancers are Bolm, Rita Zalmani, Roshanara, Ratin Devi, Michio Itow, Tulle Lindahl; and the composers represented are Moussorgsky, Grieg, Borodine, and Malouf. Mlle. Eva Gauthier sings "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Hubert Henry Davies, author of "Cousin Kate," etc., is believed to have been drowned on the Yorkshire coast in England, where he was recuperating from a long season of hospital service in France. His coat and cane were found on top of a cliff. Mr. Davies once was a newspaper man in Chicago and San Francisco.

"Upstairs and Down" will soon be performed without the aid of Leo Carillo as the valet and Miss Grace Valentine as the maid. Their defection is due to Oliver Morosco's desire to use them in "Lombardi, Ltd.," which is about to begin or to end an engagement in New York. Mr. Carillo's successor will be Lew Christy, son of an eminent English minstrel and once a member of the No. 2 "Louisiana Lou" company.

Mr. Morosco is acquiring a passion for producing plays by Chicago playmakers. He now plans the presentation of "Mary's Way Out," by Ashton Stevens and Charles Michelson; "One of Us," by Jack Lait; and "Walk-Offs," by Mr. and Mrs. Hatton.

Miss Cecil Cunningham of the varieties and Jean Havez, her husband and the author of her songs and stories, are about to abandon matrimony at the suggestion of Mr. Havez.

Daly's theater in New York, once the center of the American stage but recently a burlesque and moving picture house, has been leased by Miss Margaret Anglin, who will present herself there in a repertory.

"The Lioness," it is believed, will not be in Miss Anglin's list of plays. Though her manager, Mr. Tyler, called that drama a "colossal" medium for her and reviled those who told him otherwise, nothing has been heard of it since its dismal exit from the Blackstone last season.

Allan Brooks, who from the stage of the Princess voiced his contempt for Chicagoans who did not like his funny play, "Dollars and Sense," has decided not to bother about it any more. He will return to vaudeville.

After a long detour through the moving picture field, Daniel Frohman will come back to the theater in a production of "Seven Days' Leave," a comedy by Walter Howard.

"Seven Days' Leave" is a popular London melodrama, something on the order of "Diplomacy," with the war as the background. It contains a spectacular submarine episode.

De Witt C. Jennings, and not Edward Emory, will play the Police Inspector in "The Thirteenth Chair" at the Garrick. Mr. Jennings was once a member of the fine stock company at the Chicago Opera house.

The actors of the stock company at the Crown theater employ three languages ot make themselves understood by their audiences. Miss Nadia Popkova, the leading woman, gives curtain speeches in Polish, Harry Shutan addresses them in Hebrew, and Louis Hollinger uses English.

There is a movement in New York threatening to boycott the theaters which advertise in those German newspapers hostile to America.

Miss Carol McComas, late of "Seven Chances," has been engaged to help Robert Hilliard act "The Scrap of Paper," a play made from a typical Saturday Evening Post nightmare.

The next Winter Garden exposition will contain Miss Lulu Glaser, who may be recalled; Frank Tinney, Ed Wynn, Henry Lewis, James J. Corbett, Herman Timberg, and the Sharrocks—John and Emma.

While Mrs. Castle's husband, Lieut. Vernon Castle, instructs the Canadians in war aviation, Mrs. Castle will dance in the new show at the Century theater in New York. Many things are happening to the cast of the Follies in New York. Miss Mildred Richardson and Ray Raymond, a tenor of the local outskirts, are joining, and Walter Catlett, once of "So Long, Letty," is quitting.

Mary Anderson by her stage appearances in England has contributed $100,000 to war charities during the year.

The British recruiting mission in New York has compiled a list of 600 English actors who are in America instead of in Flanders, and threatens to publish it.

Miss Elsie Janis, who draws down $5,000 a week in vaudeville, hates the star system. "I hate it," says she, "and I believe that it will not be in existence many years from now. People are beginning to see that it is better to see a cast in which there are all good players than to pay their money to watch one favorite act, supplemented by a lot of indifferent actors, and managers are coming to realize that people feel that way."

"Nevertheless," exclaims Mother Janis, "Elsie would kick like the very dickens if she didn't see her name featured in electric lights and on the billboards; so don't forget, Mr. Man, that the magic name of Elsie Janis must be about ten times bigger than any one else on the bill."

"You're right, mother, dear," rejoins Elsie, "but remember that I was speaking of stars and not of headliners. As a headliner I have to stand or fall, live or die all by my lonesome. And if enough people come to the theater to see me to make me worth what I am going to get it is simply good business to play my name up as much as possible."

Miss Janis, who is patriotic, just finished a series of recruiting entertainments and collection expeditions for the Red Cross.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Last winter there was produced at the Irving Place theater, at that time the home of the resident German stock company, a musical play called "Wei einst im Mai." It was, the German reporters reported, a pretty thing and certain to find its way into the English theater. Speculation at the time was rife as to which of the local producers would take it over, and rifer, as you might say, as to what he would do with it.

Charles Dillingham won the honor. He bought the American rights to the operetta and announced that young Joseph Santley would play its juvenile hero, then being played by a German lad named Heinz Lingen—and played so well, by the way, that when Santley went to look it over he declared that, work as he might, he would never be able to give so good a performance. Lingen was typical of that thoroughly schooled type of young German actor who, before he is permitted to play an important rôle, must prove himself fitted for it. He must be able to sing, and to dance, and to act—not with a superficial skill, but as a finished performer.

Dillingham, however, after reading two or three English versions of the work, decided that none of them would do and relinquished his rights, which were promptly transferred to the Shuberts. Last week they produced their version of the play, now called "Maytime." Santley, of course, being a Dillingham actor, was not in the cast. And Herr Lingen was in the audience. He is now a member of Raymond Hitchcock's chorus in "Hitchy-koo" without so much as his name on the program. And he is working in this humble capacity because he wants to learn English. Hitchcock had given him a half hour off that he might dash over to the "Maytime" opening and see what happened to a German play when the enemy took it over.

He saw. And he was much impressed. Particularly with the costuming and the scenery. "But," he demanded wonderingly, "what have they done with all the beautiful music?"

They have taken the music and thrown it out. That is what they have done with it. And substituted an entirely new score by Sigmund Romberg, who writes tunes and adapts flashy ensembles for the Winter garden. A rough worker, but popular. And they have replaced the original book with one by Rida Johnson Young. There is nothing of "Wei einst im Mai" left they report, boastfully, though why they should boast of it is not easy to understand. Nothing left, that is, except the translated title and the basic idea.

The idea itself is a pretty one. It is virtually "Milestones" set to music. The story covers a period of seventy-two years, and in the last act the hero and heroine play the roles of their own grandchildren and take up the romance started in the first act by their older selves.

She was a rich New Yorker's daughter in the first act and he her father's apprentice. And when the apprentice wanted to marry her he was banished. He went away threatening to get rich, which he did in act the second, but not until his sweetheart had been forced to marry her drunken cousin. Then the disappointed apprentice, too, married another. And when they pass out sometime between the next two acts, there is a little hero and a littler heroine growing up to take their places in the fourth act.

By bringing this final division down to the present time and playing it as a modern romance, much has been done to vulgarize it. The heroine has become a fashionable modiste and the hero a Broadway waster. She makes clothes for the chorus girls at the Winter Garden and he pursues the girls themselves as an excuse to visit her dressmaking establishment. And there are such lines as "Lock up the hen house, there are chicken thieves about" to signalize the entrance of a crumbling roué into the modiste's parlors.

In spite of this, however, there is enough of the spirit of the original romance left to make "Maytime" popular. Peggy Wood plays the heroine delightfully, being quite the sensation of the week; Charles Purcell is a curled and reasonably modest hero, and William Norris scores neatly as the old boulevardier chasing chicks. "I hope he lives long enough for me to get him home," is the pretty prayer of the chorus girl who finally annexes him.

The heroine of "Daybreak" is an intensive emotionalist with a purpose in life. Two purposes, in fact—the first purpose being not to reveal the second purpose until the very end of the play. This drama is the second of the Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin series to be produced, but one of the first to be written, when they began their collaborative work a year or so ago. And for all its rather mechanical construction, it has been received with a friendliness and interest by its first audiences that augur well for its future.

The heroine here is married to a rough gentleman untamed by the refining influences of money and position. In liquor he still is a good deal of a beast and given to the brutalities of a dock laborer. He is not above beating children, and once, I believe, he kicked a polo pony to death.

Consequently, when his wife learns that she is to be the mother of his child, she determines that it shall be born and reared away from his contaminating influence. She travels to Honolulu for the accouchement and later, bringing her infant back to New York, leaves it with paid attendants far from her own home. Surreptitiously she visits it at night. Possibly she could have gone in the daytime if it had occurred to her, but that would not have made as effective a scene as does her stealthy entrance into her own home at daybreak in the prologue with which the drama opens.

It happens, however, that this particular morning her husband is also prowling about the place and, as she enters, is hidden behind the window curtains at the head of the stairs. It is dark, but he knows her by her sighs and also by the handbag she carelessly drops on the stairs. Of course he believes the worst. Husbands always do. But failing to accuse her then and there of everything that is in his mind it requires three more acts to prove him wrong.

At the end of that time, putting two and two together and adding the report of his own detectives, he accuses his wife of the crime of motherhood and names the family physician as her accomplice. She admits the first charge but denies the latter with force and in toto. She is a mother and proud of it. But he, unfortunately, and not the good doctor, is the father of her child. This being so she feels herself absolutely justified in what she has done. A stand with which it is easy to agree.

Any man who drinks pink cocktails before breakfast and is likely any moment to bite holes in the mahogany is no proper father to have around a child.

This heroine does not, however, believe in divorce and the conclusion of the play might have been unsatisfactory if Willard Mack, whose wife had also been mistreated by the brutal millionaire, had not arrived on the scene and shot him dead.

Miss Cowl does not act her own heroine this time, as she did in "Lilac Time." But that she has written the part for an actress of her own type is quite evident from the theatrically emotional sweep of both lines and situations. Blanche Yurka is the actress chosen and she gives so splendid a performance the inference is plain that Jane is a fine coach as well as a promising dramatist. Frederick Truesdell is the bad husband, Margaret Dale plays another of her smart widows, and Willard Mack, as said, is an avenging bookkeeper.

In Wilton Lackaye's new play, "The Inner Man," the heroine does not amount to much, naturally. If she did Wilton would likely not have been attracted to the play. The "inner man" referred to in the title is the soul of a thief aroused finally to a fight for its wicked owner.

Wilton plays the thief, one "Devil Dick," who, according to the police, is beyond saying. The most interesting part of the drama in this instance is a prologue in which the audience is forced to act as a gathering of the Society for the Reformation of Criminals. Three or four of the actors are "planted" in the audience and when the chairman calls the meeting to order they arise and enter into the discussions of the evening. These finally result in a wager between a certain philanthropist with boundless faith in human kind and a district attorney with none. As a result of the wager the philanthropist agrees to reform "Devil Dick" within a year or forfeit $10,000 to the society.

Lackaye and toupee are both too obvious to make the criminal hero convincing, the actor because he is too old for the part for one thing, and too intelligent for another. There is bound to be the impression that he is playing with his tongue in his cheek. Lackaye is the type of player to whom pretence is not easy.

Miss Florence Moore in "PARLOR, BEDROOM AND BATH"
STRAUSS-PAYTON PHOTO

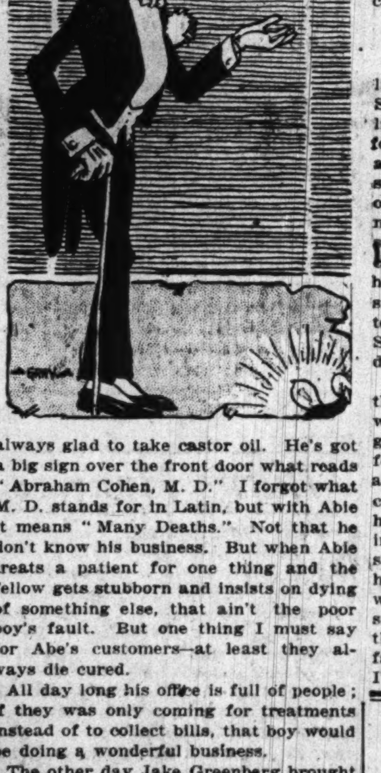
Miss Moore is an airy comedienne whose delectable flair for burlesque has been of use several times to the shows of the Shuberts and others. With Miss Carolyn Lilja, Lowell Sherman, and John Cumberland, late of "Fair and Warmer," she will appear at the Olympic tonight in "Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath," described as a tangy comedy by C. W. Bell and Mark Swan. A. H. Woods is the producer.

They Laugh at This in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

Harry Larned: I just come from a funeral. My oldest son, Abie, is a doctor, and I think it's no more than right, when he loses a customer, I should go along. Only it takes up nearly all my time. And each time he has to fill out a fresh certificate. But Abie is so nearsighted, the last time he filled one out, where it said "Cause of Death" he went and wrote in his own name.

He's a born doctor. As a boy already he showed a taste for medicine. He was always glad to take castor oil. He's got a big sign over the front door what reads "Abraham Cohen, M. D." I forgot what M. D. stands for in Latin, but with Abie it means "Many Deaths." Not that he don't know his business. But when Abie treats a patient for one thing and the fellow gets stubborn and insists on dying of something else, that ain't the poor boy's fault. But one thing I must say for Abe's customers—at least they always die cured.



All day long his office is full of people; if they was only coming for treatments instead of to collect bills, that boy would be doing a wonderful business.

The other day Jake Greenberg brought his boy, Ikey, to Abie's office for treatment. I heard him say to Ikey, "The doctor charges $3 for the first call and $1 for each call after that, so you know what to do.' When it came Ikey's turn he rushed in and said to my son, "Here I am again, doctor." But Abie can be smart, too. He said, "Well, continue the same treatment as before."

When I was a boy there was no such thing as regular doctors. If you got sick you would be taken to a barber. He would take a leech out of a bottle and bleed you—for one dollar. But nowadays it's different. The doctors are their own leeches—and they bleed you for every nickel you got. Formerly the doctors worried whether you was strong enough to stand an operation. Nowadays they only worry if you are rich enough.

And the first thing they advise you to do is to stop eating meat. And no wonder. With the way meat prices are, they know if you don't stop eating it you won't have enough money left to pay their bills.

Of course, there's good doctors, too—like my Abie, for instance. The other night he fixed me up some medicine so I could go to sleep. And he is such a kind son! Every hour he woke me up to give me a spoonful. You'd think a family would appreciate having a doctor like that in the house. Not much. From the minute my family knew they could get cured for nothing they wouldn't get sick any more.

Abie keeps a horse and buggy to call on his patients, although what he needs it for I don't know, because the trolley car almost passes the cemetery.

McVICKER'S.

Frank Bush: I'm not a tramp. I'm a lily. I toil not, neither do I spin. And Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like. The other day I asked a woman for something to eat. She said she hadn't a thing in the house to give me, and besides, she was busy, as she had a couple of letters to write. I said, "Madam, let me lick the stamps. I can't starve." She said, "What's the matter with your coat?" I said, "Insomnia. It hasn't had a nap in ten years." "Well," she said, "I'll give you a dipperful of water." I said, "Is that all you can give?" She said, "No, you can have as many dipperfuls as you want."

Then she asked me what I thought of the scheme of free baths. I said, "They won't get none from me. No man is goin' to get me to bathe without payin' for it." Then I went to another house and rang the front door bell. A woman came to the door, and I said, "Won't you help a poor man that lost all his friends in the Jacksonville fire?" "Why," she said, "you are the same man that lost his family in the Galveston flood, and was in the Charleston earthquake. "I said, "I know it, mum, I'm one of the most unfortunate gentlemen on the face of the earth." "Well," she said, I'll tell you where you can find a job sawing five cords of wood." "Where," said I. "Around the corner of the next street," said she. "I'm much obliged to you," said I. "I might have run into it if it hand't been for you." "Well," she said, "you must be deserving. I'll give you a piece of pie." "I'm much obliged to you," said I, "but I can't eat it without a fork." She said, "Well, you ramble along and you'll find a fork in the road a little further on."

Miss Natalie Alt—in "GOOD BYE BOYS" PRINCESS (NEXT SAT.)

Miss Alt's considerable fame as a prima donna was made in communities farther to the east. She will be introduced here in "Good Bye, Boys" at the Princess next Saturday night, with Edgar Atchison-Ely, Miss Dolly Castles, Miss Beth Franklin, and others.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy; it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

Right Off the Reel

By Mae Tinée.

That broken leg of Jack Kerrigan's is mending, but the process is a slow one. Hard lines to be laid up by the thing you know best how to do. You see, he was out riding and the horse stepped in a hole and threw him.

And, speaking lugubriously, Gypsy Abbot, wife of Henry King, recently was brought to Los Angeles by her husband to undergo an operation. She is still in the hospital, but is reported to be doing nicely.

Look for Anita King in Balboa pictures from now on.

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, recently visited the Triangle studios and was shown just how pictures are made. He was a delighted spectator as Bessie Love did several scenes of "Wee Lady Betty," her new Irish picture.

Metro wants stories! One thousand dollars for 2,000 word synopses. Takes too long to tell about it here, but if you are interested and will write me, I'll tell you all you want to know. Send stamped, addressed envelope.

Douglas Fairbanks, with two Pullmans, three cars of horses, and his company, is in Laramie, Wyo., to take scenes for his next picture, "Fancy Jim Sherwood." It is said that the mayor, the chamber of commerce, and most of the town were at the station.

Richard Bret Harte, grandson of Bret Hart, has been added to the scenario staff at the Triangle studios.

Dick Willis is a press agent, but there is po'try in his soul. Witness the following:

SEEKING THE MOON.

He is a famed comedian, a genius in his line;
He draws his thousands weekly and yet this man doth pine
For other paths to fame. Says he, "I know I'd make a name
By playing big dramatic rôles; I loathe this slapstick game!"

A well known vampire's sorrowful; she's sick of bad girl parts.
Quoth she, "I want to act in rôles that reach the children's hearts."
And though as vamps a tidy fortune this young thing has made,
"With half a chance," says she, "I'd put Miss Pickford in the shade!"

The movie world adores her for her wistfulness and grace;
They love her for her girlishness, her sweet pathetic face.
Her salary is "out of sight"; is she content? Nay nay!
She'd try her hand at tragedy if she but had her way.

A well known handsome leading man with bonds and coin galore
Remarks that "All this hero stuff is getting quite a bore."
Heroic parts have palled on him, and so it seems to me
He thinks he'd shine in "heavy" rôles, a villain he would be!

And so it goes; your artist always yearns for other things;
The angel would a devil be, the devil wants gold wings;
The ingenue would be the lead, the lead an ingenue;
There's few content with what they have; 'tis pity, but 'tis true.

George Fisher has joined a shooters' club at Santa Barbara. No, not Germans—ducks.

Mabel Normand, having in some manner squared her lawsuit differences with Goldwyn, is soon to be seen again, it is promised, under the Goldwyn banner. Let us hope. She has deprived us of herself for so long that we have almost lost hope—not "we" but some people "we" know—tired business men, who liked Mabel.

It's said there will be some terrible fight scenes in William S. Hart's initial Artcraft production—that nearly every male member of the cast, including that hero of a million hearts—is nursing bluggy knuckles and battered heads. Don'um letum killum, Willum!

Mary Pickford has devised a new plan to raise money for her charities in addition to her own contributions. This is by making personal appearances at the theaters in return for the theater manager's presenting a check to the charitable institution. While in the northern part of California taking the exterior scenes for "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," her new Artcraft picture, Miss Pickford received an appeal to help an orphan asylum in Los Angeles. The exhibitor in a neighboring town was also the owner of a large truck garden. Miss Pickford made two personal appearances before his audiences; in return the farmer-exhibitor sent a carload of potatoes to the orphan asylum.

Norma Talmadge announces that in future all her scenarios will be written from books. "Poppy," she thinks, proves that they should be.

Mme. Marie Rappold

She is a late-in-the-season addition to the list of singers in Ravinia Park, where last night she made her first appearance in the title-part of "Aïda." She is from the Metropolitan Opera-House, with which institution she has been associated since the management of the late Heinrich Conried, who "discovered" her. She will be heard again in Ravinia next Saturday night in "Faust."

CONSERVING MOTHERS.

I often hear some long haired guy
In wild and frenzied anguish cry,
"Conserve the food, or else we'll die,
Some way or other—
Come, make each mother strive and try—
It's up to mother.

"If there is any work to do,
An egg to fry, a lamb to stew,
A bun to bake, a drink to brew,
Let mother do it—
And if the wash is needing blue—
Let mother blue it.

"Let mother rassle with the tub,
Let mother wash and rinse and rub,
Let mother sweep and scald and scrub
With wild elation—
Let mother do it—that's the nub—
'Twill save the nation!"

O, every day I hear 'em rave:
"The vista's dark, the outlook grave,
Expenses we must cut and shave
To save the day, sir,
Let mother skimp, conserve, and save
In every way, sir."

But I protest against this crew,
Why leave it all for her to do?
Conserving is the job for you
And me and others,
I'm going to start conserving, too—
Conserving mothers.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NELLIE H.: I'm quite sure Mr. Hart will be glad to answer your letter. Cheer up, he's probably waiting until he has time to send you a nice long one. Yes, I did. No. Probably. Take a little tip from mother and don't do it. That's nice.

WIRTER: Stamped, addressed envelope, please. No charge at all.

EAGLE RIVER: I don't believe it! Nobody ever caught that many fish.

MARGARET: I agree with you—better no music at all than some music. But don't you think the theaters are offering better all the time? It seems to me that they are. Either write and send your picture or go in person to the studio manager taking your picture. No, I have no "pull" with the studios.

H. L.: If you're that sure better go ahead and see just how sure you really are.

SIS: All about Roland Bottomley? It's safe to assume I never can know that. However, I do know that he was born and educated in Liverpool, England, was on the stage for a number of years with Sir Henry Irving and Forbes-Robertson, and appeared in various musical comedies. I do not know just what he is doing at present. Westover court, 210 West Forty-fourth street, New York City.

JANICE: I read the book and thought it good. Paul Capellani. No, better not. Send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the material on scenario writing. Cecil De Mille, one of the greatest directors in the business, says it's story—not technique that counts. I should think he might know, shouldn't you?

UNDECIDED: Helen Ware played the lead in "The Garden of Allah." Thomas Santschi was Boris Androvsky. A Selig production.

ELEANOR H.: Address Marguerite Clarke, care of Famous Players company, 130 West Fifty-sixth street, New York City. Blanche Sweet is not with Lasky now, but a letter addressed to her in care of that company, Hollywood, Cal., will undoubtedly reach her. I would inclose a quarter, if I were you, for the pictures. The stars are put to considerable expense, you know, furnishing the demand for their photographs.

MRS. J. S.: You will have to send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the material on scenario writing. I hope your stories turn out to be every bit as good as you think they are. Write and tell me how you come out with them.

SCOTTY: O, that is some pome! Go ahead and ask me more—for you cannot make me sore. Tell you frankly—I adore—answering questions.

CHEE-ILD: That must sure have been a dark day near the Swanee river!

MISS M.: It was nice to hear from you again. Are you enjoying your rest? Jerome Storm was born in Denver, Colo., in 1885. Yes, he was in "Civilization." Five feet, ten inches. You're welcome.

S. W.: "The Marriage Market."

CARMEN C.: That's what I'm here for. Write as often as you care to. Stamped addressed envelope for personal replies, please. Pauline Frederick. And do you wear a red rose in your teeth, Carmen?

D. K.: My goodness, you frighten me!

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Mostly Married in Second Camp "Debs" Bewail

WIVES tell secrets, and we are finding out funny things about the preparations which are being made by the men who are going into the second officers' camp at Fort Sheridan. First of all, back of the fun there is this tremendous thing of self sacrifice and altruism and idealism. But when words can not express our deep feelings about things, it is just to laugh at something else.

The second camp will be mostly a married men's military school, as one of the young debutantes bitterly complained last week, when she wailed that there wouldn't be any fun—"all the soldiers will run right home to their wives over the week end, and there will be scarcely a bachelor officer to be seen anywhere."

There has been a lot of rehearsing for the part, in front of mirrors, alone upstairs in the hallway, in big military books in the library, and in speaking lessons from specialists, so the wives say. A man will strut for hours before his long mirror, practicing how to hup hup along in front of a company and issuing great orders bow-wowishly. Looking fierce, it has been discovered, is much-affected by beginners.

The men are all shopping these days, too, in preparation for it. And it is said to cost frightfully to get ready to be a military studentkhaki clothes, military smokes, boots, wrist watch, and all.

Open Tubs at Open Houses.

The personnel of the camp is particularly interesting, with so many of our good friends among the students. James Lawrence Houghteling Jr. will be at the camp, while his bride, who was formerly Miss Laura Delano, keeps house near by on the north shore. Mr. Houghteling is the son of Mrs. J. L. Houghteling of Winnetka, and was for a time special assistant secretary to the American ambassador in Petrograd. Mr. and Mrs. Houghteling are planning to entertain at week end parties for some of those who will be at the training camp.

Indeed, the dinners that are being planned for those boys by the matrons of Lake Forest and Highland Park! Camp schedule is quite completely regulating the domestic schedules of the more hospitable ones, who during the first camp have had their dinners served early at 6:30 o'clock, which gives the men just time enough to drop the little coffee cup, whirl off in the motor, and report at camp by the last allowable minute.

And it is not only "open house" but "open tub" as the plunge in the tub more than they do any other home comfort. Among those who have promised the boys these luxuries are Mrs. George A. McKinlock, whom they all love like a mother; Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. A. A. Sprague II, Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mrs. Watson Armour, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Byron Harvey, and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who, with her daughter, Lolita, will continue the wonderful week end parties they gave for the soldiers of the first camp at their beautiful home on Mellody farm.

Getting in Trim for Camp.

Morse Ely has been training for days to get in good trim for the work. Mrs. Ely and her children will be in Lake Forest and there will be frequent week-end parties at their hospitable home.

Another one who has been taking things seriously is Joseph T. Bowen Jr., who has been going to Camp Cicero to collect all the information and sinew possible as advance camp capital. He and his wife will dispense free tubs, too, at their Lake Forest home.

There's a real story in the fact that A. A. Sprague II. has joined the camp. By every count he was not bound to feel the urgent necessity of himself going to the colors. He is in his forties, has a wife and three children, and was at the head of a great firm that has borne his family name for many years, a position he gave up for war duty. Through all this he heard the bugle and will train with the rest.

It is uncertain whether or not Hendricks H. Whitman of Boston, who was originally enrolled for the Plattsburg camp, will be transferred to Fort Sheridan for his officer's training, but every one in Lake Forest is hoping for it. He is the husband of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor and his wife and two little girls are to be in Lake Forest with their family during encampment.

Much of military achievement is expected by the throngs of friends of Jesse Spalding, who is one of the best liked men in society. He is a huge, handsome fellow, was captain of the Yale football team in his day, and has another tremendously important asset for army purposes in his charming wife, who was formerly Miss Jean Whiting.

Harold Laurence to Wed.

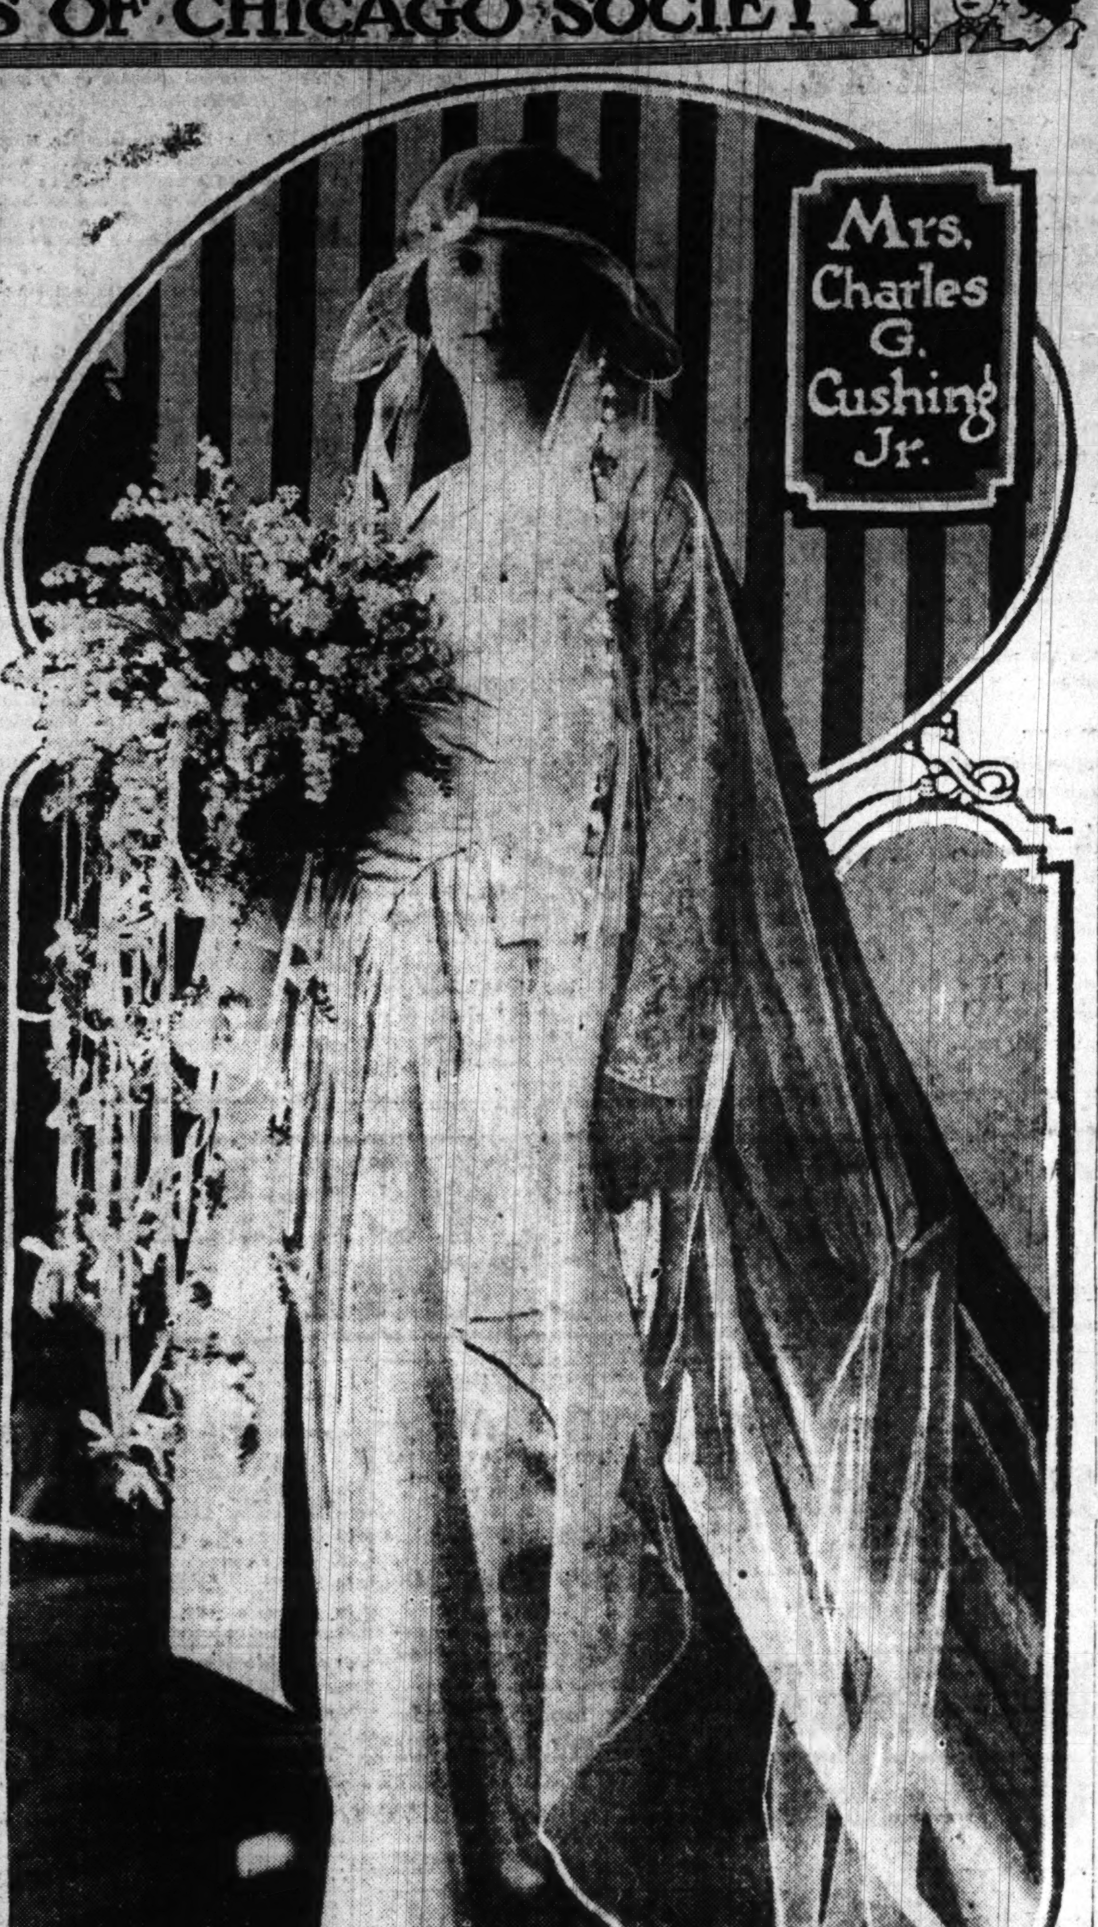
One post-encampment wedding we are fairly sure of this minute, before the man has put on his khaki, and that will be the wedding of Harold Laurence and Miss Sarah Hickox of Springfield, Ill., whose engagement was announced last week. And, there's a charming couple, too. Miss Hickox has often visited here, so everybody knows her and has sent blessings to them both.

And lots of other nice young men will be there, some married, some going to be. There's Henry Keep, son of Chauncey Keep, who is a Yale graduate and awfully popular. John Matz will be at the camp, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Matz. Harold V. O'Brien, Tom Chalmers, Wallace Kirk, and Charles Knickerbocker are others who will be there.

Louis C. Seaverns, a bachelor and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Seaverns of Lake Forest; John A. Stevenson, whose wife, formerly Miss Phebe Eckels, will live at Onwentsia club; Harold Wallace, a Yale graduate, brother of Mrs. James B. Waller; handsome Alanson Follansbee; Springer Brooks, famous Yale '09 football player; Dan Sharpe, formerly representative in China of an American corporation, who will entertain his tentmates with strange oriental tales in the twilight, and who may, too, be concerned in a post-encampment wedding we shall see; Paul and Robert Gardner, famous fellows and good golfers; James T. Hutchins Jr., who is leaving the bond business, and scores of other fine men all will be there. It promises to be a marvelous camp.

WEDDINGS

Chicago society people did tear about to war weddings last week. They went on special trains to them and they hopped around the corner to them.



Mrs. Charles G. Cushing Jr.

St. James' Episcopal church was crowded with Chicago's "everybody" the other day at the noon wedding of Miss Elizabeth Goodrich to Capt. Charles Goodwin Cushing Jr., who had just finished his course in training for an officer's duties at Ft. Sheridan. Mrs. Cushing is widely known, in spite of her youth, as one of the most beautiful young girls of the country and was a debutante of two seasons ago. The young couple will live at Rockford, where Capt. Cushing has been stationed on army duty.

They watched them from their front windows—as some of the weddings these days are most informal and quiet owing to war times and the exigency of the moment.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Quick announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Margaret, to John De Witt Culp on Aug. 25. Mr. and Mrs. Culp will be at home after Oct. 15 at 7131 Parnell avenue.

People will not for many weeks cease gasping over the beauty of the wedding of Miss Adele Blow to Lieut. Chatfield-Taylor and the magnificence of the hospitality accorded the guests who came on the special train from Chicago which was provided by Mr. and Mrs. George P. Blow, the parents of the bride, and to those from the countryside about. The picture of the slender little bride in her long white wedding gown and the young officer who seemed never before so handsome as on the day of his marriage, as they stood in the flickering sunlight under a trellis of flowering vines receiving their guests, will always be remembered by the guests.

The wedding was last Wednesday noon at the home of the bride's parents in La Salle, Ill., and about 150 guests from Chicago were there. Lieut. Chatfield-Taylor and his bride are at the Edgewater Beach hotel for the week before going to the camp at Rockford, Ill., where the officer has been stationed. Lieut. Farwell Winston, who was married the week before in Kansas City, Mo., to Miss Lucia Woods, is also there with his bride. Both officers and their wives will be at the Rockford military camp.

Supt. and Mrs. C. W. Steele of Fowler, Ind., announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruby Belle, to Lieut. Lawrence E. Johnson, son of the Rev. Olaf Johnson of Rockford, Ill., which took place Tuesday. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the liberal arts department of Northwestern university. During her junior year Miss Steele was vice president of her class. Mr. Johnson is a member of the Pi Epsilon Delta law fraternity.

A wedding of distinction in the city, the first brilliant naval wedding of the season, was that of Miss Katherine Snow Carpenter, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Goerge A. Carpenter, and Ensign Edward J. Bermingham II. of Chicago, formerly of New York. It was a quiet affair at the home of the bride's parents at 945 North Dearborn street, but picturesque, with officers of the navy present in their white uniforms, and the bride and bridegroom leaving for their honeymoon under an arch of arched swords. Ensign and Mrs. Bermingham will live at Great Lakes, where Mr. Bermingham is stationed at the training station.

Miss Frances Barton Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding S. Marshall of 73 East Elm street, and great-great-granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall, was married on Tuesday at the country home of her parents in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., to Lieut. Calvin Durand Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Herbert Allen of Baltimore, Md. The wedding had been planned originally for November, but took place earlier on account of the war duty of the bridegroom, who attended the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan.

Chicagoans are interested in the wedding yesterday in New York of Miss Marjorie Fleming, daughter of Arthur Fleming of Pasadena, Cal., and Lieut. Wilton Lloyd-Smith of New York. Miss Fleming has often visited in Chicago at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, and has many friends here. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and their son, Lieut. Gordon McCormick, are in New York for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell of 2716 Prairie avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Edith, to Earl Howell Reed Jr., which took place Friday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Reed is an architect in Chicago and the son of E. H. Reed, the etcher. The wedding was a quiet one and just a few friends and relatives were present.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Grace Davis Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Bowman of 437 Roscoe street, to Lieut. Guy L. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Jones of 5422 Kenmore avenue. The wedding united two prominent North Side families. The bridegroom was recently commissioned first lieutenant of field artillery, and will go to Rockford on Wednesday. Keith Jones, brother of the bridegroom, is in Canada with the royal flying corps. The best man was Lieut. W. E. Howett, U. S. A.

A pretty suburban wedding was that of Miss Martha Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Guthrie of Riverside, to Lieut. Charles Edmund De Leuw, which took place last week in the Riverside Episcopal church.

Mrs. William S. Monroe, as chairman of the committee on re-education of the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense, has been the guest of the royal military commission of Canada, where she studied the problem of re-educating the disabled and mutilated soldiers and sailors.

A special emergency course for home economics extension workers is being offered by the University of Illinois to meet the need for teachers in home economics and conservation. Miss Isabel Bevier, professor and head of the department of home economics, and Miss Mamie Bunch, state leader in home economics demonstration, will have charge of the work. The classes start tomorrow and end Sept. 7.

Mrs. Philip Schuyler Doane has again assumed charge of the work turned out under direction of the Red Cross committee on hospital supplies and foreign relief, at room 609 Powers building. Mrs. Doane is chairman of the central division committee on garments for civilians, refugees, and hospital service.

A committee formed in New York has written to THE TRIBUNE asking aid in giving publicity to the need for social service workers in France. This committee for the care of French mothers and children is making every effort to have the first group selected and in training by Sept. 1. The Rev. Charles S. Macfarland of 105 East Twenty-second street, New York, is chairman of the committee. The Rev. E. W. Rankin of the same address is secretary. The first work of this committee is the training of women to help in the care of refugees, especially mothers and children, as they are returning to their villages, and who can help them in the reëstablishment of homes. These volunteers must be women of maturity, members of an evangelical church, in good health, with experience in carrying responsibility, able to endure hardship, and to do whatever needs to be done under the difficult conditions, for the moral, physical and spiritual aid of these refugees. Volunteers who are unable to pay their own expenses may receive a scholarship for their training, and payment of their expenses while in service, so far as funds are obtained for this. Women of means who are unable to serve personally are invited to send a proxy.

[illegible] Hefferan of the woman's committee of the council of the national defense, asks all young women interested in learning telegraphy to communicate with her at the headquarters of the woman's committee, 120 West Adams street.

The department of women and children in industry, of which Mrs. Raymond Robins is chairman, has received word from Washington that the new labor adjustment commission to be created by the council of national defense, will stipulate that wages shall be computed on a basic day rate of eight hours' work, with time and a half overtime rate, in contracts made hereafter by the government.

The allied relief committee of the woman's committee, C. N. D., has received the following additional donations to be used for the dispensary in France just established to care for the women and children who are pouring out of the devastated districts: Mrs. W. O. Goodman, $100; Miss Cornelia Williams, $50; Miss Anna Williams, $50. Mrs. Goodman also gave $100 to the committee for blankets. The committee will welcome any further donations for this dispensary. The need is urgent.

The woman's board of the Jackson Park sanitarium will meet tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at the sanitarium in Jackson park.

Illinois is still in the lead in respect to the work that its women are accomplishing for the council of national defense, although other states are crowding ahead. In Louisiana Negro women are being registered as well as white. Alaska has called for 10,000 registration cards. In Grand Rapids, Mich., women came to the rescue of soldiers when the commissaries were not yet ready, and fed them on the 75 cents allowed for each man a day. And they saved so much money they were frightened.

A special appeal is being made to college women to take up the profession of nursing, according to the woman's committee, council of national defense. Already seventeen hospitals throughout the country have arranged courses for college graduates, which may be completed in two instead of three years. Among the schools of nursing co-operating in this movement are those connected with the Presbyterian hospital, St. Luke's, Mount Sinai, Bellevue, and Allied of New York City; Lakeside hospital, Cleveland; Rhode Island hospital, Providence; Hartford hospital, Hartford, Conn.; Presbyterian hospital, Philadelphia, and the schools for nursing of the universities of Minnesota, Indiana, Cincinnati and Georgia, and of Washington university, St. Louis, Mo.

Classes in first aid, home nursing, surgical dressing and stenography are to be held in the rooms of the Chicago College club, beginning the second week in September. Mrs. O. C. Foster, 1714 North La Salle street, is in charge of the registrations.

The hostess on Tuesday at the weekly card party for the benefit of the war relief fund of the Chicago College club will be Mrs. Archibald Cattell. All college women and their friends are welcome.

The emergency committee of the Chicago Society of Ohio Women will meet on Tuesday from 10 until 4 o'clock in the rooms of the Fortnightly club in the Fine Arts building to begin war relief work. Members are urged to come and bring their friends. Officers of the committee are Mrs. J. N. Hobbs, chairman; Mrs. Taylor Murphy, vice chairman; and Mrs. Allen Smart, secretary.

Tomorrow at 2 o'clock the Homemakers' guild will meet at 155 North Clark street, where it will have regular headquarters for some time to come. On Tuesday the canning and drying exhibition will be given as usual, in the electric kitchen. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday the committee will visit some of the groups that have been formed in different parts of the city as auxiliaries of the loop movement. A permanent exhibition from the national homemakers will be opened at the above address on Tuesday. During the war this association will meet every week and engage in some active work that will assist in the conservation of foods.

CLUB NOTES

At the semi-annual convention of the Fashion Art League of America to be held at the Auditorium hotel from Monday to Thursday, the fate of American styles for women for 1918 will be determined. The problem of war time apparel consistent with the economy wave and in keeping with the idea of steady employment for workers will be put squarely up to the women of the nation. A showing of fashions deemed appropriate for war times as well as a display of top coats, suits, day dresses, intime gowns, dinner gowns, and other apparel will feature the sessions. The convention will open tomorrow morning with the registration of members. The evening will be devoted to a good fellowship rally. On Tuesday morning M. D. C. Crawford of the American Museum of History will be the speaker. On Tuesday evening the manufacture of silk will be illustrated in moving pictures. On Wednesday afternoon and evening the fashion display will be given in the gold room of the Congress hotel. This event will be in charge of Lillian Woodward Street. On Thursday evening there will be a showing of models on mannequins. Formal dancing will follow. The proceeds of the fashion display will be divided among the war time charities sponsored by the various women's clubs of the city.

The New Hampshire colony and Illini village of the Illinois Colony club will have a garden party and cards at the Chicago Yacht club on Wednesday at 2 o'clock.

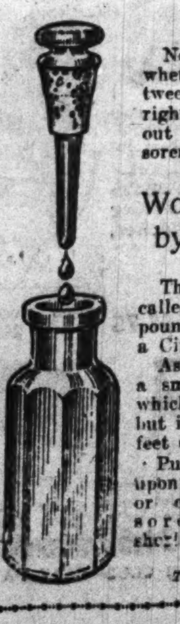
Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Corns and calluses loosen and fall off! Magic!

Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly



No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Wonderful discovery by Cincinnati man

This remarkable drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Take soreness from any corn or callus instantly

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn goes!

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost but a few cents at any drug store.

Moody Church in Conference at Cedar Lake

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE third annual evangelistic, missionary, and bible conference held under the auspices of the Moody church, Chicago, which began yesterday, will meet today and daily until and including Sept. 3. The meetings are held at Cedar Lake, Ind., on the Moody conference grounds.

The Rev. Paul Rader, pastor of Moody church, who is in charge, recently assisted at a similar gathering at Old Orchard, Me., where the total missionary offering was $72,000. The Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York, who was in charge of the Old Orchard meeting, will be one of the speakers at Cedar Lake. Other speakers will be Charles G. Trumbull, Philadelphia, editor of the Sunday School Times; the Rev. Mark A. Matthews, Seattle; the Rev. W. Leon Tucker, the Rev. W. S. Jacoby, the Rev. H. H. Gregg, Charles Inglis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Norton.

The Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann, president of the Chicago Training School for City, Home, and Foreign Missions, will deliver, on Wednesday afternoon, the convocation address of the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. The convocation marks the closing of the summer quarter.

The Rev. George H. Yule, pastor of the Humboldt Park Baptist church, has resigned, his resignation to take effect Sept. 1. Mrs. Yule will direct the music in the evangelistic campaigns conducted by her husband.

The Rev. F. R. Godolphin, rector of the Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Oak Park, is spending this month and next among the miners at Leadville, Colo. He is engaged in a house to house canvass, and endeavoring to arouse interest in the church, and in counteracting the influence of the clandestine sellers of whisky among the miners.

The Disciples of Christ, which has 700 churches and a church membership of 115,000 in Illinois, will hold its state convention in Taylorville, Sept. 10-13. A feature of the program will be a laymen's symposium on such subjects as, "Church Publicity," "Financing the Church," "The Men of the Church," and "An Efficient Eldership."

Th Rev. L. T. Foreman will preach this morning in the Pilgrim Temple Baptist church, Leavitt street near North avenue.

Two unique ways of serving soldiers in the field is suggested by the work of the Young Men's Christian association of Great Britain. On way is the photographing of the family of the absent soldier and the sending of the picture to him. Another way is in acting as pilot to visiting friends who visit the hospitals to find soldiers who are ill or wounded.

The Second United Presbyterian church, Sixty-fifth street and Parnell avenue, of which the Rev. W. A. Pollock is pastor, is working to secure a pledge of $10,000 by Oct. 14, which will be observed as rally day. The fund is to be devoted to the erection of a new church building.

The Fourth Congregational church, Powell and Shakespeare avenues, will celebrate the first anniversary of its organization by the merging of the Grace, Cortland, and Maplewood churches, with a series of meetings Sept. 30 to Oct. 7. Anniversary day will be Oct. 7. The Rev. W. A. Briggs, the pastor, will be assisted by other ministers.

The Rev. William H. Spence.
GIBSON-SYKES & FOWLER PHOTO

The Rev. William H. Spence is pastor of the First Congregational church at Hinsdale, which will dedicate Oct. 7 a new $90,000 house of worship. Mr. Spence came to Hinsdale March 1, 1916, from the pastorate of the First Congregational church at Oberlin, O. He received his scholastic and theological education at Albion college, Michigan, and at Oberlin college.

The Hinsdale congregation celebrated last October the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the church.

The new building has several notable features. Its style is a free interpretation of the English Gothic. Central to the auditorium, which is used for worship and the Sunday school and social rooms, is a tower eighty feet high and containing a chime of bells.

In the auditorium section there is a paster's office, a reception hall, and choir rooms for a full vested choir. The auditorium and gallery will seat 600. A three manual organ is located by the side of the chancel. The interior of the auditorium is finished in soft tan with dark brown oak trim. The ceiling is barreled in form and entirely of wood. The stained glass windows, three of which are in the eastern front, are the work of Charles J. Connick of Boston, who likewise made the windows for the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago. One of the windows is a memorial to George A. Robinson. Dr. A. K. Pearsons, who gave so many thousands of dollars to help small colleges, was until his death a member of this church.

The Sunday school section is especially complete. It is three stories in height with capacity equal to the church auditorium. On the ground floor is a social room 52x46 feet, a business office, large kitchen, and space for boys' and girls' clubrooms. The first story contains the main floor of the Sunday school and the woman's parlor and the second story contains the rooms for the primary department. The primary room and the women's parlor have in them large fireplaces. The general design is what is known in the Sunday school world as the Akron plan, providing by folding doors and curtains for separate class study. The chairman of the building committee is Wade Fetzer and the superintendents and architects are Tallmadge & Watson, the firm which designed the First Methodist Episcopal church at Evanston.

The socity for the promotion of church work among the deaf in the Protestant Episcopal church will observe today as Ephpheta Sunday, in which an offering will be taken for the work.

An open air bazaar and festival will be given at Gaelic park, Forty-seventh street and California avenue, today for the benefit of the new church of St. Justin Martyr. It will be under the auspices of the Gaelic Park athletic club, of which the Rev. J. K. Fielding, pastor of St. Justin Martyr church, is the president. The various Irish and Catholic organizations of Chicago are interested and many of them will be represented on the occasion by booths.

The annual retreats for the clergy of the archdiocese of Chicago will open at Notre Dame university tomorrow and on Sept. 3. These retreats will be conducted by the Rev. John H. O'Rourke, S. J., of New York.

The Fullerton Avenue and Covenant Presbyterian churches are discussing the question of merging. The Fullerton Avenue church, located on Fullerton avenue and Hamilton parkway, is only three blocks from the Covenant church at North Halsted street and Belden avenue. It is proposed in the Fullerton Avenue church bulletin that the church extend a call to the Rev. W. S. Plumer Bryan, pastor of the Covenant church, to become pastor of the merger, and that an assistant pastor be secured. The appeal is headed, "Eventually—Why Not Now?" The Fullerton avenue church has been without a pastor for several months, since the resignation of the Rev. F. M. Fox, who went to Springfield, O. Both churches have capacious and substantial church edifices. The Fullerton Avenue officials argue that their church is the more centrally located with reference to the Presbyterian constituency, and would, therefore, be the logical choice in the selection of the building.

On Sunday, Sept. 9, the mortgage of the Garfield Boulevard Methodist Episcopal, Garfield boulevard and Emerald avenue, will be burned. The week following will be observed as jubilee week. On the evening of Sept. 11 the Rev. T. K. Gale of Wilmette will give an entertainment of select readings, and on the following Friday evening the Rev. W. R. Wedderspoon of St. James Methodist Episcopal church will lecture on "Auld Lang Syne." The pastor is the Rev. Roderick Murray.

Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle, Wash., will preach at the Moody tabernacle at Clark street and West North avenue this evening at 7 o'clock.

Norwegian Lutherans are to have a celebration on Sept. 9 of the union of the three large Norwegian Lutheran bodies, the Norwegian synod, the Haugis synod, and the United church, consummated at St. Paul on June 9. In Chicago there will be a religious service at St. Paul's English Lutheran church, Hirsch and Washtenaw avenues, at 3 p. m. The Rev. H. G. Stub, for many years a leading theologian, and the newly elected president of the new body, will deliver the festival address, and a large chorus will sing. This will be followed by a meeting in Humboldt park, when the Rev. C. O. Salberg of Northfield, Minn., will speak. On the committee in charge are the Rev. E. C. Tiller, the Rev. M. Nesaig, and the Rev P. A. Kittilsby.

The Rev. Charles Frank Bourscheidt has been ordered to report to the Great Lakes Naval Training school to act as religious director for the Young Men's Christian association. Previous to going into war work for the Y. M. C. A. he has been connected with the Protestant Episcopal cathedral here. Mrs. Bourscheidt has also given her time to war work. She has just completed a course in surgical dressings which she intends to teach.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of the hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

CHICAGO KENT COLLEGE OF LAW

Hon. Edmund W. Burke, Dean

More than half the practicing lawyers in Chicago who are graduates of any law school in the state are alumni of Chicago-Kent. The record of its yearly graduates who are successful at state bar examinations is unsurpassed. Evening Courses. Registration for fall term now in progress.

Oldest, Largest and Best Evening Law School. Chicago-Kent employs the most approved and thorough methods of instruction. LL.B. degree in three years. All classes divided into sections, assuring full attention for every student. Individual instruction given when necessary. A thorough training in court room oratory without extra charge. Distinguished faculty—specialists in their respective branches of the law.

Send for the faculty list. It proves the merit of Chicago-Kent instruction.

Investigate

Fall Term Opens September 12.

All men who seek to prepare themselves for a successful career at law through evening study should investigate the advantages of Chicago-Kent instruction.

For twenty-eight years—since 1887—Chicago-Kent has been producing successful lawyers.

Walton Students Win Success

In the June, 1917, examinations for associate membership in the American Institute of Accountants, sixty-eight men were successful. Of these, eight were Walton trained. Five men who acquitted themselves with special distinction were named in order of merit. Three of the five were Walton students, and George Lormer, our student, headed the list. Walton students won medals in 1915, 1916, and 1917, Illinois C. P. A. examinations. No stronger evidence of the worth of Walton training could be offered.

There is a strong demand for trained men to fill the positions left by the men called to the Colors.

Prepare yourself for success by entering our courses in

PERSONAL

To Prospective Students IN Stenographic and Secretarial Courses

In your desire to find where you can get the most practical training for stenographic and secretarial positions, permit me to suggest that you inquire of our present students, our graduates, and employers of the service. You will find them cordial and good advisers—the best references an institution of this kind can give. You will also want to know about the time and cost of the course and the certainty of a position on completing it. I am, therefore, taking the liberty to be personal regarding the advantages we offer, day and evening. The time and cost of a course will be determined by the educational advantages you have had and by your working qualities as evidenced by your personality. Our course is guaranteed to be cheapest in cost, best in results. We secure good positions for our graduates. You will be enabled to complete a course in the shortest possible time, as the instruction is entirely individual. We credit shorthand and touch typewriting learned in high schools. Inquire and investigate, and you will come to this institution with confidence in its claims and appreciative of the personnel of its teachers and students. If you take a course with us, your efficiency and the position we shall secure for you will correspond with the ability and application you will show as a student. I invite you to call or write for more detailed information, as we employ no solicitors, no inveigling methods, and impose no form of contract on patrons. We have qualified thousands of young men and women for stenographic and secretarial positions, the service covering a period of thirty years in this city. This institution is central in location, beautiful in environments, select in character, and practical in instruction—the best equipped and best conducted institution of its kind in the United States—insuring the fullest satisfaction to the better class of young men and women.

Hoping you will take a course with us, day or evening, and suggesting that you make early arrangements for entering, I am

Respectfully yours,

Charles R. Barrett

Attend Chicago "Tech"

New Chicago "Tech" Building at 2721 So. Michigan Ave.

No longer is it necessary to spend four years or more to get a technical education. This training is now within the reach of every ambitious young man whether a high-school graduate or not. Concentrated instruction—that explains why the Chicago Technical College saves half your time in training you for best positions in

ARCHITECTURE ENGINEERING DRAFTING

CIVIL · MECHANICAL · STRUCTURAL · ELECTRICAL

These great, unlimited fields of opportunity are calling for technical men as never before. For months we have been unable to supply enough trained men to fill all the good positions submitted to us.

Chicago "Tech" training means efficiency—all your time on the essential subjects. Faculty of professional expert Engineers, Architects and Contractors personally direct your work. No unusual or special entrance requirements; choice of Day or Evening classes; central location; new college building and equipment; low tuition rates, easy payments. Students' Aid Bureau assists in securing positions while in College and after graduation. These are a few of the many advantages enjoyed by Chicago "Tech" students.

Write to the Secretary today for Book of Views and full particulars. Mention subject you want to take up—and state whether interested in day or evening classes at the College or in Home Study by Mail.

Fall Term Opens Sept. 10th

Registration NOW. Enrollments limited to capacity of our two schools. No students will be accepted after this limit is reached. It is seriously worth while for you to investigate this opportunity at once.

Visit the College or Write

If you live in Chicago call at the College Building or at our down-town school in the Lake View Building at 116 So. Michigan Avenue. Talk over your plans and prospects with our President or Secretary; visit our class rooms and drawing rooms; see the high grade work of our students on exhibition.

If you cannot call, write! Get this information now. Chicago offers exceptional opportunities for self support while studying. Hundreds of Chicago "Tech" students earn their expenses while studying here. Write for information if you live at a distance.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY

Founded 1873

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

Thorough Instruction at Lowest Expense

THIS INSTITUTION was founded with the idea of giving to every person, whether rich or poor, a chance to obtain a thorough practical education at an expense within his reach. That it is performing this mission is indicated by the numbers who avail themselves of the advantages offered.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY was founded with 3 departments, 4 instructors, and an annual enrollment of 210 different students. Now there are 22 departments, 220 instructors, and an annual enrollment of more than 5,000 different students.

THIS GROWTH is owing to the constantly increasing facilities, the strengthening of the courses of study, and the offering of additional advantages to the student.

THE UNIVERSITY is well equipped with buildings, libraries and laboratories for giving instruction in the following DEPARTMENTS: Preparatory, High School, Primary Methods, Kindergarten Methods, Commerce, Phonography and Typewriting, Review for Teachers, Bible Study, Education, Arts and Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Manual Arts, Agriculture, Public Speaking, Music, Fine Art, Home Economics, Pharmacy, Law, Medicine and Dentistry.

While the expense in all the Departments is exceedingly low, it has not been made so at the sacrifice of a high grade of instruction, but by applying business principles to

THE COST OF LIVING, so that the most satisfactory accommodations for board and room may be had at from $44 to $56 per quarter of twelve weeks; tuition $20 per quarter, or $75 if paid in advance, for a year of forty-eight weeks. If the entire tuition is paid in advance for the year, it includes all departments, except Medicine, Dentistry and private lessons in Music.

The total expense for board, tuition and furnished room for the regular school year (thirty-six weeks), need not exceed $198, or for forty-eight weeks, $246. For Free Catalog address

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Simpson of 852 Lakeside place announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Lieut. G. B. Angus, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Angus of 4357 Oakenwald avenue. Both the young people attended Northwestern university. Miss Simpson is a member of the Gamma Phi Delta sorority and Lieut. Angus is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. No date has been set for the wedding, as Lieut. Angus will leave tomorrow for Pennsylvania with his regiment.

Mrs. Sophia Dellefield of 5422 Prairie avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Fanny, to Sidney Husch of St. Paul, Minn.

Louis Seaman of 5660 Blackstone avenue, announces the engagement of his daughter, Jeanette, to idney I. Sachs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sachs of 115 East Fifty-ninth street.

FUTURE EVENTS

Mrs. Potter Palmer will open her home on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 26, at 2 o'clock, for a large card party to be given in the interest of the soldiers who will be at Rockford and those of the aviation corps. Mrs. Richard P. Fox of 20 East Goethe street is managing the affair and she will be assisted by a group of patronesses. Friends of the cause who desire tables are asked to send their applications to Mrs. Fox. Each table will be $10, and guests are to be responsible for their town tables. Mrs. Fox hopes to get $1,000 at this party, half of which will be used for the soldiers and half for those in the aviation corps. There will be 100 tables and expenses will be avoided through donations from friends.

The regular weekly dinner dance of the Glen View club will be held on Thursday evening at the clubhouse.

A patriotic tennis meet will be held at the Moraine hotel this week, opening tomorrow and continuing through Saturday, after which there will be a benefit ball on Saturday evening at the hotel. The proceeds will go to the Great Lakes auxiliary of the Naval Relief society.

The hostess for the weekly card party to be held on Tuesday afternoon at the Chicago College club, 16 North Wabash avenue, will be Mrs. Archibald Cattell.

There will be a dinner dance on Tuesday evening at the Chicago Yacht club. On the following Friday the women of the club will meet at the clubhouse for their Red Cross work, which is done under the auspices of the Red Cross auxiliary of the club.

On Wednesday at the South Shore Country club the naval training station band is to give an outdoor concert for the benefit of the Navy Relief society.

The Klio association will have a benefit card party Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the president, Mrs. J. H. Volk of 2228 Neva avenue.

There will be a reception Wednesday afternoon at the new building of the Arden Shore encampment, which has recently been finished, to take the place of the building that burned last winter.

A summer festival will be given at Homewood on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday for the benefit of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church of Homewood, of which the Rev. John P. Doran is pastor.

The Dorothy Meadows circle will meet Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 11, at the Edgewater Beach hotel for the purpose of making plans for the coming season.

PERSONALS

Miss Julia Heap, the English granddaughter of Mrs. Julia Heyworth of 1434 Lake Shore drive, who is now at Millington hall, on the Surrey, estate of her father, Sydney Heap, has become, it seems from letters received here, an expert gardener, and even farmer. Miss Heap's war duty took the form of replacing her father's skilled agricultural helpers, and she has achieved remarkable things in the way of making crops grow on their farm lands.

Miss Alice Silverthorne of New York, who has many friends among the younger society set of the city on account of her visits here at the height of the social season last winter, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Francis E. May of 8344 Sheridan road.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson of 2700 Lake View avenue, who has been in the east for the summer, is expected home about the end of this week. The score of little convalescent children who have been living in her house during the summer will be taken back to the Children's Memorial hospital the middle of next month.

Mrs. Samuel B. Fleming of the Congress hotel, has gone to the Adirondack mountains and later will go to Washington, D. C., for the month of October.

Miss Molly Byerly Wilson is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Alletta E. Wilson, and her sister, Mrs. Sumner J. Quint, in Los Angeles, Cal. They will spend much of the time during the next six weeks in motoring along the coast and up into the mountains and will go to Sulphur Mountain Springs. They expect to return to Chicago about Oct. 1.

Miss Louise A. Woolner of 5024 Ellis avenue, who has been active in Navy league work, has gone to Washington and New York with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Woolner. They will return in three weeks.

Mrs. Heyliger A. De Windt of Winnetka, returned to her home last week after a fortnight's stay on Mackinac island.

Miss Marion Keehn of Kenilworth, whose engagement to Reed Landis was recently announced, is in New York visiting relatives.

Child's Corset Waists
Third Floor—Center

Do you know the H. & W. corset waist? You should, if you care to guard the young folks' health and give their bodies the necessary support and proper guidance. H. & W. waists are, first of all, made in the very best manner, of stout cambrics and jean, with strongly woven buttonholes that will not pull out, all buttons tape fastened. Note the properly curved, adjustable, comfortable shoulder straps that will not slip over the shoulder.

When the figure is slight, waists that are buttoned in front are very comfortable and answer every purpose, the shoulder straps keeping the garment in place so that it can be worn as loosely as desired. This style H. & W. waist is quite shapely—back and hips sufficiently long. For girls 8 to 12 years old, at 60c

For girls 14 to 16 years old who are more fully developed, H. & W. garment in which the feature of the corset and waist are combined—pliable front clasp, soft cords introduced around the body to give strength and the slight degree of support necessary for comfort, sizes 14, 15 and 16 years, button or clasp front, at 75c, 1.00 and.... 1.50

H. & W. waists for boys 2 to 12 years old, shoulder straps that are made to fit correctly and prevent the boy from becoming round shouldered, made of good quality jean, firm enough to hold a sturdy boy and not tear, at.............................. 35c

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. X.

Two Events with a Dramatic Touch Enliven Newport

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Such excitement as this week has afforded in Newport has really been more dramatic than social. For one thing there has been the daily appearance of John Barrymore on the tennis courts of the Casino.

Mr. Barrymore is, so far as I have been privileged to observe him off the stage, a modest young person and not at all keen about attracting attention. But it happens that he plays a particularly good game of tennis and this, of course, has appealed to the debutantes. They are so interested in the technique of the game that they have made it a point to study the Barrymore form whenever opportunity offered.

The actor has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Payne Thompson, and the party also has included Mrs. Leonard Thomas.

The second event with a dramatic touch has been the sudden departure of the French players. They came some weeks ago, as I wrote at the time, to entertain the colony by giving a series of short plays at the new Lafayette theater. The arrangements were really made by Lucien Bonheur, who formerly was at the head of the French theater movement in New York, but who has just been deposed, so far as Otto Kahn and the Metropolitan opera crowd are concerned, by Jacques Copeau.

And it occurs to me that this may have had a lot to do with the failure of the Newport venture. Being out of favor with the real promoters of art, Mr. Bonheur could hardly be expected to retain his position with those who support the promoters. In any event he did not, and so M. Edgar Becman, Mlle. Gilda Darthy, and Mlle. Yvonne Garrick quietly packed their trunks on Tuesday and took train for New York.

Before they left, however, M. Becman had a short session with the court and was placed under $1,000 bonds to make good the claim of the Rev. Edward A. Higney, pastor of St. Joseph's church, by whose parish the theater is owned.

Preston Gibson in France.

Speaking of the drama, it transpires that Preston Gibson, who "disappeared" some month ago and was supposed to be relieving his busy brain of another drama somewhere in the solitudes, has really been driving an ammunition motor in France, dodging shells and explosions and taking all the other chances that go with this hazardous occupation. He is attached to the famous Morgan-Haques unit and it was only by accident that his whereabouts became known. He had made a special request that his comrades omit his well known name from any letters they might be sending to New York, Chicago, Washington, or Newport.

There is to be a coming out party for Miss Dorothy Willard early next month, cards having been sent out this week by Col. and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard. Miss Dorothy is to make her formal bow at an informal dance and supper to be held at Fair Haven, the Willard place. I rather resent the usual classification of this young woman as "the sister of Miss Roberta Willard, conceded to be the handsomest girl in Newport." Not that the honor is undeserved by Miss Roberta, but it places Miss Dorothy at such a disadvantage. And she is a pretty and attractive girl on her own account. Col. Willard has been on the retired list of the army for several years, but is again in active service, being in command of the Newport office of the engineer corps. Friends have been invited to Miss Dorothy's party from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington.

Capt. Reginald C. Vanderbilt's garden party for the members of the Newport home guard, the Portsmouth constabulary, held at Sandy Point last Saturday, was an entire success. This is the captain's own command. He not only organized and equipped it but his efforts as a recruiting officer drew into it practically the entire male contingent of the colony. They gave a drill as a feature of the afternoon, and presented quite a brave array.

Home Charities Overlooked.

And while this party for the home guard was being held at Sandy Point, which is the Vanderbilt farm, the children of the colony were holding another party at Sunnylea, which is the Vanderbilt villa in Newport. Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt presided here, with the help of her mother and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Neilsen, and enough money was realized from various sources to pay for another motor ambulance to be sent to the front in France. The youngsters were tremendously proud of doing their bit.

The reaction that has been expected in the generous giving to war charities is beginning to set in. Last week it was called to the attention of a number of the most active collectors that they were overlooking the home institutions entirely. The Newport hospital, for one, was facing a formidable deficit, and something would have to be done about it. The news was no sooner spread, however, before Mrs. W. Watts Sherman sent her check for $2,000 to the trustees, and shortly after checks for $1,000 each were received from Mrs. James Andrew Swan, Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, and George Peabody Wetmore, followed by donations of $500 each from Mrs. Theodore K. Gibbs, Mrs. John R. Drexel, and Miss Alice Gorden Drexel.

It is not expected that society will respond excitedly to the offer of Louis H. Chalif to teach any who expect to go to Russia the language of that unhappy country, but it may be something can be done with his offer to throw open his studio as a free school to the soldiers and ambulance drivers who may wish to learn. It is his idea that such money as may be donated by students should be turned over to the Russian ambulance fund.

Several detachments of men left Fort Adams for the front last week, and among the farewells were those of the women of the "tobacco squad," led by Mrs. Gov. Beeckman. The distributing line included Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mrs. George Satterlee, Mrs. Charles A. Child, Mrs. J. Francis A. Clark, Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal, Mrs. William DeForest Manice, Mrs. J. Laurens Van Allen, Mrs. Hamilton Cary, Miss Marion Satterlee, Miss Anna Sands, and Miss Dorothy Bigelow. They give the soldiers 10,000 cigarets.

Many Military Weddings.

The stimulating effect that a state of war has upon the professional activities of young Mr. Cupid is again shown in the number of military weddings being held. On Tuesday, in Morristown, N. Y., Miss Loraine Allen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall Allen of New York, was married to Allan MacDougall of Squadron A, son of Mrs. Allan MacDougal and a great-great-grandson of an old time New York mayor, Stephen Allen. The Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest in New York, was assisted by the Rev. Henry M. Kirkby, of St. Peter's church, Morristown, in performing the ceremony, which was followed by a large reception at the Allens' new country home, Glenallyn, at Convent Station.

The wedding of Miss Pauline Disston, daughter of Mrs. William Disston of Philadelphia and Newport, and John Wanamaker Jr. was one of the fashionable events of Newport's season. The marriage was solemnized in Emanuel church, Newport, on Saturday, Aug. 11.

The bride, attended by Miss Edith M. Fanshawe, wore a wedding gown of white lace and net, with a train of white satin, her tulle veil held by a becoming Russian headdress of lace. Miss Fanshawe wore pale blue chiffon and carried blue hydrangeas, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Gladys MacDougall, Alice Wilmerding, Ellen D. Geer, Madge R. Lesher, Marion Connett, and Dorothy Darrell, and Mrs. Bache Hamilton Brown, were gowned in shell pink chiffon, covered with lace, and carried pink hydrangeas.

Then on Thursday there was the wedding of Miss Evelyn S. Witherbee, only daughter of Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee of New York and Port Henry, N. Y., to Charles Duncan Miller, son of Mrs. Charles Addison Miller of New York. The Witherbee town house, at 4 Fifth avenue, well within the much talked of Greenwich village neighborhood, and within a stone's throw of the former homes of Mark Twain and Lillian Nordica, is closed for the summer. The wedding, therefore, took place in Grace church at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, followed by a supper and reception at Sherry's. Mr. Miller chose his attendants from among his fellow rookies at Plattsburg, and they included Marshall R. Kernochan, Benjamin R. C. Low, Alexander D. B. Pratt, Ethelbert I. Low, David J. Ely, William R. Luther, William Baylis Jr., John A. Dix, W. Rhinelander Stewart, Jr., and John H. Auerbach.

Stately Home of Lady Chesham Is Now Toy Factory

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The way in which British women of all degrees are "keeping the home fires burning" in the absence of their menfolk at the war is no new tale, but it is one that grows more inspiring as time goes on. And there is a fine example in it for our own women in the anxious days that are to come.

Strange are the uses to which many of the mistresses of historic homes in England, besides pursuing unwonted activities themselves, have allowed their mansions to be put. For example, Latimer house, in Buckinghamshire, one of the two country seats of the youthful Lord and Lady Chesham, is now being used as a center for—what do you think?—toy making!

Before the war most of the cheap toys that were sold in this country [dolls and the like] were imported from Germany, but as soon as the ways of the Hun became apparent and the country as a whole made up its mind to have no traffic with him, even when the war was over, to say nothing of allowing him to keep his grip on whole industries that might exactly as well be British, a determined attempt to "domesticate" the making of children's playthings in England was set on foot.

Child labor, of course, is largely employed in Germany for toy making, and now little ones throughout Great Britain are being taught the same trade. Wounded and disabled soldiers are largely employed in the new industry, too, and vastly enjoy their activities in this direction, which soon grow less amateurish.

Husband Twice Wounded.

Latimer house is now one of the biggest centers of this new industry in the Buckinghamshire district, and its pretty chatelaine frequently comes to see the work in progress and even takes part in it. Her youthful husband [he is only 23], who is the fourth Baron Chesham, is one of the noblemen who own large tracts of valuable "real estate" in London, and he is also lord of 12,000 rural acres. A lieutenant in the Tenth Hussars [known as the Prince of Wales' Own], he has served practically since the beginning of things, and has been twice wounded, once rather seriously. His charming baroness, whom he married in 1915, was previously Margot, daughter of J. Layton Mills, another country magnate, whose home is Tansor court, Oundle. Lady Chesham, besides being a real beauty, has many accomplishments.

Latimer house, which has so surprisingly become a toy factory, contains some art treasures of great value. These include, among much else, some beautiful tables of inlaid marble and a famous picture by Sir Joshua Reynolds, the portrait of an ancestress, Lady Betty Cavendish. Lord Chesham's father served in South Africa, and among other quaint relics of that war is an immense Dutch Bible that in its way has interest, as it contains entries of the family names of its former Boer owners. One hardly expects to find Roman remains in what are known as the home counties, but in the park, quite near Latimer house, is a Roman villa, which has tessellated floors and is in a good state of preservation.

Other Mansions Hospitals Now.

Some famous family mansions are even being used as living quarters for the German prisoners who are doing agricultural work throughout the country. One of these is Pencoed castle, in Monmouthshire, which belongs to Lady Mackworth. And every day one hears of yet another "hall" or "manor house" that has been turned into a war hospital. One such is Hanworth Park, in Middlesex, a fine old mansion which vastly attracted the ex-king of Portugal when he was deciding on a residence in England. At Hanworth Park Countess Percy, whose earl is at the front, is coöperating with Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Leopold Rothschild, who so recently lost her husband, is running a big war hospital.

Lady Lowther, whose husband, Sir Charles, is now a lieutenant colonel in the yeomanry and has the D. S. O. to his credit, is another well known hostess who has turned one of her homes into a place for nursing. Swillington house, the home of the Lowthers, near Leeds, is now a hospital with over seventy beds, and, though its mistress is a constant visitor, she is now living at another of their homes, Thornby house, near Northampton.

When the war began Sir Charles Lowther was master of one of the most famous packs of fox hounds in all England, the renowned "Pytchley hunt," which is second only to the aristocratic "Quorn" and, since his departure, Lady Lowther has been acting as "master." At the first blush you may think that looking after even a famous pack of hounds is a somewhat unimportant work in war time, but the fact is that these big English "hunts" give employment to many persons of all ages, so keeping up a "pack" and hunting it, an exacting task, is really helping to "carry on."

Two other society women of whom one recently has heard as doing useful and strenuous "war service" are Miss Blennerhassett, a niece of the Earl of Dunraven, who is helping to clear a forest in Wales for the provision of timber, and Miss Enid Elliott, the handsome daughter of Lieut. Gen. Sir E. Locke Elliott, who has relinquished her work at a hospital in France to superintend a back to the land movement on her father's estate in Gloucestershire.

ART

News and Gossip of Artists and Their Pictures

AT THE Art institute there is no news in the way of recently arrived exhibits, but the old favorites remain and continue to attract the summer crowds. The Friends of American Art is a perennial favorite and the etchings in the print rooms are a finely selected group of master workers and men of talent. Nor should the loan collections go unmentioned for they are still on view and in the same galleries where they have been all summer.

Two unusual exhibits are hinted at for September, prior to the opening of the season artistic, but more of that when September approaches.

Those of us who have enjoyed the Pennell etchings—and who that knows them has not?—will be glad to learn that the Pennells are coming to Philadelphia to live permanently. It was long, long ago that Mr. and Mrs. Pennell took a bicycle trip over the Alps, and as they went they wrote and drew their merry adventures. After that they settled in England and Mr. Pennell became known in two countries. He ranks among the finest painter etchers in the world.

The National Arts club of New York is a spirited spot these days and all manner of new and interesting adventures artistic are under way within its portals. Just now it is placing on sale some patriotic "service together" stamps, done in color by Eugene F. Savage. The idea of the design embodies the wish of President Wilson that farmer and soldier should work side by side, in common service and good to the country. The National Arts club has two purposes in the promulgation of these stamps. One is the arousing of interest in the farm products of the country and the other the establishment of a fund, through the sale of these seal stamps, for the assistance of art workers throughout the country.

At practically all of the state and county fairs during August, September, and October there will be attractive displays of recruiting posters to stimulate enlistment in the navy. The county fair is a national institution and an appeal through its medium will naturally reach a vast number of people. It is said that the young men of the country have responded most quickly to the call of the navy and it is intended that they shall be reached easily and effectively through this channel.

"The Star of Hope," an artistic poster by John J. Goossens, has been presented to the Chicago Red Cross by the artist. Mr. Goossens studied under De Vrienft of the Royal academy of Antwerp, Belgium, and he is a member of the Art Students' league. He is living in Chicago.

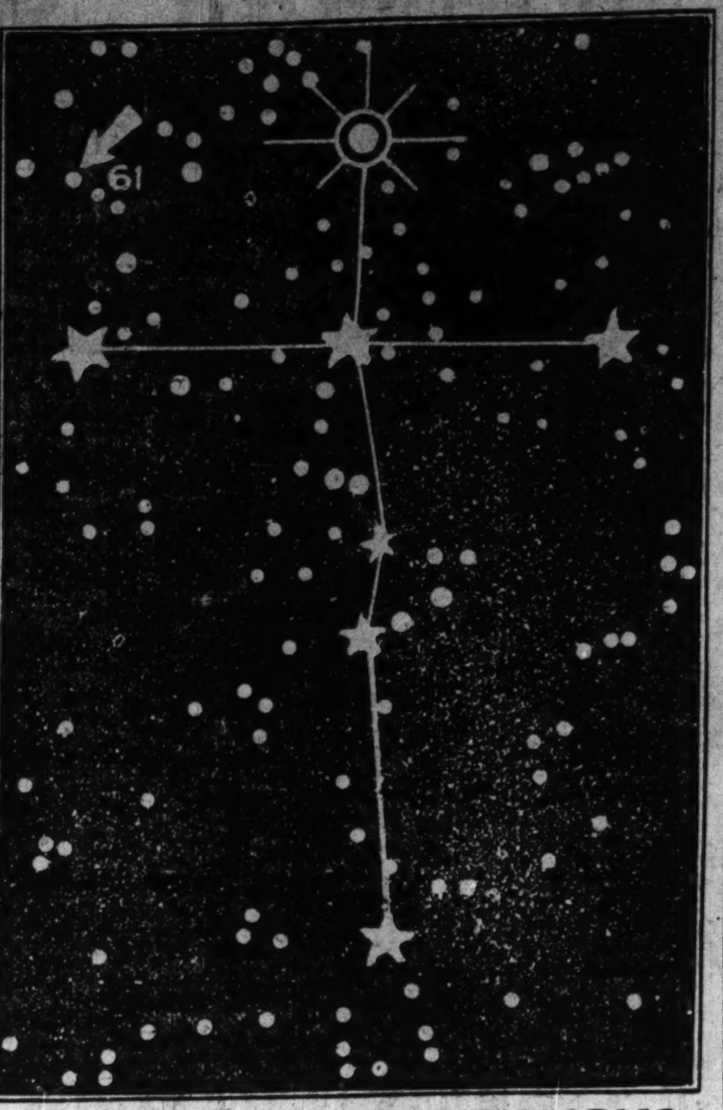
ASTRONOMY



DENAB AT THE HEAD OF THE CROSS
Observed AUG. 17, 1917 Drawn by S. F. Maxwell

DENEB AND NORTHERN CROSS.

THE three great stars of summer are Vega, Denab, and Altair. Denab is found in the head of the Northern Cross, in the densest part of the Milky Way. Denab is the Arabic word for "a tail." The Northern Cross, with some nearby stars, makes up the constellation of Cygnus, the Swan, with Denab at the tip of the tail.

The Milky Way is bright in the region of Cygnus. It encircles the sky like a belt, in reality as well as in appearance, and so vast is its diameter that there are no figures which can adequately measure it. The earth, together with the solar system, is situated a little to one side, which causes the region of Cygnus to appear brightest.

In the neighborhood of Denab there are numerous starless areas in the Milky Way, like holes pointing out into the black interstellar space beyond. There are many reasons, however, for believing that these "coal sacks" are not holes through the Milky Way, but rather immense swarms of dark suns in front of it, which obscure the light from the stars beyond. There are a great many such dark areas found in the Milky Way, but the coal sacks of the Northern Cross are the largest and most conspicuous of all.

For many centuries to measure the distances of the stars was considered a goal which no mind could attain, a magnitude beyond the grasp of human capabilities. Time after time the keenest men, with the best instruments and most exact methods, had tried and failed. When the final triumph came and the first stellar distance was found, the star was not some fiery orb of the firmament, but an insignificant sixth magnitude star not far from Denab, which had only its number, 61 Cygni, for a name.

Sixty-one Cygni is, like many other suns, a double star. Each of the components is about half as large as our sun, and each of the pair resembles it in many ways. It takes light nine and one-half years to travel from 61 Cygni to the earth. This is considered a short time, as there are only two others, Sirius and Alpha Centauri, which are nearer.

Mitchell and Mitch:

"Remember, there's one lady at this party that I especially want you to meet. She's got all kinds of money."

"Dat don't do me no good."

"Ain't you ambitious to die rich?"

"I ain't ambitious to die under any cukumstances."

"But this lady is anxious to meet you."

"What's der matter with her?"

"Why, there's nothing the matter with her; she's one of the 400."

"What's her name?"

"Heintz."

"She ain't one of the 400."

"What is she, then?"

"One of the fifty-seven."

"Now, don't start kidding, Payton; it's time we were starting for the party."

"You say dis lady wants to meet me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she ask for me by name?"

"Well, not exactly; in fact, she doesn't even know your name."

"Well, then, how do you know she wants to meet me?"

"Because she said to me not an hour ago, 'Mr. Mitchell, I want you to look all over town and bring back with you the homeliest man you can find.'"

"Say, are you trying to make a monkey out of me?"

"No, indeed; you look funnier than a monkey."

"I want you to understand dat mah faddah considers me de bes' lookin' of all his sons."

"Indeed, and how many sons has your father got?"

"As many as he can count on the fingers of his two hands."

"O, ten sons!"

"No, sah—seven sons."

"But didn't you just tell me he's got as many sons as he can count on the fingers of his two hands."

"Yas, sah; but he's got three fingers missing."

"Well, you're not such a big fool as you look."

"O, thank you for them kind words."

"No; you're a bigger one. But we've got no time to lose, so let's start for the party at once."

Save Money and Be Patriotic in Running the Car

By High Speed.

THIS is war time, and war time means economy time. American motor car owners have been to an extent spoiled in past times by the comparative cheapness of commodities entering into the manufacture and operation of their vehicles. When products are cheap, the temptation to waste is almost irresistible, and we are essentially a nation of wasters anyway. Today, however, prices of most motoring necessities are rising and there is real need for practicing economy.

The large majority of motor car owners are ignorant of the ways and means of accomplishing any appreciable saving in the operation of their cars. The principal points in which worthwhile savings may be affected are in fuel and oil consumption, tire wear, and general wear and tear.

The first item to consider is fuel, and the car owner should not scorn the small savings in this connection, for in their aggregate they make a formidable total. To begin with, every owner should reduce the idling periods of his engine to the smallest possible minimum; he should stop every smallest gasoline leak and should have the carburetor adjusted so that it consumes the smallest quantity of fuel consistent with efficient running. Attention to these three details of operation and adjustment will save many gallons of gasoline per annum for each motorist who heeds the warning.

Next it is essential to reduce to its minimum the friction in the mechanism and this must be accomplished by proper lubrication. Freedom from carbon in the cylinders promotes fuel economy. Efficient functioning of the ignition system is a vitality important factor in any attempt to obtain economy of fuel consumption.

To obtain maximum ignition efficiency the owner must pay strict attention to the battery, wiring, spark plugs, and other units of the ignition system. If the spark is not correctly timed or lacks life, the fuel vapor in the combustion chamber will be but partly fired or will explode at a time when some of its force will be wasted.

Further, there must be no leaks in the engine itself, as distinct from the fuel system. Valve leakage is one of the commonest causes of lost power, which in the final analysis means excessive gasoline consumption, since it will require additional fuel expenditure to make up for the waste. The valves must be kept accurately seating all the time, because a small leak here will cause a large waste of fuel.

In the interior of the engine a great deal of unnoticed waste will result from piston rings that are too loose. When this condition develops a quantity of the fuel forces its way down past the rings into the reservoir and is, of course, wasted. The owner who has reason to suspect this condition should try fitting some of the leak-proof piston rings of patent construction, designed to correct just this fault.

This same condition is sometimes produced by the use of a lubricating oil of too light a body. The oil is thinned by the heat present under running conditions and lacks the viscocity to make a perfectly gas tight seal at the piston. As a result the fuel forces its way past the rings and into the reservoir.

Then there is the possibility of utilizing heavier and cheaper grades of fuel. Most modern cars will run on the cheapest grade of gasoline and even on a mixture of gasoline and kerosene, in the proportion of one gallon of the latter to three of the former. Obviously certain adjustments in the carburetor will have to be made, perhaps by the service station, but the saving in cost between gasoline at 25 to 35 cents and kerosene at 13 cents per gallon justifies the trouble.

If the owner desires to try out one of the kerosene carburetors or other devices for using this heavier fuel, he should get one that is sold on approval or with a money back guarantee, so that he may find out if the apparatus works satisfactorily on his vehicle before he makes the final purchase.

Fuel waste in the form of power loss is not confined to the power plant. For instance, much power may be wasted at the clutch, if this part is not functioning properly. If the clutch slips excessively, potential power is being wasted. The cone clutch with leather facing may need a treatment with fuller's earth or neatsfoot oil or perhaps the spring tension requires adjustment. In the dry disk clutch there may be gum on the plates or the springs may need attention. n oil disk clutch may have burned out one of its plates, the spring pressure may be wrong or the lubricant diluted with kerosene.

Wherever there is a moving surface not thoroughly lubricated, there is wasted power. Lubrication must be copious, complete and correct if the full power producing value of the fuel consumed is to be obtained.

Then there is the question of tires. It is an unquestioned fact that power is wasted when the tires are operated under-inflated, so that an excessive area of the tread comes in contact with the ground. Incidentally, while this practice, all too common among American tourists, wastes fuel, it also injures the tires, which is an expensive form of waste. It is better to run the tires at a few pounds over the prescribed inflation point than a few pounds under it.

In addition every owner ought to have the alignment of his front wheels checked up once in four months. When the tires are running out of alignment a scraping movement is set up, which not only wastes power, but wears out the tires very quickly. The owner who cares anything for his pocketbook probably needs no hint as to the desirability of plugging all cuts in the rubber tread as soon as they appear.

If the suggestions made above are conscientiously heeded, the result will be an appreciable saving for the individual owners of motor vehicles and an enormous saving in our national resources of motoring necessities, which are part of our equipment for waging the present war. The man who operates his car with real economy is not only benefiting himself, but is performing a patriotic duty at a crisis in his country's history.

The MOTORIST IN COURT

Here's the piece de resistance of the Timken magazine's current issue —a special number designed for dealers in cars that have Timken bearings, but containing a wealth of practical motor car information by manufacturing executives that might well have wider circulation. Also, as you'll note, a spice of humor.

It has just been decided in New Jersey that if an employer buys an automobile and delivers it to a man who is working for him on the understanding that he shall retain title until it is paid for, it is a new car and not a second hand car when the employe gets title to it. A warranty in an application for an insurance policy stating that the car was new was therefore true and the insurance company would not be allowed to deny liability under a policy of theft insurance on the ground of breach of warranty.

A decision of the New York city traffic court, interpreting willful obstruction of traffic as leaving an automobile standing in the street "for any appreciable length of time, no matter for what purpose," has been reversed by a higher tribunal. The defendant, a chauffeur, had stopped his car in the sereet to put oil around the flywheel and was arrested, a policeman told him, for violating the law by garage work on the street. When he was arraigned he found the charge against him was willfully obstructing traffic.

Despite the fact that it was shown the street was sixty feet wide and only "five or six" cars passed while the machine was being oiled, the chauffeur was found guilty and fined $1, the magistrate declaring:

Although you may own your own home you would not have the right to allow your automobile to stand out in front of your house for any appreciable length of time, no matter for what purpose. If you do that you are obstructing the streets of the city, and even though you own the house the minute you step outside of the doorway and get out into the air then you get where everybody else has as much right as you have, and you have no right over and above anybody else.

This, in New York at least, would have established the amazing principle that no automobile owner may permit his car to remain for any length of time at all in front of his home. Also, it would apear to make illegal stopping in any street for needed repair work, even if to continue with a car so running might ruin it.

The chauffeur's employer spent several hundred dollars fighting the case, and the decision was reversed.

Several decisions have been recorded recently to the effect that, notwithstanding the rule that a motorist is supposed to keep to the right of the center of the road, he is justified in violating this—in fact, it is his duty to do so—and pass to the left if that is the only apparent way to avoid an accident.

Another act that the courts have decided is negligent is the starting up of a standing vehicle suddenly without paying any attention to other vehicles which are passing.

Plenty of "Gas" If Rightly Used, Says U.S. Expert

1—Do not allow your gasoline engine to run idle.

2—Use kerosene, not gasoline, for cleaning purposes in the garage.

3—See to it that the carburetor does not leak. Form the habit of shutting off the gasoline at the tank.

COINCIDENT with the expansion of the army's program for the use of airplanes, trucks, and so on, Van H. Manning, director of the bureau of mines of the department of the interior, has issued the above suggestions to motorists, which in view of action taken by foreign countries toward motoring, and previous discussion of the gasoline situation in this country, may well be heeded.

It is estimated that the United States army will need 350,000,000 gallons of gasoline for airplanes, trucks, tractors, and other machines. To obtain a part at least of this amount it has been suggested that the man who rides for pleasure should cut down his mileage, since half the gasoline used in this country, 1,250,000,000 gallons, is used in pleasure riding. By economical use enough gasoline can be saved to supply not only the United States but its allies for war purposes.

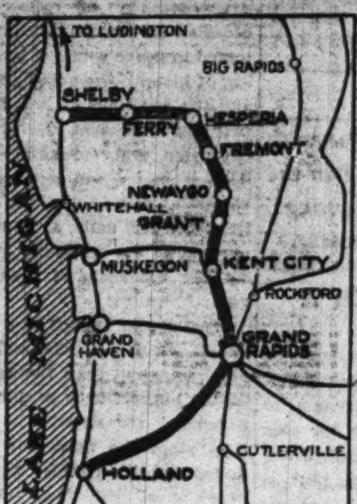
Motor car owners are not advised to lay up their cars but to use them either for trade or pleasure purposes thoughtfully and judiciously. If this advice is followed, there will be no undue scarcity, says Mr. Manning, for the United States possesses an abundant supply for ordinary purposes.

How are the roads?



The Grant highway, which runs through Elgin, Marengo, Belvidere, and Rockford, is in bad shape near Marengo, where a long section of dirt road is being graded. Tourists who have passed over the road recently report it so soft in several places that a car sinks down to the crank case. Just now Rockford is a popular objective point on account of the military training camp that is located there, and automobile travel that way is particularly heavy. E. O. Andrews, postmaster at Belvidere, reports an alternate route by which the bad stretches may be avoided.

This follows the Twelfth street road to Wheaton. From Wheaton the route turns west from the depot and goes to West Chicago and St. Charles. From St. Charles it runs straight out for one and one-half miles, caution being used to avoid the left hand fork. Then the signboards are followed through Lily Lake, Virgil, and Richardson to Sycamore. At the courthouse a turn is made to the right, which takes the tourist through Genoa. Leaving Genoa, the route turns left through the town, care being used to avoid all left forks, and to take the first right fork to Belvidere. At this point the Grant highway may be picked up and followed to Rockford. Mr. Andrews advises the State street road out of Belvidere in case the tour is made in dry weather. If the trip is made in wet weather, the "middle road," leaving Belvidere via Locust street, should be used.

From Michigan comes word that the bad section of the West Michigan pike north of Holland may be avoided by following a recently devised detour. "I made the trip up via Muskegon and found about twenty miles of sand between Muskegon and Shelby," writes an experienced tourist. "This was almost impassable, but for future information you might publish the fact that a very good detour may be followed so as to cut out most of the bad part. This route branches off from Holland to Grand Rapids and runs thence through Kent, Grant, Newayo, Fremont, Hesperia, Ferry and Shelby. There is absolutely no sand on this route, which is all good gravel.

"This road has only been open for about one month and is unknown to most motorists traveling north. The main route from Ludington to Scottsville includes eight miles of wornout macadam, which makes very bad traveling. This may be avoided by following a good gravel road all the way. Directions may be had by making inquiry at the garages in Pentwater and Scottsville."

The route between Chicago and Michigan City has been badly cut up by the thousands of motor trucks and automobiles that constantly travel over the road. Just now driving over it is anything but comfortable. The roughest section may be partially avoided by going from East Gary through McCool and Crocker to Michigan City.

Movies by Motor.

In its provisions for recreation for the troops in training camps the Young Men's Christian association has equipped two motor truck moving picture theaters to reach troops in out of the way places in the southern department. Moving picture machines are mounted on the trucks and portable screens will be erected wherever necessary on the week's run which each truck will make to cover its route.

In the thirty-two permanent camps arrangements are being made for indoor and outdoor moving pictures, with machines arranged so that the pictures may be thrown on screens in the front or through a window to an open air screen outside.

About three hundred and fifty camps and posts will be covered by the program, 1,126 weekly programs will be given, and the plan will necessitate the use of 8,000,000 feet of film per week, enough to reach from somewhere in France to a point on the Izonzo, via Copenhagen, and half way back again—2,228 hours of solid entertainment.

WHY THE COLE

NINE years ago I started out to land the Nabob of them all—the ultra-high-grade motor car of America. So many of you wanted a car that would make you Master of the Highways. I knew your needs and felt it up to me to bring home just what you wanted—so I went down to Indianapolis and brought back Cole—the successful, progressive car—price range today $1795 to $2495. Prices advance $200 Sept. 1st.

COLE—Present Prices

Seven-Passenger Cole Eight Touring Car	$1795
Cole Eight Tuxedo Roadster	$1795
Four-Door Tour-Sedan, models ranging from $2395 to	$2595
Four-Passenger Cole-Springfield Tour-Coupe	$2295

Prices F. O. B. Factory, Indianapolis.
All Models Advance $200 September 1.

WHY THE BRISCOE

Seventeen days ago I made another ten-strike. For months and months you have called for a low-priced car, and I knew it had to be a hummer—a Go-get-there. For many moons I combed the country over to find the one-best-bet, to fit folks with the moderate bank-roll. I tracked it to its lair up in Jackson, Michigan—and between you and me and the low cost-of-speeding—its the Briscoe—price $725. This remarkable car spells sure satisfaction to the man who doesn't want to spend $2000. Its trim, fleet appearance and its point after point of mechanical superiority make it the most wanted car in its class.

BRISCOE

Five-Passenger Touring Car	$725
Four-Passenger Roadster	$725
Two-Passenger Runabout	$725
Five-Passenger Coachaire	$850
Delivery Car (Canopy Top Body)	$725
Delivery Car (Panel Body)	$750

Prices F. O. B. Factory, Jackson, Mich.

WHY THE NELSON

I needed one more car to complete the price range—$725 to $1795. You know and I know that about seventy out of every hundred automobiles sold today are small cars. Thousands more small cars would be sold if they were built with a little more regard to distinctive lines and had a few more of the hand-tailored luxuries that go with the higher-priced, big cars—and yet are economical in cost of operation.

At last I have filled my price-range and completed the triumphant trio—the trouncing triplets. I took on the Nelson of Detroit, which bridges the trench between the Cole price and the Briscoe price. The Nelson is here to fill exactly this gap—its price-range is $1200 to $1800. The present high altitude prices of gasoline and oil are unanswerable arguments in favor of the Nelson—"The Car with the Aeroplane Motor." Its makers authorize me to absolutely guarantee for the Speedster 25 miles on a gallon of gas and 250 miles to a quart of oil. From 12,000 to 15,000 miles on your tires will surprise and delight you, made possible by the extreme light weight of the Nelson, also by the extraordinarily even distribution of this light weight.

Some of you need the Nelson—the durable demon among speedsters. It's a young man's car that makes an old man young. It floats along like a zephyr or zips past the scenery at tornado speed—accordin' to YOUR ideas. It's a hand-tooled, deckle-edge, vest-pocket, de luxe edition, personally autographed by its maker, E. A. Nelson, one of America's foremost engineers, designer and engineer of the Hup "20" and "32." One look will make you want the Nelson—A CUSTOM BUILT AUTOMOBILE. Dip deeply into its vitals and you will buy a Nelson.

NELSON

Speedster (Two-Seater)—Racing equipped, $1200; Luxury equipped, $1350.
Sport Model (Four-Seater)—Fully equipped, $1400.
Sedan (Four-Seater)—Fully equipped, $1800.
F. O. B. Factory Detroit.

AND NOW

let's get back to my original inquiry: Have I made good? Have I lived up to my obligations? What's your verdict, citizen motorists? Thank you—I knew it—the "ayes" have it The "I-don't-knows" are urged to drop in any time—today if convenient—and convince themselves.

I will stack the Cole, the Briscoe and the Nelson against "anywhere-near-the-price" cars—supremely confident in their ability to OUTCLASS and OUTLAST their rivals. Whatever your individual preference—one of these will meet your most exacting wish. Come in and be introduced to the Triumphant Trio. You will be welcome and courteously treated, without any attempt at high-pressure salesmanship. We will cheerfully give you demonstrations and defer to your judgment, whether you buy one or all, or none of them.

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

"MUST WE BE BRAYED IN A MORTAR?"

In a powerful appeal to the American people, published through the Metropolitan magazine of August, Col. Roosevelt begs his countrymen to learn the lesson of our unpreparedness for this war. "Must we be brayed in a mortar before our folly depart from us?" he asks in a biblical phrase.

To The Tribune it has often seemed that we must be brayed in the mortar of war before the folly of our defenselessness departs from us. For years The Tribune has begged the nation to consider this criminal public indifference to our own security and the welfare of our posterity. We have despaired often and there has been reason for despair. We know from history how nations have shut their eyes to plainly approaching events and their ears to unmistakable warnings. From the unhappy Trojan priestess, who prophesied in vain the fall of her city, down to the folly of our own entrance into this war unprepared, it has seemed that nations at times are blind and deaf.

Readers of these editorials have wearied, doubtless often, of our insistence, but they will at least now bear out our claim of having pointed out truly the trend of current events and preached faithfully a need which has been demonstrated by fact. For nearly ten years The Tribune has carried on this propaganda against the pacifism which was everywhere assuring complacent citizens that war was obsolete, and especially that such a catastrophe as that into which we have now been drawn was not "humanly possible." But we are an optimistic people and pacifism asked for no sacrifices. The sacrifices are here now, but it was easier to follow the pacifists in those days. The voices of The Tribune and of the very few other newspapers and public men who discerned our danger were as the voice of Cassandra. Even when revolution and disorder began in Mexico, even when one Japanese crisis after another was avoided by dubious means, public indifference and government inaction continued.

A change began with the appalling tragedy of the European war, but the change was grossly inadequate to the lesson. Americans still clung to their fallacious theory of isolation. America never has been isolated from Europe, never insulated from the influence of the forces which drive the world. But it was our delusion that we could live alone, and, while we were appalled by the cruel folly and vast destruction thrust before our eyes, we did not think we could be touched by it. When the submarine controversy began a larger number began to wake up. Early in the war The Tribune, first among American newspapers to see the full logic of our situation and to draw the most appropriate conclusion, called for the immediate adoption of universal military service. The swift current of events was carrying the nation steadily nearer the whirlpool. The press began to take up The Tribune's proposals. Leaders of public opinion like Col. Roosevelt were crystallizing conviction. Even congressmen took courage and spoke out. Societies were formed to work for defense. The most conspicuous man in the army, Gen. Leonard Wood, who had been one of the progressive men in the regular service, courageously undertook the work of public education, for which Mr. Wilson's administration has since punished him.

The administration, in fact, was throwing its full weight against moral or material preparation for the war, although war was one plain alternative of the diplomatic engagement it began to wage with Germany. It was saturated in an unconfessed pacifism. Its policy of gambling everything on the pacific outcome of its diplomacy is accountable only on this ground. Believing, apparently, that one can abolish a painful possibility by refusing to look at it—an American popular maxim—Mr. Wilson and his colleagues made no secret of their irritation at the rising demand for war preparation. But, having repeatedly addressed the dogs of war as good doggies, and finding that their disposition remained unchanged and their movement in our direction undeterred, Mr. Wilson suddenly changed his note and in a memorable tour went forth to tell the people that he could not tell what an hour might bring forth and that we were surrounded by the gravest perils.

Even then nothing important was done, and this great, alert, intelligent, rich, self-governing republic actually moved over the threshold of war without anything approximating preparation.

Now, that incredible folly we have committed before, yet never under conditions which strip us so completely naked of excuse. But do we realize this? Do we know even now the degree of our weakness and folly? It would seem that a nation of sane human beings must know it; but there are astonishing signs that plenty of Americans are untouched by the lesson. It seems incredible, yet we must believe that even the man charged by Mr. Wilson with the conduct of the war department is one of these blind men, unless the words quoted directly by Col. Roosevelt from the government bulletin of June 7 are not, as they are set forth, Mr. Baker's. Our own copy of this bulletin is not at hand, so we quote Col. Roosevelt's article, which has not yet been refuted to our knowledge. Mr. Baker, says Col. Roosevelt, after conceding that "There is difficulty . . . . disorder and confusion . . . in getting things started," adds: "But it is a happy confusion. I delight in the fact that when we entered this war we were not, like our adversary, ready for it, anxious for it, prepared for it and inviting it. Accustomed to peace, we were not ready."

For ourselves, an utterance like this from a man who, safe at home, is sending other men into battle is morally nauseating. But we are here considering the utterance merely as evidence that at least one of Mr. Wilson's chief counselors, and the man in charge of our department of war at that, is still wandering in a fog of sentimental pacifism and holding to the fallacies which under his own eyes, in his own administration, have been once more demonstrated as vicious frauds. We realize, of course, that this must be a sore point with the present administration, which, for all its tall talk, must go down in history as having conducted this nation into the vortex of the world's war without lifting a finger to prepare it, morally or materially, for its terrible trial. But the least amends this statecraft can make us now is to refrain from covering its folly by the fallacies which are directly responsible for our sorry condition.

There is no occasion for happiness that this nation has been permitted and encouraged to approach and enter the world war with the bland irresponsibility of callow youth. There is no occasion for happiness that because we are accustomed to peace we have ignored the common teaching of history, the admonitions of our greatest men and the warnings of imminent events, and refused to prepare against the eventuality of war. Our confusion and unreadiness are occasion for the deepest shame and repentance. If we are at war, we are at war to win, yet the condition which Mr. Baker glibly calls a happy condition postpones our aid to our allies for months, and were it not for the barricade of their breasts would be our ruin.

Must we be brayed in a mortar before our folly depart from us? If no less a member of the administration than the secretary of war can still fuddle himself with pacific cant such as that preparedness for defense is an invitation to war, it is plain the fight for an intelligent defense policy for this country is not yet won. Common sense must still meet the emotional buncombe which has fed our folly in the past and must organize its demand that when this war is over we shall not return to our criminal negligence of the past.

The present drastic war measures are all temporary. They pass out of existence with this war. We ought now, while our lesson is fresh, to establish a proper permanent system of national defense. The Chamberlain bill for universal military training or a stronger bill should be enacted at this session, to take effect when our war measures end, or before if necessary. No other system save that which establishes and maintains in times of peace a compulsory citizen training for war can provide this republic with a reliable democratic defense.

SHOW YOUR FEELINGS.

A woman among the spectators at the parade of the new army pulled out her hatpins and whenever a flag went by whipped off her hat.

Officers and sometimes future privates wore flowers. One had a long stemmed pink rose across his arm.

Now and then there was singing—"Tipperary" and "Marching Through Georgia"—and one detachment whistled in chorus while marching.

These are little things and at the same time big. In and of itself, it was a small matter that a woman pulled off her hat, but what a rebuke to the men who kept theirs on! Flowers are trivial, in and of themselves, but they express sentiment, and it is a fine sight when officers wear them in public without shame. In and of themselves, singing and whistling are unimportant; as outward signs of good comradeship and a jovial army spirit they are not only important, they are essential.

All such demonstrations make for morale. Let us see that they continue and increase. Demonstrative outbursts on the part of the troops hearten them for sacrifice and hardship. Demonstrative outbursts on the part of civilians have the same effect. Cheers, hand-clapping, flowers, and salutes to the flag all count. They are of vital importance, especially in such a war as this.

To the average private it seems a strangely impersonal war. An impersonal force, the government, declared it. An impersonal force, the draft, made the army. An impersonal force—namely, chance—decides who must go. It is apparently as if a huge, unseen mechanism were at work, blindly, coldly, and without soul.

Whereas in reality no relationship on earth is so personal as that between a soldier and his country. Our boys in France will find that out. Once there, they will cease to think of America as a spot on the map, or as an institution even, or as an abstraction symbolized by a flag on a pole. They will think of America as people, as 100,000,000 human beings, their countrymen.

Do we want an American soldier to say of us by and by, "Those people sent us out here to risk death for Old Glory, and not one man in ten of them would so much as salute it"?

Do we want him to say, "I may perish here, and no one greatly cares. When we paraded hardly anybody cared enough for us to cheer"?

Do we want him to say, "We're fighting their battles, and they're living in comfort and forgetting what we have to endure"?

Little though they may realize it, civilians are making a deep and lasting impression on the new army. They are planting in it ideas that will stick. A little heedlessness, a little restraint, a little self-conscious reluctance to show their real feelings, and, sure as fate, they will plant the wrong ideas. Let us not misrepresent ourselves. Let us show our real feelings. Let us convince the new army that we care. Let us make that plain, and rub it in, and put it there to stay. It will cost us some momentary embarrassment, no doubt. We shall have to overcome our national instinct for behaving like wooden images. But are we sure that wooden images rank as the noblest products of our civilization? On the contrary, there lurks in all of us a secret desire to be human, and now is the time to indulge that desire.

Editorial of the Day

THE ENEMY TONGUE.

[From the New York Sun.]

Promptly with the declaration of war in Europe every belligerent nation prohibited the publication of newspapers in enemy tongues. And more. The use of any foreign language over the telephone was prohibited. In France, though England was her ally, no English could be used in phone communications. Berlin was even more restrictive. When the United States declared war our legation in that city was immediately deprived of the use of its telephone altogether.

In our more easy going country German plotters may telephone in their own tongue if they will from New York to San Francisco. Staats-Zeitungs, Freie Pressen, Abendposts, and the like all over the land may fill their columns with bitter denunciations of our allies, impassioned eulogies of the kaiser and his associates, and thinly veiled criticisms of our own motives in entering the war. They not only may do it, but they do. The general tone of the German press is one of thinly veiled hostility to the war and cautiously expressed desire that we may be beaten in it.

HIGH COST OF VILLA.

A statistician figured that it has cost $14,000 to kill a man in the European war. Yes, but it cost us $100,000,000 to kill Villa, and he isn't dead yet.—Indianapolis Star.

Lord Arran, whose name is pronounced as if written "Arn" and who has just been sworn in as a member of the privy council of Ireland, is one of the personal friends of King George. One of his sisters, the Dowager Countess of Airlie, has long been a lady in waiting to Queen Mary, as has also another sister, the Marchioness of Salisbury. Still another sister is the wife of Viscount Hambleden, head of the great publishing and bookselling firm of W. H. Smith & Son, which enjoys a virtual monopoly of the sale of books, periodicals, and newspapers in all the railroad stations of the United Kingdom.

Lord Arran is a soldier by profession, having served as an officer of the Royal Horse guards in the South African war of seventeen years ago, while previously he put in several years in the Egyptian cavalry under Kitchener. He is, or rather was, fair haired, is sunny tempered, and after emerging as a victor with flying colors from a breach of promise suit brought against him by a Mrs. Gore, married a Dutch heiress, the only daughter of Baron Huyssen van Kathendyke of The Hague, by whom he has two boys.

Strictly speaking, there are two Earls of Arran, the other one being also the Duke of Hamilton. The duke's Earldom of Arran, however, is a Scottish honor, and he takes his title from the Island of Arran, off the west coast of Scotland, the ownership of which was bequeathed by the late Duke of Hamilton to his only child, Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, now married to Lord Graham, next heir to the Dukedom of Montrose.

Lord Arran's earldom, on the other hand, is an Irish honor, and he takes his title from the Irish Island of Arran, off the coast of County Galway. Nor has he any connection whatsoever with that Scottish Earl of Arran, who was recognized by Scotland's parliament in March, 1543, as next heir to the Scottish crown, after Mary Queen of Scots. The honors of that Earl of Arran, who distinguished himself by his altogether remarkable openness of mind in the matter of religion, turning Protestant, then Catholic, then Protestant, and then Catholic again, all within the space of ten months, are included among the peerages of Scotland's premier duke.

The first Irish Earldom of Arran was created by Charles II. in favor of Lord Richard Butler, a younger son of the Duke of Ormonde, who had purchased the Island of Arran, off the coast of Galway, from Erasmus Smith. This earldom came to an end with the death of its grantee, but was revived in favor of his nephew, Charles Butler, who later became Jacobite Duke of Arran, and who was also de jure Duke of Ormonde. When he died without issue all his honors became extinct.

In 1762, shortly after the accession of George III., a new Irish Earldom of Arran was created, this time in favor of a baronet of the name of Sir Arthur Gore, the founder of whose family was Gerard Gore, an alderman of the city of London at the close of the sixteenth century.

His second son, Sir John Gore, was lord mayor of London under James I. in 1624, and is ancestor of the present Earl of Temple; while another, Sir Paul Gore, went to Ireland as captain of cavalry under Queen Elizabeth, settled there, obtained large grants of land in County Mayo, building for himself a great manor house, still known to this day as Castle Gore, and was created a baronet of Ireland by James I. It was the third baronet of this line, who after wedding the daughter and heiress of Richard Saunders of Saunders court, was created, first of all Baron Saunders, then Viscount Sudley of Castle Gore, and, lastly, Earl of Arran.

The names of the Italian Duke and Duchess of Sermoneta are so familiar to people in the United States that there are many in America who will be interested to learn that they have just celebrated their golden wedding in the grand old Caetani palace at Rome, in the Via Botteghe Scure, which dates from the fifteenth century. It is there that all the Caetanis make their home when in the Eternal City, in patriarchal unity, taking their meals together, living as one big family, with the children and grandchildren, just as described by Marion Crawford in his series of Roman novels, in more than one of which, notably the "Saracinesca" series, both the late and the present duke are most transparently portrayed.

One of the duke's sons, Don Roffredo, Prince of Bassiano, some time ago Italian minister plenipotentiary at Teheran, has an American wife in the person of the former Miss Margaret Chapin, daughter of the late Lindley Hoffman Chapin of New York; another, Giovannella, is Italian envoy at Madrid; while another son, Col. Don Gelasio Caetani, spent a number of years in the western states, especially in Montana, learning mining engineering in the most practical fashion, and working his way through the various branches of his profession, from the bottom up, without any of his fellow miners being aware of his rank or of his identity. He afterwards went through a sort of post-graduate course of mining engineering at Columbia university in New York; and since the beginning of the war has turned his knowledge and experience thus gained to good account, having to his credit the destruction by a single blast of the top of the Col dei Lana, together with the Austrian fortress and heavy batteries by which it was surmounted.

He managed to bore a gallery nearly 2,000 feet long into the mountain, under the positions of the Austrians, without attracting their attention. The gallery was then stocked with high explosives, and at a given moment the electric spark was applied and the entire top of the 9,000 feet high mountain was blown off, along with the Austrian stronghold, which had until then blocked the Italian invasion of the Upper Trentino by way of the Cordevole pass.

As for the Duke of Sermoneta, he has on several occasions held office as minister of foreign affairs and is the leading archeologist of Italy. He is head of a family of the old Roman patriciate which figures prominently in the Italian history of the last thousand years, and which has been in uninterrupted possession of its extensive estates since the year A. D. 981. It has furnished, along with a score of cardinals, several popes to the church, the first of the pontiffs being Gelasius, who abdicated in 1118; the second being Boniface VIII., whom Dante damned with particular emphasis in one of the circles of his "Inferno."

The Duchess of Sermoneta is an Englishwoman, a once famous beauty in London society and member of that house of Wilbraham of which the Earl of Lathom is the chief. She was at one time celebrated as the finest equestrienne in Italy, a country in which she has been very active as the founder and moving spirit of the Italian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

How to Keep Well.
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

SOME SUGGESTIONS ON WAR HYGIENE.

From an article on sanitation in the trenches by Col. McColloch of the United States army we learn that a series of pocket handbooks on military medicine are shortly to be published under the auspices of the advisory council of national defense. The work on sanitation for medical officers has been prepared by Maj. Vedder of the army and will be issued soon, if it is not out by the time this article appears. Other books available are: Lelan's "Sanitation in War," second edition; Harvard's "Military Hygiene," and Mason's "Handbook."

The article by Col. McColloch gives approved methods of disposal of camp waste under the various circumstances of 1917 warfare. The universal use of typhoid vaccination makes the disposal of camp wastes far less important than in former years. Yet it is important if for no other reason than the establishment of sanitary standards.

I have been in many camps this year and I served as a military sanitary officer for several years, and I am struck with the fact that all the camps I have seen this year are thoroughly shipshape. Every soldier, from general to rookie, is alive to the importance of a clean camp.

For the sterilization of water, chemical sterilization is now generally preferred to heating. Carrel and Dunham have just devised a new sterilizing chemical for water that is more convenient to use and just as satisfactory otherwise as hypochlorite.

McColloch does not discuss the soldier's ration. He thinks the medical officer should assure himself by inquiries and tests where necessary that the cooks are not disease carriers. He thinks it advisable to screen the food against flies rather than to try to screen the entire kitchen. For this purpose he uses muslin a good deal.

Grease in kitchen water is troublesome. To get rid of it a grease trap made as follows has been devised:

A box is filled to a depth of several inches with clean sand. A board dividing this box into two compartments is set so that its lower edge is about two inches below the surface of the sand. The greasy water is poured into one compartment. It filters through and rises in the other compartment freed from most of its grease. This is thrown into a disposal place made as follows:

A hole is dug four feet square and four feet deep. The earth in the bottom of this hole is loosened. The hole is then filled with stones to a point near the surface. A layer of brush, grass, or sacking is laid over the stones and this is covered with dirt.

Empey in "Over the Top" gives a laughable description of the annoyance given the soldier by lice and the trouble he takes to rid himself of them. In Serbia lice, through typhus fever spread by them, annihilated one army and decimated other ranks. An essential is proper bathing facilities.

On the western front, where the men are crowded and water facilities are few, the British have devised methods of treating the bath water. They use N. C. I. dusting powder, consisting of 96 parts naphthalene, 2 parts creosote, and 2 parts iodoform. They rub the following ointment into the inner seams of clothing, using about one ounce a week for the purpose: Crude mineral oil, 9 parts; soft soap, 5 parts; water, 1 part. The body from the neck down is anointed with this paste.

Undergarments are sometimes dipped in 10 per cent of naphthalene and sulphur or in benzine or gasoline. In the field garments are freed from lice by the use of a Thresh disinfector or some simpler device constructed on the same principle.

Accurate diagnosis is quite as necessary with troops as with a civilian population. The British have field laboratories. Among other services performed by these laboratories is the examination of drinking water. This remarkable statement appears in Col. McColloch's article:

"Before billeting troops in new areas or occupying ground recently captured from the enemy they send out traveling laboratories in advance of the troops. These have been found necessary, especially on account of the German practice of poisoning the wells."

PARATYPHOID FEVER—McColloch says: "The place of typhoid as a military problem has been taken for us by paratyphoid fever. While paratyphoid is important it is not now and it never will be as important as typhoid was. It can be prevented by inoculation with paratyphoid vaccine. Our troops are prepared for overseas duty by inoculation with this vaccine. Its use may be extended to troops in camp on this side, especially as paratyphoid was a source of a good deal of trouble this year. Great care of the food and especially of the meats is a safeguard against this disease."

DYSENTERIES—McColloch says: "If intestinal diseases (diarrheas and dysenteries) could be excluded army sanitation would be, to speak in the vernacular, almost a 'cinch.' It is worthy of note in this connection that raw vegetables seemed in the Philippines a potent means of the conveyance of dysentery and other intestinal diseases."

TETANUS OR LOCKJAW—It seems that medical science has demonstrated the ability to control another disease in this war. "It will suffice to say in this connection that a completely adequate solution of the tetanus problem has been found," he says. "All victims of wounds of whatever character, simple scratches included, are given at the earliest possible moment after the receipt of the wound a prophylactic subcutaneous injection of 500 units of tetanus antitoxin in 3 c. c. of horse serum."

This first injection is given at the field dressing station. A second similar injection is given the persons with severer wounds upon arrival at the base hospitals.

GAS GANGRENE—Recent reports indicate that an anti-toxin which is both a cure for and a prevention of gas gangrene has been found.

TRENCH FOOT—This is one of the troublesome conditions first made prominent by this war. The essentials of prevention are:

1. Drainage of the trenches, pumping the trenches, and covering the bottoms with brush.
2. Thorough rubbing of whale oil into the feet and legs.
3. Wearing of long rubber boots. Leather boots must be greased daily.

Boots and leggings must not constrict anywhere. Socks must be kept dry and changed daily.

4. Keeping the feet elevated while resting.

TRENCH FEVER—This is a new disease. It has proven annoying on the western front. McColloch suggests that delousing may control it. Experiments indicate that it may be spread by rats. If that be the case the trenches must be kept as free as possible from rats. Rats also spread plague, but there seems to be little danger to our troops from plague.

GAS POISONING—The liberation of gases was an inhuman contribution to warfare developed by the Germans. When they first made use of it it exterminated the men in the opposing trenches like rats in a hole. The use of gas masks wholly does away with the dangers of gas poisoning except to the wounded on the field of battle. These are not able to protect themselves against it.

CEREBRO-SPINAL FEVER — This disease is commonly known as barracks fever. It will prove dangerous to our troops in training and living in barracks. It is not a serious menace to troops in the field. The large rooms now used and at present being built for the housing of troops in training will serve to spread the disease when cold weather comes.

The remedy for this condition is to keep the men in tents or in small rooms, to see to it that the rooms are well ventilated, to see to it that the men have plenty of warm clothes and warm bedding, to search diligently for carriers by bacteriological examinations of noses, to disinfect the noses of all carriers. McColloch advises that throats be swabbed with 3 per cent iodine in glycerin. The navy is making use of a much more efficient method.

MALARIA—Our troops on the western border should suffer but little from malaria. Should we by any chance send troops into the Balkans or into Mesopotamia the menace of malaria would be considerable. McColloch recommends the use of the mosquito bar (at least eighteen meshes to the inch) over the head at night in camps subject to malarial infection. Here is a good place to say that when one buys screening, and perhaps also mosquito bar, unless he watches he will be sold No. 12 mesh. This will not stop mosquitoes.

Where possible around camps in malarial sections all ponds and pools should be drained. If this cannot be done they should be oiled by using one ounce of kerosene to each sixteen square feet of surface. In hot weather a heavy oil will be better. Oiling should be done once a week.

McColloch says there will be little or no danger from cholera and plague. Our troop commanders, so many of whom have had experience in the Philippines, will know what steps to take to protect their men against these two diseases.

ON HAY FEVER.

A. E. C. writes: "Being a hay fever sufferer for the last twenty-five years, I desire to add a few practical suggestions to those you have already given, and by following them I feel that the hay fever sufferer can add to his comfort very materially.

"First. Avoid the sun and dust. If you have to travel in buggy, auto, street or suburban cars with your handkerchief in your hand, hold your nose and close your eyes. This will prevent drafts of dust laden air from entering the sensitive nasal passages.

"Second. Avoid overeating, avoid rich soups, rich puddings, hard boiled eggs, fried foods of all kinds; in short, eat the simplest kind of foods, whole wheat bread, toast, crackers, fresh fish, raw oysters, and vegetables. Take two teaspoonfuls of rochelle salts in a glass of water each morning one hour before breakfast. Keep the bowels watery.

"Third. Avoid active work, keep the nervous system quiet, better remain at home. If necessary, take fifteen grain doses of bromide of soda three times daily.

"Fourth. Leave the nose alone during the attack. Avoid cocaine. It gives temporary relief but is a habit forming drug, and should be banished. Relief can be obtained by dissolving one dram of menthol in one ounce of chloroform; drop five drops on the palm of one hand, rub palms together, form a cone of the hands and inhale this, and it will give temporary relief. Bathe the head and face in cold water. Cloths wrung out of ice water and laid over eyes and nose give relief.

"When the paroxysms come frequent and with increasing intensity, I have found the cold bath of great value, remaining in the water until all congestion around nose and eyes subsides. Now gently dry the body, avoiding drafts. If the atmosphere is heavy, foggy, and damp, go into your cellar, or into the refrigerator of a large meat shop or packing house, but be sure to take your winter overcoat, overshoes, and cap with you, as the temperature in in those places is often thirty-four degrees and lower, but you get wonderful relief while there."

CONDITION CURES SELF.

An anxious mother writes: "My 6 weeks old baby has a hydrocele. Will you kindly answer the following questions:

"1. Is an operation the only cure?

"2. At what age should it be performed?

"3. Is this condition dangerous or likely to interfere with the child's future functions?

"4. Is there any reason why a child is born with this condition existing?"

REPLY.

1. The condition frequently cures itself.
2. If operation is needed it can be done whenever the degree of inconvenience makes it advisable.
3 and 4. No.

CHEWING GUM AND EYES.

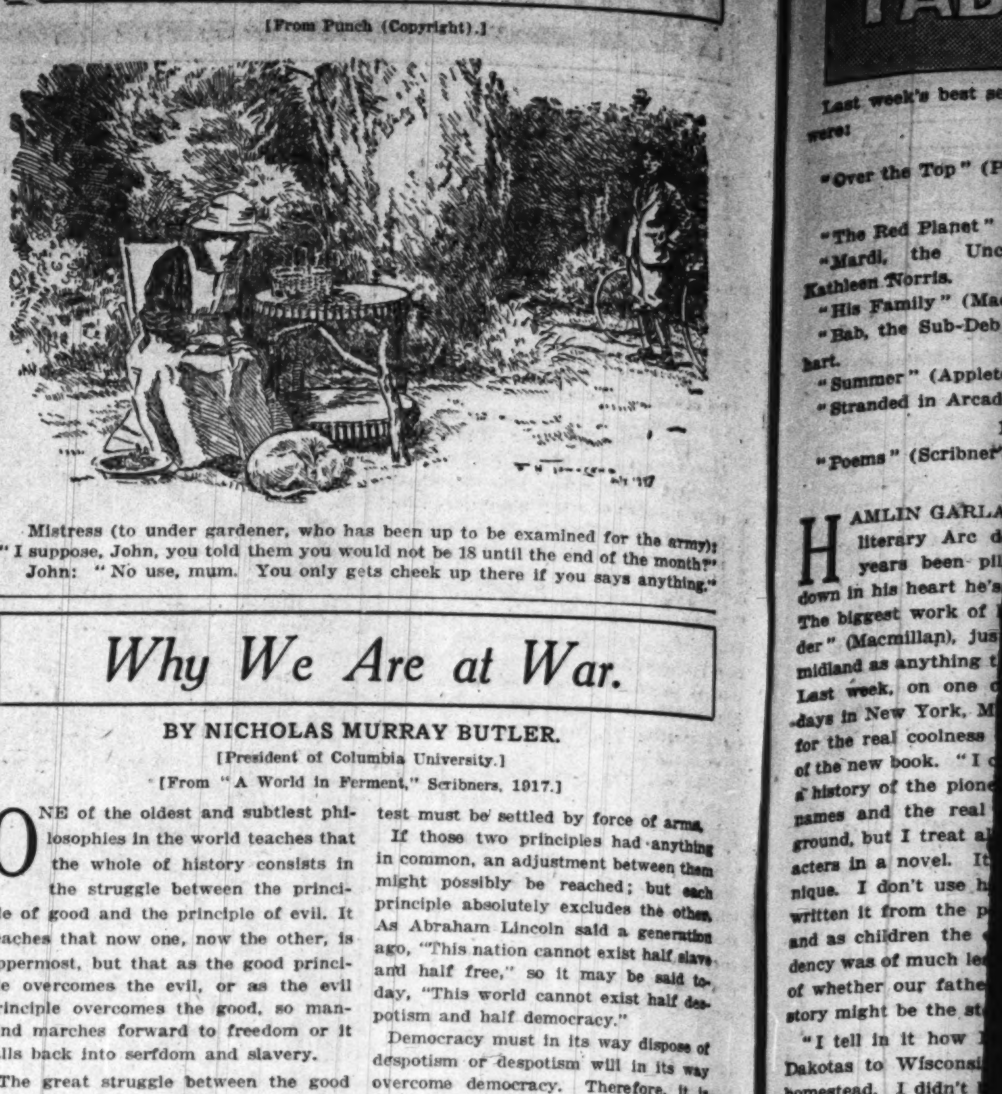
H. B. T. writes:—"Does chewing gum affect the eyes? If so, to what extent?"

REPLY.

No.

HE GOT THE POINT

[From Punch (Copyright).]



Mistress (to under gardener, who has been up to be examined for the army): "I suppose, John, you told them you would not be 18 until the end of the month?" John: "No use, mum. You only gets cheek up there if you says anything."

Why We Are at War.

BY NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER.

[President of Columbia University.]

[From "A World in Ferment," Scribners, 1917.]

One of the oldest and subtlest philosophies in the world teaches that the whole of history consists in the struggle between the principle of good and the principle of evil. It teaches that now one, now the other, is uppermost, but that as the good principle overcomes the evil, or as the evil principle overcomes the good, so mankind marches forward to freedom or it falls back into serfdom and slavery.

The great struggle between the good and the evil principle has taken, in this twentieth century, the form of a contest between two political and social principles which cannot live together in this world. And that is why this contest must be settled by force of arms.

If those two principles had anything in common, an adjustment between them might possibly be reached; but each principle absolutely excludes the other. As Abraham Lincoln said a generation ago, "This nation cannot exist half slave and half free," so it may be said today, "This world cannot exist half despotism and half democracy."

Democracy must in its way dispose of despotism or despotism will in its way overcome democracy. Therefore, it is to no ordinary task that this nation goes forward. It is not a struggle to which one may be for a moment indifferent. It is the deepest and most tremendous conflict that all history records.

FOURTH OF JULY PAY.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I desire to call attention to what I believe to be a flagrant injustice on the part of the city administration in discriminating against the payment of common laborers employed by the city. These people are paid $2.50 a day for every day they work, deduction of one day's salary being made for every holiday. The team owners receive $7 a day for every day their teams are in service, a deduction of this amount a day to be made for every day the teams are not in service. July 4 being a legal holiday, neither laborers nor teams were on duty, but payment for the full day of July 4 at $7 a day was allowed the team owners for all teams, and the deduction of the day's pay was made from the wages of the day laborers and section foremen, who at best receive a mere pittance with which to cope with the present exorbitant cost of living. I would like to know what right the city has to make this fine discrimination in the payment of those hired at so much a working day.

J. H. B.

It has always been the desire of city officials to help the day laborer, who has to work hard to earn the small pittance he receives. It is well known that the street cleaners are the hardest worked laborers employed by the city of Chicago.

There is no way in which the city can pay day labor for holidays or other days upon which no work is performed. The teams employed by the city receive pay for holidays in accordance with a Council order passed July 28, 1913, and which may be found on page 1750 of the Council proceedings. For your information I quote this ordinance:

"ORDERED, That the commissioner of public works be and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay for teams and single rigs working for the city in the following manner:

"On New Year's day, Decoration day and Thanksgiving day to work half day and receive full day's pay; on the Fourth of July, on Labor day and on Christmas day, no work to be done, but to receive a full day's pay for such days; single rigs to receive a full day's pay for half day's work on Saturday."

DEPENDS ON CIRCUMSTANCES.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed a contract for a set of books, payable in monthly installments of $2 each. After paying $2 down I received the books, but I am not pleased with them; they are not what I expected. Must I keep on with the payments or can I return them? I wrote to the firm and they insist that I keep the same.

J. S.

Depends on the basis of your disappointed expectation. If there was a fraudulent misrepresentation you can repudiate. If you merely do not like the books as well as you thought you would this is no defense.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRESPASSING ON THE BEACH.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a man take his family along and go bathing, if he sees fit, on shores of Lake Michigan? I was with a family of five people besides my own of same number, and went to a spot just north of Wilmette's public park.

After being there for a short time was told that I was in party's back yard, and was told this at every move we made. I replied that there were boundaries to his property, and that the lake and beach were for public use. Which one is right in this instance?

Reader.

The law as to the rights of the shore owners is somewhat unsettled, but we advise you not to invite trouble by bathing where individuals claim private rights.

COST OF FIRE INSURANCE.

Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I notice that C. M. Cartwright is again giving full argument of the insurance combine against the government in asking this great organization to do its bit in the way of taxes for war purposes.

That The Tribune may know the facts given in my recent communication are correct, I desire to supplement it by proof just received this morning from the Ohio industrial commission, giving the cost of workmen's compensation insurance in Ohio, under state management, as compared with cost in New York by the stock companies.

Illinois is with New York in the matter of cost to insurers (employers). Please note that Illinois employers, the same as New York employers, are paying more than double for like insurance than is paid by Ohio employers. Please note also that for death benefits Ohio is paying more than 33 per cent in advance of former benefits and as much more than either New York or Illinois.

Germany, whom we hope to bring to democracy, furnishes like insurance to its people that we buy of the combine for one-eighth the cost we pay.

Arson and carelessness are now being encouraged by the practices of the insurance combine. If the cheap clothing store and the dilapidated risk that is looking for an easy purchaser could be eliminated, the rest of the block would get cheaper insurance.

NO RICH MAN'S WAR.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—About the most disgusting blather of anti-war agitation is the charge that "this is a rich man's war," so your editorial reads, and you refute the charge by citing the instances of Davison's son, who was crippled, and of young Fleischman, who died for his country. Both of these men were rich men's sons; and rich men everywhere "are giving with open hands of wealth, service, and life itself, etc."

One of the charges against Germany is that her "military caste" started the war for its own benefit. Surely this is now proven to be an absurdity, for haven't the men of the "military caste" given with open hands of wealth, service, and life itself?

Another idea has been exploded by The Tribune within the last few days. Heretofore the presence of German troops on foreign soil was prima-facie evidence that the Germans were waging war in a spirit of conquest and aggression. Now, here comes The Tribune and spoils it all by excusing our sending our troops to France, and perhaps to Germany on the ground that the best defense is one conducted on enemy soil. We must not wait until the enemy has reached our soil in order to give battle, but must immediately attack him upon his own ground and carry the war into his territory, so that he may experience the devastation and destruction of property.

The Germans knew that in 1914. Let's lick them, but let us also drop the sickening hypocrisy of excusing our own actions on the grounds of military necessity and condemning the actions of our enemy on the same grounds.

CANADIAN AND BRITISH LOSSES.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—To one who has lived in western Canada for the past ten years it is very obvious that your correspondent, Blandina Van Etta, who is so distressed over alleged depression out there, sees things with distorted vision.

It is, to say the least of it, a gross misstatement of fact to say that "they all say the colonials have had the greatest losses, as they are always put on for the attacks."

We of western Canada, as in all other parts of the empire, read our monthly reports of casualties. We know that with the June list Canadian losses for the war totaled 99,639, while the total British losses for the month of May alone exceeded that number by nearly 10,000.

The British losses for the war to date, exclusive of colonials, are approximately 1,000,000. In other words, the British Isles, with a population five times greater than that of Canada, has suffered casualties sixteen times greater.

Three years of German lies in this country cannot alter these facts known to every Canadian.

We are proud of Canada's record during the last three years, but our pride and admiration merge into reverence for the soldier and sailor heroes of our mother country without whose sacrifice in the early months of the war the world would surely have gone down under the might of German militarism.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by Fanny Butcher

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

WAR.

"Over the Top" (Putnam's), by Arthur Guy Empey.

FICTION.

"The Red Planet" (Jane Lane), by William J. Locke.
"Mardi, the Unconquered" (Doubleday-Page), by Kathleen Norris.
"His Family" (Macmillan), by Ernest Poole.
"Bab, the Sub-Deb" (Doran), by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
"Summer" (Appleton), by Edith Wharton.
"Stranded in Arcadia" (Scribner's), by Francis Lynde.

NONFICTION.

"Poems" (Scribner's), by Alan Seeger.

HAMLIN GARLAND, once the keystone of Chicago's literary Arc de Triomphe, has for the last two years been pillaring culture in New York; but down in his heart he's just as midwestern as he ever was. The biggest work of his life, "A Son of the Middle Border" (Macmillan), just off the presses, is as essentially midland as anything that has ever come from the prairies. Last week, on one of those breathless, sticky, gasping days in New York, Mr. Garland and I were both wishing for the real coolness of Chicago while he was telling me of the new book. "I call it fiction. It is really actual fact, a history of the pioneering of my family. I use the real names and the real circumstances and the real background, but I treat all of the characters as I would characters in a novel. It is a biography done in novel technique. I don't use historical facts much because I have written it from the point of view of myself in my youth, and as children the election of Gen. Grant to the presidency was of much less importance to us than the question of whether our father would let us have city hats. The story might be the story of any pioneer family.

"I tell in it how I brought my father back from the Dakotas to Wisconsin and there established the family homestead. I didn't buy the house where I was born, but I did get a house very near it, and I planned that in West Salem there should be established the Garland homestead. I found as I grew older, though, and as my lecturing and publishing brought me to New York so often, that I dreaded the long trip back and forth. I found that all of the older men and women who had meant so much to me in my youth were gone, that I had fewer and fewer friends there each year, and that, although my children loved the old homestead, they were forced to go elsewhere to school. So this year we haven't gone back. We found a little place on a mountainside in the Catskills, where we can be absolutely primitive, live out of doors, and yet where I could get into New York when it was necessary to oversee the new novel."

He isn't the vigorous young man that helped to put Chicago on the literary map in the good old days of the Chap Book. He is a happily and gently seasoned son of the middle border of years now, but his face lights with memory when he talks of those days. "I'm afraid Chicago will never be a magazine center." [I had suggested that perhaps if Chicago became established enough literarily he would be living here again.] "We tried once with the Chap Book. We tried again when Harper's Weekly was on the market. I wanted them to buy it and bring it to Chicago. There was a great opportunity there. But the men who had the money kept it in New York."

"Chicago misses you," I said as I left. He looked as though he meant it with all his heart when he gravely answered: "I miss Chicago."

To the boys and girls of America Hermann Hagedorn has written a little volume, "You Are the Hope of the World" (Macmillan). He exhorts in ringing tones the youth of the land to live for the highest interests of our country: "If you live for the highest interests of America you will live for the highest interests of the world. In that struggle the goal is neither nationalism nor internationalism. It is democracy. It is a lasting peace among nations and, so far as is humanly possible, amity among men." The book is not too serious for any boy or girl of 10, nor too childlike for any man or woman. Mr. Hagedorn knows the boundless possibilities of any one who is fired by an ideal—and he offers the ideal of the future not only to men and women of fighting age but to the youth of living age.

The Kitchener souvenir committee of the League of the Empire gives to every man who has been discharged from the British army "on account of permanent and total disablement incurred during the present war" a specially bound volume containing the complete works of Shakespeare "appropriately designed and with an inscribed bookplate." Sir Sidney Lee, the w. k. Shakespeare commentator, chairman of the committee, declares that the soldiers will treasure the volume as a cherished heirloom.

Carl W. Ackerman was the United Press correspondent in Germany during the war until Germany gave Ambassador Gerard his passports. What Mr. Ackerman knows about the mental and physical condition of Germany he has written down in "Germany, the Next Republic?" (Doran) He tells startling tales of a violent anti-American propaganda in Germany. He gives statistics which are so vital that they speak as no words of man could speak of the food situation in Germany. He tells of the nervousness of the German nation—he says that the government as well as the people is on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But, he says, "I do not believe that there will be a German republic. Certainly not until the allies can destroy the faith of the German people in their leaders."

Mrs. Humphry Ward in "Toward the Goal" (Scribner's) has written a sort of sequel to "England's Effort" and you'll be farther from the goal of keeping up on war books than you realize if you miss this volume of intensely vivid letters.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

AUGUST SEPTEMBER

Late August.

POPPIES break from green shells and in many fairy shades of all the colors hold the morning dew in the cupped silk of their structure. Twenty-four hours are the spokes of a wheel upon which their beauty is broken and their delicate petals cover the ground. Other poppies cup the dew from their newly opened shells and destruction has its answer.

The helianthus puts a million yellow stars along the way. The cicada sends droning, drowsy waves of sound, rising, falling, pulsating, through the woods and across the fields. Green oak leaves fall, portents of the bronzed leaf to come.

Late August slumbers on a queen's couch of royal colors, while the invisible finger writes upon the tapestries of the woods the law of all life that only in evanescence is there permanance. The invisible finger writes and all things obey, from the silken scarlet poppy to the bronze leafed oak.

A late rose is red in the ferns and summer, slumbering in its maturity, seems static and motionless, heavy and gracious with its fruits; but acorns are dropping, berries are drying on the viburnum, wild grapes are ripening, the thorns are full of apples and presently there will be a flutter of warblers in the thickets and the cry of the wild goose overhead.

August slumbers, but the thieving minutes steal and run.

WHERE IS JEHOVAH?

by Mary Borden Turner

CENTRAL NEWS PHOTO SERVICE

Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner.

Mrs. Borden-Turner, a Chicagoan, who, ever since the first year of war, has personally maintained and equipped a field hospital in France, contributes the following poem to the English Review:

Where is Jehovah, the God of Israel, with his Ark and his Tabernacle and his Pillars of Fire?
He ought to be here—This place would suit him.
Here is a people pouring through a wilderness—
Here are armies camping in a desert—
Their little tents are like sheep flocking over the prairie—
It's all in the style of the God of Israel.
Here is a land that was silent and desolate, suddenly covered with noise and confusion,
The wide, white plains and the shallow grey valleys are smeared over with the disorder of armies.
Picardy is shaking with a fever,
Picardy's hills are wounded and broken,
Picardy's fields are scarred as with small-pox—
What a chance for his prophets!
What a playground for miracles!
A host of men at the end of their strength, fighting death, fighting terror, with no one to worship—
He need but lift his finger—
Here are all his pet properties ready to hand, the thunder, the lightning, the clouds and the fire—
This is His hour, but Jehovah has missed it.
This is not His thunder nor His lightning—
These are not His people—
These are the armies of France and of England—
The thunder is the thunder of their guns, and the lightning that runs along the horizon is the flare and the flash of the battle that's raging; Moses is dead—and Joshua, who led His people into the promised land, is dead, and there are no more prophets to cry through the wilderness to comfort these people—
They must look after themselves.
All the host of them, each one of them, quite alone each one of them, every one of the hundred thousand of them, alone, must stand up to meet the war.
With the sky cracking—
With creatures of wide metal wings tearing the sky over his head—
With the earth shaking—
With the solid earth under his feet giving way—
With the hills covered with fire and the valleys smoking, and the few bare trees spitting bullets, and the long roads like liquid torrents, rolling up with guns and munitions and men, always men and more men, with these long roads rolling up like a river to drown him and no way of escape.
With the few houses broken, no walls, no enclosure, no protection.
With all of the universe crushing upon him, rain, sun, cold, dark, death, coming full on him.
With the men near him going mad, jibbering, bleeding, twisting,
With his comrade lying dead under his feet,
With the enemy beyond there, unseen, curious,
With eternity waiting, whispering to him through the noise of the cannon,
With the memory of his home haunting him, and the face of a woman who is waiting,
With the soft echoes of his children's sweet laughter sounding, and shells bursting with roars near him, but not drowning those voices,
He stands there.
He keeps on standing. He stands solid.
He is so small in the landscape as to be almost invisible. We see him as a speck there—
He is dirty. He is tired. His stomach is empty—
He is stupid. His life has been stupid—
He has lived a few years without understanding,
He does not understand now—he will never understand—
He is bigger than all the world.
He is more important than all the army.
He is more terrible than all the war.
He stands there—

. . . .

But where is Jehovah, the God of the great drama, the God of Vengeance, the Lord of Hosts?
Here the scene is set for His acting—a desert, a promised land, a nation in agony waiting—
Jehovah's not here—
There's only a man standing,—quite still.

AMERICAN TRADE in POLAND

by Ladislas Czapski

PETROGRAD, Aug. 13.—What part is America going to play in the trade of the Near East when the fury of war will have spent itself and the "All-Highest's" battalions—or what is left of them—will have slunk back to their lairs?

Danzig—Godansk, as the Poles call it—is the cue to an answer. After the allies have beaten Germany and handed Danzig and the Vistula valley over to the Poles, all the vast natural treasures of Poland will be opened up to American capital, and perhaps it would be as well if American bankers and manufacturers began to prepare at once for the big work that awaits them in that field. Lodz, Poland's biggest manufacturing center, the industrial districts round Novo-Radomsk and Czenstochova, the iron and coal mines of Silesia and Dombrova, the Galician oil fields and salt mines—all the wealth, in fact, which before the war was either controlled largely by Germans or mismanaged by one or other of the partitioning powers, will find its way back into Polish hands and await the skill and organizing genius of American investors.

From Danzig will stretch out alluring vistas of industrial and commercial romance leading to regions far beyond the future Polish frontiers. A canal of about forty miles, built, it may be, with the help of American engineers, and which the Austrian government was making up its mind to build for a hundred years, will link up the Vistula system with that of the Dniester, while another will connect up the valleys of the Bug and Dnieper.

If you take a railway map of central Europe you will notice that the main lines run generally from west to east, intersecting the course of the Vistula and isolating Danzig from just those regions which it could best serve. These railways were laid under the inspiration of Berlin and Vienna in preparation for THE DAY, and after the war they will have to be supplemented by a whole system of lines running more or less parallel with the Vistula basin up to the Baltic. In the end, by intensive canal and railway construction, in which America's builders will play an important part, the whole of eastern Europe, from the Vistula to the Urals, and from the Baltic to the Black sea and the Caucasus, will turn into a land of brilliant opportunities such as Americans didn't dream of even in the days of the Gold Rush.

UP to the war Bremen and Hamburg, although about twice as far from the heart of Poland as Danzig, served as the chief points of embarkation for the hundreds of thousands of south—and east European immigrants dumped at American ports every year by the big German liners. German steamship companies waxed fat on the traffic, dwarfed most of their competitors, and little by little established their political headquarters in lower Broadway, whence they could meddle with American immigrant legislation and even try to interfere with America's war policies.

German shipyards are buzzing with feverish activity today, and as soon as the war is over the steamship companies will try to resume their wholesale traffic in ignorant steerage emigrants, but America will want to take this traffic in hand herself so as to be able to regulate it, and one of the ways to do so will be to reëstablish Danzig as a big, up-to-date harbor for the whole of Poland, Austria-Hungary, and Russia, whence the bulk of American immigrants have come in recent years.

But not only with regard to immigrants was Germany becoming the notorious "get-rich-quick" broker of the nations. Poland and Russia were for years past overrun by German agents and commercial travelers, who spoke Polish and Russian fluently, dealt out long term credit right and left, and prided themselves on the recognized excellence of the wares they sold. In numberless cases, however, these wares were German only because German brokers forwarded them from America. Polish and Russian consumers were taught to regard as unsurpassed all articles bearing the "Made in Germany" stamp, and little suspected in how many instances the stamp had been put there to order by American manufacturers.

This designing German brokerage, which excluded or curtailed the possibilities of other traders in the Near East, will be stopped if Danzig is made into a big port, through which America will be able to supply Poland and Russia with her products at least as profitably and promptly as either through Bremen or Hamburg, and, what is as important, without German mediation.

BEFORE American competition with Germany is in full swing, and before Danzig can be got ready to act as a base for American, French, and English trade in the Near East, Poland will be building herself up out of the ruins. Here again America, side by side with England and France, will come to the rescue, for gigantic amounts of money and work will be needed for the task and the country, without outside assistance, would be helpless. American builders, experienced in undertakings on a large scale, will be welcomed in this field by the Poles. Besides bridges, roads, railways, factories, and farms, thousands of villages and towns will have to be planned and built quickly to provide shelter for the wretches now living in miserable barracks, in dugouts, or out in the forests, and also for the hundreds of thousands of Polish refugees who will return from Russia as soon as the inferno of battles round their former homes will have ceased raging.

Another set of Poland's after-the-war needs for which America will be called upon to help provide will have to do with the ruined Polish farmers. On wide stretches of country along the Vistula, where some of the fiercest fighting of the war took place, thousands upon thousands of Polish farmers were not only left roofless but minus their implements, cattle, and draft horses, and they will look to American factories and ranches to replace what the storm of war had swept away.

Polish leaders are alive to the enormous difficulties, as well as the stupendous opportunities involved in any attempts to reconquer the markets of the Near East from the German grip after the war, but they are sure that American enterprise and American resources will be equal to the challenge. Only the other day I talked about these things with a Polish diplomatist and political thinker well known in Russia and eminently qualified to speak on behalf of the bulk of his countrymen in Poland. I cannot mention his name for special reasons, but he stands at the head of one of Poland's biggest political parties and his opinions on east European affairs are valued in the foreign ministries of western Europe.

"My message to America is to prepare," he said. He is working, let me add, for a strong Poland, with Danzig as an outlet to the Baltic, as only a strong Poland, in his opinion, will be able to ring down the final curtain on the German Drang nach Osten, which began in prehistoric times, which has been swamping one Slav people after another and on which Germany intended to put the final touches by this war.

"Unless America, with England and France, helps Poland to become really strong and free politically and economically, the Drang nach Osten will be resumed after the war with redoubled intensity and the markets of the Near East ultimately will be closed to all except Germans," the Polish politician continued. "Russia, since the whirl of the revolution has set in, will need ample time to reorganize internally and consolidate her new won liberties, and in the meantime Poland will have to stand guard for the other Slav nations in the rear against the oncoming Germans. In this war after the war America is to help, and when her fighters come home from the European battlefields American financiers and manufacturers would do well to have their army of agents and travelers ready to be dispatched to Poland and Russia."

THESE civilian soldiers—horrible thought!—will have to speak Polish and Russian, and they might as well begin breaking themselves in at once. They will have to be as keen and persevering as any German commercial agent in Poland and Russia ever was and will have to be in a position to dispose liberally of long term credit. As for the credit, the Germans have always looked upon this as their strong point, and it is their's to prove, therefore, one of the most powerful counter weapons in the hands of the American competitor. At the same time the Germans' commercial successes in Poland and Russia before the war show that credit is rarely abused by the customers.

All these things will be possible, of course, after the Germans are thoroughly beaten in the field, as otherwise the Drang nach Osten will continue unopposed. As the Poles, however, cannot conceive of the war ending in anything but a German defeat, their message to America is to start preparing now.

Food in Germany

Carl Ackerman, the United Press correspondent in Berlin until the severing of diplomatic relations, includes in his new book, "Germany, the Next Republic" (Doran), this schedule which shows at a glance the food situation in Germany:

WHAT YOU CANNOT EAT OR DRINK.

Foodstuffs which are completely exhausted in Germany.

1. Rice.
2. Coffee.
3. Tea.
4. Cocoa.
5. Chocolate.
6. Olive oil.
7. Cream.
8. Fruit flavorings.
9. Canned soups or soup cubes.
10. Sirups.
11. Nuts.
12. Dried vegetables, beans, peas, etc.
13. Candy (a very limited number of persons can buy ¼ of a pound about once a week).
14. Malted milk.
15. Beer made of either malt or hops.
16. Caviar.
17. Ice cream.
18. Macaroni.

WHAT YOU MAY EAT.

Food obtainable only by card.

1. Bread, 1,900 grams per week per person.
2. Meat, 250 grams (½ pound) per week per head.
3. Eggs, 1 per person every two weeks.
4. Butter, 90 grams per week per person.
5. Milk, 1 quart daily only for children under 10 and invalids.
6. Potatoes, formerly 9 pounds per week; lately, in many parts of Germany, no potatoes were available.
7. Sugar, formerly 2 pounds per month, now 4 pounds, but this will not continue long.
8. Marmalade, or jam, ¼ of a pound every month.
9. Noodles, ½ pound per person a month.
10. Sardines, or canned fish, small box per month.
11. Saccharine (a coal tar substitute for sugar), about 25 small tablets a month.
12. Oatmeal, ½ of a pound per month for adults, or 1 pound per month for children under 12 years.

WHAT YOU CAN EAT.

Foods which every one with money can buy.

1. Geese, costing 8 to 10 marks per pound ($1.60 to $2 per pound).
2. Wild game, rabbits, ducks, deer, etc.
3. Smuggled meat, such as ham and bacon, for $2.50 a pound.
4. Vegetables, carrots, spinach, onions, cabbage, beets.
5. Apples, lemons, oranges.
6. Bottled oil made from seeds and roots, for cooking purposes, costing $5 per pound.
7. Vinegar, fresh fish, black crows.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Motor Pioneers Chart Wonders of Island Roads

A complete tour of every traversible automobile road in the Hawaiian islands—the first of its kind ever made—has just been finished by a party sent out by a Honolulu newspaper. They found 850 miles or more of motoring highways. What follows is the report of an unidentified observer on the trip through Oahu, one of the four islands visited.

Some day a great poet will find it in his heart to celebrate the new world of sheer wonder that came into view when the automobile found its place in our scheme of things. Meanwhile, with our persistent utilitarian vision, we get only glimpses. Here's one of them.

MOUNTAIN walls and valley floors, colorful coral coasts and the sprayed crests of sweeping surf, silver lines of leaping waterfalls and industry dotted plains of pineapple and cane are combined in the panoramic reel of shifting scenes that are unfolded to the view of the motorist along the route around Oahu.

From Honolulu, circling the larger of two parallel mountain ranges that extend the length of the island, the road rises up over the famous Nuuanu Pali, drops down again to the fertile plains, follows the coast line northward and returns along the floor of the saddle-like mesa that lies in the middle of Oahu.

Nuuanu Pali, the great precipice which marks the dividing line between the two sides of the island, is seven miles from the center of the city over a splendid road.

The climb to the summit of this precipice is on an easy grade from the sea, through the Nuuanu valley residential section of the city, with the Japanese quarter at the foot and rising to a section of magnificent homes.

The road runs past the Royal mausoleum, where lie the bodies of the Hawaiian royal dead; past the Oahu Country club, its sweeping links running clear across the valley; past country homes, and into an ever narrowing gorge, with walls rising steeply to heights of several hundred feet, verdure clad to the summits.

Down the precipitous sides of the mountain drop graceful waterfalls, as fine as the sheerest lawn; waterfalls that leap toward the valley bottom but never reach it. The trade wind that blows steadily through the Pali gap catches the spray and whirls it down the valley in rainbow mists, or curls the bottom edge of the waterfall back upon itself like whirling smoke.

It is a favorite trick of old timers to point out these wind whipped waterfalls as the smoke vents of volcanoes, so like smoke clouds do they appear at times.

Along a winding road, up and up, the traveler to the Pali is taken, the road lined thickly with trees, indigenous and imported. First a great tangle jungle of hau trees, the branches and roots intertwined in snake knots; then rows of pungent eucalyptus, the blue gums of Australia, with their Australian neighbors, the iron woods, graceful and sweeping.

Bright kukuis grow upon the higher levels, with guavas and an occasional lehua, in summer bearing flossy blossoms directly from the limbs and trunk, gay, red pompoms, to pick which is as unlucky in Hawaii as it is to kill a daddy-long-legs in New England. Either act will surely bring a rainstorm.

The Pali is reached wholly without warning. One moment the machine is climbing between thickets; the next the car has stopped upon the edge of the precipice, sheer 900 feet, with miles of fertile country stretching out from the mountain base to the sea.

Almost under the wheels of the motor car the perpendicular face of the mountainside falls precipitously away to the lowlands that sweep outward over an area that constitutes a large portion of the island.

Green and alluring lies this fertile plain in its play of color and variety of agricultural products. In the distance are seen the regular rows upon rows of growing pineapples. The ghostlike masts of the wireless station which connects Honolulu with the American mainland rise from this green picture. The blue water billows and curls and breaks in long white lines upon the coral shores.

A pastel color box one must have to paint this scene, with a hundred shades of green on land and as many shades of blue for the sea, with creamy surf lines, while looking over the brink one may pick out the road to follow to that bottom, winding back and forth across the face of the cliff, doubling upon itself in hairpin curves.

It was in this valley and at this precipice edge that the climax came to one of the historical romances of Hawaii. Kamahameha the Great, having conquered all of the island of Hawaii, the island of Molokai, and the island of Manui, adding each to his kingdom, came on his conquering mission to invade Oahu, landing with his warriors from their fleet of canoes at Waikiki.

The Oahuan king attempted to make a stand, but was driven back, his army losing one defensive position after another in Nuuanu valley, being finally driven to the precipice's brim.

A charge of the invaders broke the last defense, and the Oahu monarch and the survivors of his army were thrown headlong to their death over the Pali. Thus Kamehameha joined Oahu to his kingdom and became the first ruler over a united Hawaii, the first king of the entire group.

From the Pali the route descends the narrow, shelflike road along the side of the precipice down to the fields of windward Oahu, crosses to the sea, and for fifty miles skirts the shore line through villas and quaint little villages along the hard sand beach.

Descending from the Pali, the ever shifting panorama of kaleidoscopic shades of lights and colors is unfolded as the road drops 1,200 feet by a picturesque series of switchbacks and winding turns.

Pineapple plantation lands flank the road in the lowlands. Along the route are many places of interest to the traveler. Kaneohe, a short distance to the right of the belt road, lures the motorist to a view of the weirdly fascinating formation in the depths of the sea as seen through the limpid waters of the bay.

Beyond Kaneohe, the pineapple canneries, and the wireless station is Waiahole, where a great irrigation ditch has been tunneled through the mountains; picturesque Kahana valley and Hau-beach; Laie, the thriving Mormon settlement, founded more than fifty years ago and possessing the largest Mormon temple west of Utah; Kahuku, the northernmost part of the island and location of a great radio plant; and Waimea, with its superb bathing beach, are some of the points along the route to Haleiwa.

Haleiwa, with submarine gardens, bathing beach, and spacious hotel grounds, is left behind for the ascent to the tablelands, and across the length of the island again to Honolulu.

The road goes deep into gulches, along the sides of cañons, through miles and miles of cane lands, passing near the great military post at Schofield barracks and along the border of the naval station at Pearl harbor, with its beautiful expanse of land locked water.

Nearing Honolulu again, the road passes through the charming lawns and flowered pathways of Moanalua gardens.

AT KAHANA BAY

MARK TWAIN ON THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

NO ALIEN land in all the world has any deep, strong charm for me but that one; no other land could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking, through half a lifetime, as that one has done. Other things leave me, but it abides; other things change, but it remains the same. For me its balmy airs are always blowing, its summer seas flashing in the sun; the pulsing of its surf beat is in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades, its plumy palms drowsing by the shore; its remote summits floating like islands above the cloudrack; I can feel the spirit of its woodland solitudes; I can hear the plash of its brooks; in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished twenty years ago.

Here's a Route to Chicago from 'Most Anywhere

"ALL roads lead to——" Remember how the town paper back home used to start off its story of the county fair with those words?

Sponsors of the national exposition for Ford accessories, which opens at the Coliseum late in September, have gone the ancient idea one better. Hoping that many motorists who want to see the show will drive hither for the event, they have taken steps to set forth not only the aphorism that all roads will be leading to Chicago, but also precisely where these same roads lie.

For the occasion a special touring bureau has been established under the direction of A. R. Woodall, editor of the Automobile Blue Book, which will provide detailed touring information and data on road conditions to all comers at its headquarters at the New Southern hotel.

Main routes within a 500 mile radius of Chicago are outlined and recommended by Mr. Woodall as follows:

DETROIT TO CHICAGO—Via Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Concord, Albion, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Paw Paw, Lawrence, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Three Oaks, New Buffalo, Michigan City, Hobart, and Hammond.

GRAND RAPIDS TO CHICAGO—Via Moline, Wayland, Bradley, Martin, and Plainwell, picking up the Detroit-Chicago route at Kalamazoo.

CLEVELAND TO CHICAGO—Via Elyria, Oberlin, Norwalk, Clyde, Fremont, Portage, and Napoleon, picking up Toledo-Chicago route at Archbold.

FORT WAYNE TO CHICAGO—Via Churubaco, Merriam, and Kimmell, picking up Toledo-Chicago route at Ligonier.

INDIANAPOLIS TO CHICAGO—Via Lebanon, Lafayette, Wolcott, Goodland, Ade, Lowell, and Hammond.

COLUMBUS TO CHICAGO—Via Springfield, and Richmond, picking up Indianapolis-Chicago route at Indianapolis.

DAYTON TO CHICAGO—Via Eaton and Westville, picking up Columbus-Chicago route at Richmond.

CINCINNATI TO CHICAGO—Via Harrison, Cedargrove, Matamora, and Rushville, picking up Indianapolis-Chicago route at Indianapolis.

LEXINGTON, KY., TO CHICAGO—Via Georgetown, Mason station, Falmouth, and Walton, picking up Cincinnati-Chicago route at Cincinnati.

LOUISVILLE, KY., TO CHICAGO—Via Underwood, Scottsburg, Seymour, Columbus, and Franklin, picking up Indianapolis-Chicago route at Indianapolis.

TERRE HAUTE TO CHICAGO—Via Armiesburg, Kingman, Veedersburg, Attica, and Fowler, picking up Indianapolis-Chicago route at Goodland.

MILWAUKEE TO CHICAGO—Via Racine and Kenosha, where the motorist takes the Greey Bay or inside route to Highland park, and then follows the shore route south through Winnetka and Evanston.

MADISON TO CHICAGO—Via Fort Atkinson, Elkhorn, Lake Geneva, Crystal Lake, Algonquin, Elgin, and Addison.

DUBUQUE TO CHICAGO—Via Hazel Green, Warren, Freeport, Rockford, Belvidere and Marengo, picking up Madison-Chicago route at Elgin.

MINNEAPOLIS TO CHICAGO—Via Farmington, Faribault, Owatonna, Austin, Lyle, Mitchell, Charles City, Plainfield, Waterloo, La Porte City, Newhall, Cedar Rapids, Clarence, Dewitt, Clinton, Sterling, Dickson, Rochelle, De Kalb, Geneva, and Elmhurst.

SIOUX CITY TO CHICAGO—Via Cushing, Early, Sac City, Rockwell City, Fort Dodge, Webster City, Iowa Falls, and Parkersburg, picking up Minneapolis-Chicago route at Waterloo.

OMAHA TO CHICAGO—Via Atlantic, Adair, Des Moines, Oskaloosa, Washington, Muscatine, Davenport, Watertown, and Denrock, picking up Minneapolis-Chicago route at Sterling.

KANSAS CITY TO CHICAGO—Via Independence, Lexington, Marshall, Glasgow, Moberly, Monroe City, Hannibal, Quincy, Mount Sterling, Rushville, Farmington, Peoria, Chillicothe, Varna, Mount Palatine, Ottawa, Sandwich, Aurora, and Naperville.

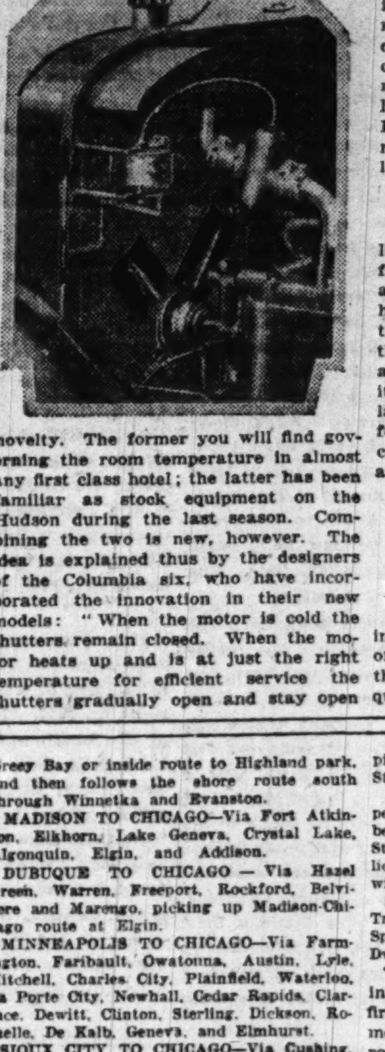
ST. LOUIS TO CHICAGO—Via Collinsville, Troy, Edwardsville, Staunton, Litchfield, Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, Pontiac, Dwight, Morris, and Joliet.

"Motorists will find all the main routes in excellent condition," says the bureau's first bulletin. "September is an ideal month for a trip to Chicago and the roads could not be better than they are in the first month of autumn. Most of the through highways will be open and detours will not be necessary, for the road improvements that are being made now will be completed within another month."

The LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

Automatic Radiator Shutters.

The newest wrinkle in the motor world is the thermostatically controlled radiator shutter. Neither the thermostat nor the radiator shutter, of course, is a novelty. The former you will find governing the room temperature in almost any first class hotel; the latter has been familiar as stock equipment on the Hudson during the last season. Combining the two is new, however. The idea is explained thus by the designers of the Columbia six, who have incorporated the innovation in their new models: "When the motor is cold the shutters remain closed. When the motor heats up and is at just the right temperature for efficient service the shutters gradually open and stay open just while the motor is at that temperature. When the motor begins to cool the shutters begin to close, keeping things at the proper running temperature."

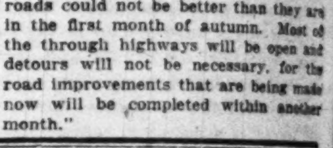


A Long Distance Motometer.

A new type of motometer, designed to be legible at a distance of twelve feet, is now offered by the concern which manufactures the most widely accepted of these devices. Instead of the familiar column of red fluid, fluctuating thermometerwise, the instrument shows a large dial, reading "Cold, Cool, Warm, Hot," across which a white, easily seen needle moves in a quarter circle from left to right.

Those Headlight Rays.

By way of solving the glaring headlight problem a Massachusetts manufacturer offers, instead of special lenses, a parabaloid reflector with the upper half curved on an axis different from that of the lower half, so that part of the light rays are directed straight ahead and part downward. The light beam, it is claimed, is never higher than the lamp itself—about three and one-half feet above the road—and is such as to conform with the anti-glare laws of all the states, at the same time illuminating the road for 300 to 500 feet ahead of the car, with a good ditch light at the sides. The device is easily and quickly installed.



Keep Thieves From Stealing Your Ford

Here is the Security Auto Lock (for Ford cars). You can put it on in 10 minutes and then your machine is absolutely thief-proof. No filing to do. No holes to drill. No changes to make on your machine.

MADE OF SOLID BRASS CAN'T BE BROKEN EVEN WITH A HAMMER

When you leave your car simply turn the key in the lock and lift the steering wheel. That disengages the gears, the wheel spins around like a top and the front wheels go "wild".

You can push the car or turn it around but it can't be driven or towed away. No one without the key can take the lock off or put it out of order.

A turn of the key and the gears engage again and you are ready to drive off. It's all as simple as locking or unlocking your house door—and your mind is easy when your car is standing alone.

Cuts Insurance Cost

The Security is approved by underwriters and insurance companies and reduces insurance at least 15%. You will soon pay for it in this saving alone.

30 Days To Try It

Here is our free trial offer to all Ford Owners—an offer to prove with no risk to you that you can positively baffle auto thieves. Test the Security Auto Lock for 30 days. Then if you don't find it all we say, return it to dealer and get your money back.

Only $5.00 now and that back if you don't find it worth five times the price in the protection it gives. Save yourself the annoyance and the loss that may happen any day you leave your car unprotected. Get this positive and permanent protection against thieves. Ask your dealer for it today.

Motor Men Face Hopeless Mixup in Lighting Laws

MOTORISTS throughout the country who propose hereafter to tour from one state to another will do well to study the automobile lighting laws of every community they intend to visit. Activities of the various legislative bodies, largely during the current year, have resulted in a state of affairs in which the driver who equips his car to conform with the regulations of his home state or city is almost certain to find himself "in wrong" the moment he crosses the nearest state line.

Even more confused than the car owners are the automobile manufacturers. Naturally, they want to send cars to their dealers so equipped that they may be passed on to purchasers as finished products that may be operated without danger of arrest. At their request, therefore, the national automobile chamber of commerce has made a digest of the regulations relating to automobile lights in force or to become effective on or by Jan. 1, 1918, in order to advise its members how they may meet all the requirements.

This study shows that, while the legislators of nearly all of the states have tried to accomplish the same result—prevention of the temporary blinding of an approaching driver or pedestrian by the brilliant headlights or spotlight of a motor vehicle—they have framed the respective laws in such specific and conflicting terms as to make it practically impossible for the manufacturer to comply with them without adopting some one of several patented dimming devices that have been approved by the commissioner of motor vehicles or the highway commission of several states.

The situation emphasizes the great need of uniformity in motor vehicle laws and the desirability of having the present state laws superseded by a national act providing for the registration and regulating the operation and equipment of motor vehicles.

The following states now require that the beam of reflected light from front lamps shall not rise more than forty-two inches above the level surface of the road on which the vehicle stands unless the lamps are fitted with lenses or dimming devices to diffuse the rays or lessen the intensity of the light:

California,	New York,	Oregon,
Connecticut,	Nevada,	Texas,
Florida,	N. Carolina,	Utah,
Iowa,	N. Dakota,	Vermont,
Nebraska,	Ohio,	Washington.

Michigan requires the use of a dimming or diffusion device that can be operated at the will of the driver, but New Jersey prohibits the use of a device that can be operated by the driver so as to permit the direct rays to project at a height greater than four and one-half feet from the road.

In Illinois, Indiana and New Hampshire drivers must dim or extinguish their headlights when approaching another vehicle.

In New Jersey the headlights must be fitted with lenses, dimmers, or other devices that have been approved by the commissioner of motor vehicles, who has already approved more than forty such patented devices.

After Jan. 1 next all cars used in New Hampshire must have electric headlights equipped with some device approved by the comissioner of motor vehicles. Rhode Island authorizes the state board of public roads to prepare rules governing the lighting of motor vehicles, but as yet the board has not issued such regulations.

The department of motor vehicles in Connecticut has approved fifteen or more different diffusion or dimming devices.

Any dimming device that is used, however, in the different states must not reduce the volume of light so much that the lights will not be plainly visible at distances varying from 200 to 500 feet ahead [according to the state in which used], or will not reveal objects on the road from 150 to 250 feet ahead.

Most states require white front lights, but New York and a number of others permit the use of amber or other colored lenses or glass.

In Illinois and Indiana the tail lamp must be independent of any other light and it must be impossible to light or extinguish it while the car is in motion.

Many states regulate "spot" lights or searchlights in the same way as headlights and have further provisions governing their use. In Wyoming the spot light can be used only in emergency or when rounding curves; in Delaware it must be on the left side of the car, with its rays directed over the hood to the right side, and must be used only for reading signs and numbers and for examining the edge of the road. In many states, when approaching other vehicles, the spot light must be extinguished or directed upon the road at a distance of not more than thirty feet ahead of the lamp.

To manufacturers the investigators offer this final word of counsel:

"Despite conflicting provisions of the various laws, it is believed safe to assume that any construction, treatment, or equipment of the lamps that will prevent throwing a dazzling beam of light more than 42 inches above the road 75 feet ahead of the car, yet which will not prevent them being visible 500 feet ahead or giving sufficient white light 250 feet ahead and 10 feet to each side of the road 10 feet ahead of the car, will conform with the intent of the law in every state, and will be accepted by the authorities as meeting the requirements.

"The simplest way to accomplish the desired result is to focus the lamps carefully to project a concentrated beam and mount the brackets or bend them slightly so as to tilt the lamps downward to the necessary degree.

"Should authorities in any state hold that this does not suffice to comply with the law, the dealer or user may frost or coat the bulb or front glass with some translucent material that will diffuse the light rays, or put on patented dimmers."

Mexico Duty Suspended.

The American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, reports that a circular of the Mexican treasury department permits the free importation until Dec. 31, 1917, of carts, wagons, motor trucks, and other vehicles of all kinds for commercial and agricultural use, and for the transportation of goods and carriages and automobiles for passenger use, the duties remitted varying from $6.66 to $16.94 per 100 pounds.

The Experts Say---

Many cars have the headlamps fastened to the fenders and if these latter are at all loose, vibration is increased to such an extent that frequent replacement of the bulbs is necessary. This makes it important in cases of this kind to make a periodic inspection of the fender supports to see that they are tight.

In many cases water and dirt in the fuel system cause almost endless trouble, which may very likely be attributed to the engine proper. Dirt will clog the minute crevices in the carburetor, causing numerous peculiar symptoms of trouble to appear. Many cars have no provision, except a metal strainer in the tank, for preventing the entrance of dirt into the fuel system. It is suggested that the owners of cars so equipped fit a trap in the gasoline line. All the larger manufacturers of carbureters have devices of this kind in stock. Usually they are placed directly in the gasoline line, near the carbureter, or again they may be located at the bottom of the tank. The trap catches all dirt and water and for its effectual operation it is essential that it be drained at intervals of not longer than five weeks.

Avoid Illinois Roads if You're Touring South

TOURING straight south into Illinois has long been one of the diverting minor paradoxes for Chicagoans who seek the better roads. For driving south into Illinois means getting out of the state as soon as possible.

It is an axiom, of course, that the wise driver edges over into Indiana. Indiana has been wise in the building of her roads where Illinois, like the foolish virgin of holy writ, has been caught napping.

Satisfactory roads due south of Chicago are to be found only in spots. In between there are stretches of dirt which provide anything but good going in dry weather and are all but impassable when it rains.

Persons desirous of reaching Danville by motor will find awaiting them a trip easy of accomplishment, varied as to road conditions (passing as it does over a bit of the best and a bit of the worst of Indiana's roads) and by no means lacking in scenic interest, if skirting the shores of at least one wooded lake and driving through some of the world's richest farming territory means anything.

Leaving the city by the usual southeastern exit, one keeps south along the edge of Hammond, heading for Dyer, to the south rather than swinging farther east to the route toward Schererville. Skirting the edge of Hammond is no profitable experience, for the pavements along the way remind you of the pictured glimpse of "no man's land," but it has to be done.

Beyond, the tourist has his reward. Passing through Dyer and Brunswick over good, smooth roads, one enters the woods along the shore of Cedar Lake, winds around this much visited body of water, and then emerges on to one of the finest stretches of highway to be found hereabouts—the six or seven mile speedway into Lowell. This is broad, smooth, and well kept: an ideal motor road, and a source of profound gratification in a country where otherwise good pavements are frequently so narrow that passing another car is a matter for skill and eternal viligance.

The rest of the way may be described in the language of the market reports as "fair to good." Through Schneider, Morocco, Ade, and Kentland the roads traversing the corn and oats country are hard and serviceable, though narrow for the most part and sometimes carelessly crowned to an uncomfortable height. Motorists accustomed to the dirt and worn macadam highways of Illinois will find no fault with them, for, given a clear path and a car that clings to the road, one may speed up almost to one's heart's content.

A short stretch of dirt south of Ambia may prove difficult in wet weather, but the rest is plain sailing.

Danville is worth while as an objective point for more reasons than that it is a thoroughly typical Illinois town.

To the good roads enthusiasts of the state it should be something of a Mecca, for it is the county seat of Vermilion county, the first in the state to lay out a detailed plan of road building for years to come and abide by it. Under this well considered plan a long stretch of the finest brick roadway in Illinois, much of it on the Dixie highway, has just been completed, leading through the city.

It was the dedication of this Dixie highway strip that provided the occasion from which came the so-called "Danville platform," the basis of the campaign which has resulted already in doubling automobile license fees in Illinois for good roads purposes and probably will lead to the authorzation by popular vote of a $60,000,000 bond issue for improving a statewide system of highways.

Within the county a total of approximately 150 miles of brick and concrete roads has been provided for, and most of them completed, making possible long drives through valleys and over hills and rivers into some of the most beautiful parts of Illinois.

At the National Soldiers' home 5,000 veterans of the civil war are passing their last days near the spot where for several years Abraham Lincoln lived. Here, too, is the home of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, perhaps the most picturesque figure in American politics.

The Luck of the Game.

In the automobile racing events of the present season two most unusual occurrences have marked the races at Cincinnati and Minneapolis, the first of which undoubtedly cost a comfortable fortune in prize money, and the second of which might easily have done likewise had not the driver possessed a stoical determination to win.

At Cincinnati a splinter from the track, thrown by one of the other cars with great force, entered Ralph De Palma's radiator, puncturing the water tank and forcing him to retire from the track, when he seemed to have the race won handily.

At Minneapolis, as Ira Vail was starting on the ninety-first mile of the 100 mile event, speeding alongside of Eddie Hearne, the latter's car shot a small stone, which struck Vail just above the left eye, causing him to swerve momentarily, but he refused to stop, and with blood pouring from the swelling wound continued the terrific grind, winning the race. Singularly enough it was the first time Vail had captured first place in a big race, although he had finished well up with the leaders for several seasons.

Pike's Peak Climb Off.

The Pike's peak hillclimb, which was scheduled to be run Sept. 8, has been called off, officials announcing that motor car manufacturers and drivers are engaged in war work and are unable to participate in the meet. No more hillclimbs will be run up Colorado's famous peak during the period of the war.

Too Many Signs Here.

A vigorous campaign against the use of the "Stop-Look-Listen" design, familiar as a railroad crossing warning, for roadside advertisements will be waged by the Automobile club of Philadelphia as a result of complaints from members. According to officials of the club, Pennsylvania hotels and garages in many localities have adopted the crossed boards at the top of a standard as a form of advertising, resulting not only in annoyances and confusion to autoist, but spelling real danger to the tourist, especially at night.

The club plans a campaign of publicity to enlist the efforts of motorists throughout the state in a move to put an end to this form of advertising and to advocate the passing of legislation prohibiting it, if necessary.

Questions and Answers

By High

Because of the large volume of requests for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Questions of general interest, such as those pertaining to driving and the care of the car, will be answered as far as possible in this column.

I am planning a trip into the northern Wisconsin lake region and would like to have some information regarding the best automobile roads. What is the best route between Chicago and Mercer, Wis.? What is the total distance? Are the roads all improved and well kept up?

E. J. A., Chicago.

I do not want to be considered in the light of a kill-joy, but candor compels me to say that the trip you have selected is anything but an easy one. The roads between Chicago and Mercer will be found good, fair, and bad, with the poorest stretches at the other end of the route. There are some good roads in northern Wisconsin, while others are contemplated, but most of those over which you would have to travel will not allow an average speed of much over twelve miles an hour. Mercer is not located on the main automobile route, so the best I can do is to route you to Minocqua, where it will be necessary to make inquiry as to the best road to your destination. Drive through Milwaukee, 89 miles; Manitowoc, 85 miles; Green Bay, 37 miles; Antigo, 83 miles, and Rhinelander, 55 miles, to Minocqua, 29 miles. It may be that you will find it necessary to continue to Trout Lake, which is thirteen miles north of Minocqua.

What route are you recommending for a tour to the Pacific coast? What condition would the roads be in the latter part of September.

TOURIST, Chicago.

It depends upon what Pacific coast point you wish to reach. For Seattle and Tacoma, follow the National Parks highway. The most direct route to San Francisco is the Lincoln highway, which is in pretty poor shape from Salt Lake City on. The Santa Fé trail is the best route to Los Angeles. The western roads should be at their best in September.

To settle an argument, will you kindly inform me as to the approximate force of impact of an automobile when it strikes an obstruction at various speeds.

CURIOUS, Blue Island, Ill.

When an automobile is running at a speed of fifty miles an hour a sudden stoppage is equivalent to the impact of a body that has fallen 120 feet. When running at a speed of fifteen miles an hour the impact is only equal to a fall of thirteen feet.

What, in your opinion, is the best way to fix a small hole between the water jacket and the cylinder? Fortunately the hole is above the highest point of the piston travel.

JAMES CONTOS, Hammond, Ind.

Of course the best way would be to take the motor down and have the defective spot welded. However, you might try cleaning the spot thoroughly and applying a coating of "smooth on" cement. This preparation has proved effective in fixing small leaks in the water jacket.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Louis Geyler, president of the Louis Geyler company, announced yesterday that he has taken over the distribution of the Elgin for Chicago and the surrounding territory. Simultaneously examples of the "made in Chicago" car were placed on view at the Geyler salesroom at Twenty-fifth street and Michigan avenue. Thus another change of vital importance in the local automobile world goes into the records. The retail organization which the Elgin factory has maintained in Chicago is, of course, discontinued.

That "eight day week" mystery in the advertising columns is solved this morning with the explanation that there are in Chicago a number of Ross eights, priced regularly at $1,850, to be had during the coming week for $1,387.50. An extra Sunday of selling will provide the eighth day. The Chicago distributors make it known, with engaging frankness, that they accepted a quota of cars somewhat in excess of the number they could sell in the regular way and have adopted the unusual sales plan rather than back out of their contract with the manufacturers.

Inaugurating their twenty-first year in the motor car business, builders of the Stearns-Knight announce a group of new models which have several features of unusual distinction. One genuine novelty is a four passenger roadster having three doors instead of the conventional two, the extra one being in the rear on the right side, permitting direct entrance to the rear seat. Another item of convenience is a special tool kit, placed in a locked pocket in one of the fore doors.

James Levy, president of the Saxon Automobile Company of Illinois, learns that Eddie Pullen, the racing driver, has become a dealer, having taken on the Saxon agency for Oakland, Cal.

Shakespeare was right, the Willy-Overland people report. There's nothing in a name. Down in Paris, Tex., they find, there's an Overland salesman with a monicker which he usually conceals as far as possible under curt initials. His full name is Briscoe Dodge Chandler!

The long expected substitution of the name Nash for that of Jeffery in the wares offered by the Nash Motors company is, it appears, at hand. Official announcement was made last week that a Nash car is forthcoming and will be made known shortly. Just what it will be is left to speculation, but it is intimated that it will be something entirely new and not a modification of the present Jeffery, which has been carrying the name of the family from whom C. W. Nash purchased the factory at Kenosha about a year ago.

A series of demonstrations is under way on Vandercook lake, near Jackson, Mich., with a view to showing that the standard automobile engines of any factory are adaptable to the work of propelling aeroplanes or hydroaeroplanes in the government's aviation training service. Benjamin Briscoe and the officials of the Briscoe Motor corporation are coöperating with a group of Oregon men in the experiments.

The Winton company has invited suggestions for an appropriate way to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of what they term the founding of the automobile industry in America. The concern claims the distinction of having begun, on April 1, 1898, delivery of the first regular output of American made cars. Its production for that year was twenty-one automobiles.

To Harry Newman, president of the Harry Newman-Stratton company, comes word that a Maxwell driven by Ray McNamara has just established three new road records in Canada. The car went from Windsor to Toronto in six hours and fifty minutes, from Toronto to Montreal in eleven hours, and from Montreal to Quebec in four hours and one minute. The length of the runs is 275, 360 and 180 miles respectively.

at 14.95—they ought to sell for 19.75 to 22.50

Keep this in mind—and turn it to your good profit: It may sound like a chestnut—but the fact remains that serge is steadily going upward and onward. And good serge—an all wool serge (like in these dresses) is almost a minus quantity. But here's a way out for you—just at present, at least—in this sale—for here are the 14.95 Newest fall styles—blue serge, of course. They've handsome collars in various shapes—some are embroidered, others braided. Some have fancy tailored belts. The pockets are silk lined. We illustrate 5 of the many styles on sale Monday. Sizes 16 to 44. 14.95

SITUATIONS WANTED—MALE.

Executives and Managers.

WHERE IS MY POST?

For years I have been with a nationally known manufacturing concern that markets its product through dealers, agencies, and branch offices. I have mixed in organization, credits, collections, etc., but the advertising and sales management has been my special province. I have made good abundantly and can stay indefinitely, but for reasons that will be acceptable to you I desire a change. I am just the right age—32, and married. I am qualified by education, training, and broad experience. I know advertising and sales management in every feature, and have the confidence, initiative, and energy that carries through. Now, if your place is big enough; if it will pay a man's salary from the start, I want to roll up my sleeves and sit down at the desk that you depend upon for sales growth. In character I will measure up to your standard and my business record is without blemish. Moreover, I will fit in without a jar or discord. Can see you promptly. Address N 106, Tribune.

SITUATION WTD—I HAVE HELD THE POsition of sales advertising and office manager with my present employer for ten years. This company, a big specialty concern, is rated at a million dollars. I have been successful in hiring and handling salesmen and in getting out advertising, booklets, sales manuels, etc., that bring in orders. I know every angle of office work, have had excellent experience as credit man and lawyer and can work out and install new systems and ideas. I am in good health, married, 36 years old and possess a high school and university law education. I can make my self worth every cent I am paid and would have no objection to a part salary, part commission arrangement. Let me talk to you and prove my claims. Address N 166, Tribune.

Executives and Managers.

WANTED.
A
$10,000 MAN.

This announcement marks the epoch of a new industry—an industry surpassing in scope that of the automobile, cash register, typewriter, adding machine, and farm lighting plants.

THE MONEY MAKING OPPORTUNITY, we confidently believe, is great, or greater than any of these. Already sales agencies have been opened in several cities and are making good.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY exists now for the right man to open a sales agency for this product. The opportunity to get the sales agency is a real opportunity, and one necessitating immediate action. A money making chance to be had.

PHONOGRAPHS—THE GREAT INDUSTRY.

THE MAN WE WANT: The primary requisite is BRAINS. The man we want must be BIG ENOUGH IN ABILITY and experience to organize a small sales force, lay out and plan their work intelligently, and be strong enough financially to handle such a proposition without the handicap of insufficient capital. The initial capital need not be large, but it should be sufficient to insure stability, the main requisite being the ability to swing big business fast and hard as you see it opening before you.

THE ROYAL PHONOGRAPH has every home for its market—residences, apartments, yachts, country homes, etc.

ROYAL PHONOGRAPH'S PROFITS are liberal—and quick action will be necessary.

WRITE OR WIRE US FOR PARTICULARS IF INTERESTED.

ROYAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,
604 North American Bldg., Chicago.

ADDRESS E D 178, TRIBUNE.

ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENTS WTD.

Young men over 31 years of age.

Can you handle people? Do you understand human nature? Can you get results? Are you an executive? Are you well educated? Fair, square, broad minded? Do you possess punch and genuine personality?

If you can say "YES" in answer to these questions one of the largest corporations in Chicago has room for you, where you may grow and develop in proportion to the degree to which you can master the business and assume responsibilities.

Your remuneration will depend upon your experience and general qualifications.

In replying please give full information about yourself. Address E M 76, Tribune.

SALESMEN—
Every business was once "in its infancy." THAT was the time to become connected with that particular business.
Consider the money made in the automobile business by those shrewd enough to see its future and get in while the industry was young.
THE CHAIN STORE IS THE COMING BUSINESS OF THIS COUNTRY—it is in its infancy today.
We don't care what you have been selling—if you are a PRODUCER, we want you.
Many men in our New York department last year were in the five figure class. Our salesmen will make still bigger money this year, as our company is now established.
The same amount of energy that will net you $5,000 per year with the average proposition will make you a $15,000 man with our company.
The one big OPPORTUNITY comes to every man once—this is YOURS.
Ask for MR. SLOAN, 601 Harris Trust Building, Chicago.

SALESMEN—MEN AND WOMEN IN EVERY locality in the United States to sell the National Sharpener for all safety razor blades direct to the consumer. A $5.00 article in actual value for $1.50. The immense quantity we manufacture enables us to sell this wonderful device at a price within reach of all. It is a desirable present for the soldier boys, thousands of whom are already using it. The "National" is the only sharpener in the world that gives universal satisfaction. Any hustler that will give entire time to the selling can make more money than is possible on a straight salary. Our salesmen are making $5.00 to $15.00 per day, depending on the effort put forth. Thousands of users will vouch for the efficiency of the "National." Send for particulars.

FOR SALE— FOR SALE—
CANADIAN WHEAT FARMS.
LOW PRICES—EASY TERMS.

The world's tremendous demand for wheat is greater than the available supplies. We are assured of very high prices for years to come. The best wheat raising lands in the world can be had in the well known and well settled Davidson district in Western Canada, still at low prices, $20 to $30 per acre and on easy terms, with small cash payment. Wheat yields 25 to 40 bushels per acre and failures are unknown.

This is the opportunity of a lifetime for the man of small income who would like to farm. Many men have paid for their farms in our districts out of one or two crops.

Write us for particulars and arrange a trip on our cheap excursion rates. Address

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Future of Farming.

THE DEMAND FOR FARM PRODUCTS has overtaken the supply to such an extent that the business of farming has taken on new life. It is more of a business than it ever was before because of this great demand resulting in quicker movement of products and a quicker return in money.

THERE IS NOW more of an opportunity, more of a necessity, than ever before for men with business heads to establish systems that will enable the farm work to be done with less man energy and more labor saving machinery. The world needs the products and the price warrants the farmer in extending his operations in every possible way. Prices of farm products will never again reach former low levels, although they will not always be as high as they are today. The future of farming is bright and certain and now is the golden opportunity and it is up to you to make the most of it.

TO GIVE YOU a good clear idea of the farming possibilities of the SWIGART TRACT in Michigan, let me send you a book, free, giving government statistics about the crops, live stock, etc., in our district. I am selling well drained, splendid lying, good farm land for $15 to $35 per acre on terms as low as $25 to $100 down and $10 per month on 40 acres. These lands lie near towns and schools and they raise excellent crops of all kinds of grain and are especially adapted to fruit growing. It is a natural clover country and clover grows everywhere.

IF YOU WANT a 10 acre tract for poultry, truck and fruit, we have selected several hundred acres especially adapted for these uses and have laid them out into 10-acre tracts. For these I ask $250 to $350 and accept payments as low as $5 down and $4 per month if desired. Write for special information on these tracts.

MY NEXT TWO EXCURSIONS will occur September 4th and 18th. Private cars. Party leaves my Chicago offices at 11:20 a. m. Round trip from Chicago, including railroad fare, meals, lodging and automobiles, $13.45. Only requires two days to make the trip. Accommodations for both men and women. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons.

George Swigart, Owner.
1247 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BLDG., CHICAGO.

WE ALSO HAVE a large number of splendidly improved farms with fine buildings, from ten acres to several hundred, located in Southern Michigan about half way between Chicago and Grand Rapids. It requires more cash for the down payment on these, but each one has been selected with the object of giving excellent values. A number of these have horses, cattle and other stock which will be sold with the farm, so that a newcomer will have everything at hand ready to start. If you are interested in buying one of these send for our Improved Farm Booklet. This is a fine time of year to investigate, as some of the crops are being harvested and others are still growing.

DON'T WAIT for an excursion to see these, as it is only a three hours' ride from Chicago and people are going to see them every day.

Swigart Land Company
1247 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BLDG., CHICAGO.

FOR SALE—ONE OF THE LARGEST AND most highly developed fruit orchards in the famous fruit resort section of the State of Michigan, located on the West Michigan Pike and Dixie Highway. This orchard has been developed as a commercial proposition, having switch track for receiving fertilizer and shipping fruit, is on a high plateau with perfect air drainage, and is only five miles from dock on Lake Michigan, from which fruit can be delivered in Chicago in one night. More than 20,000 trees [apple, pear, peach, and cherry] have been given constant and unusual care, and within two or three years the crop will be very large and annually increasing as the trees mature. Further details will be furnished if you are interested and able to handle such a proposition.
WM. H. JOHNSON,
429 Stock Exchange Bldg., Chicago, Illinois.

FOR SALE—12 TEN ACRE UNIMPROVED tracts of land; not the oak grub kind, but land right in a productive country—a country in which, this season, 48 bu. of wheat, in some instances, was raised per acre, and a country from which more potatoes, apples, peaches, and beans are shipped each year than from any other R. R. station anywhere. Your choice $175, $25 down, balance $5 per month. We have other tracts of land of any size wanted.

Texas.

FOR SALE — NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad like the Santa Fe would only recommend what it considers a good thing and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

MOST BEAUTIFUL MACHINE MADE TODAY.

THE $200 MACHINE THAT SELLS FOR $50

$50 WHY PAY MORE $50

THE ROYAL PHONOGRAPH not only plays any make of record, but plays it better. The distinctive character of this new phonograph, the ease with which it plays, is the sensation of the talking machine world today.

How this company can offer such a marvelous machine at such a low price is answered in a few words: Concentration on one model only, thoroughly efficient methods of manufacture and quantity production. It is a machine that represents a fine piece of furniture in the home, and one that you would be proud to own. Its size and good appearance is one that suggests real value, and one that when compared side by side with any $200.00 machine will render the music equally as well, and with as much sweetness of tone.

You can get all these things with the ROYAL—a beautiful design of cabinet, and equal in size to any $200.00 machine. A wonderful quality of tone, rich and sweet, and a fully guaranteed machine in every respect.

This beautiful ROYAL machine comes in golden oak, fumed oak, Circassian walnut and mahogany finish. It stands 50 inches high and is 20 inches wide. It plays any make of record without attachments of any kind, and is the equal of any machine on the market at twice the price.

Come and see this wonderful machine, and have your favorite record played.

Capital Wanted to Build Airplane Engines

I AM FURNISHING SOME of the money for the organization of a new company, headed by a man whose engines were AMONG THE FIRST TO FLY.

Having owned one of the first planes brought to Chicago, I know something of what is needed and recognized in his latest design the coming aircraft engine. There is nothing freakish or experimental about it, but it is new enough to have been thoroughly covered with patents.

If I had enough money to do it alone, no one else would have a chance to get in, but I must share the proposition with one or more men; will consider nothing less than $5,000 and the limit on shares for sale at the rate I am paying is $44,000.

The man heading the organization is a recognized authority on this type of engine—a man with BROAD MANUFACTURING EXPERIENCE and whose name carries considerable weight with members of the various aircraft boards at Washington.

No brokers need answer—no commission of any kind will be paid on sale of this stock. You will come in on the same basis I do and deal directly with the principal.

Engines copied after those this man made years ago are selling at $20.00 a pound. This engine will help win the war and it will be a leader in a big industry, war or no war.

No details given until I meet you and look up references. Address N 429, Tribune.

CAPITAL WANTED—$200,000 to increase the output of a manganese ore property which is now shipping all possible with present mining facilities. The demand for this material is far above the amount now produced in the United States and used by iron and steel companies, and the investment should be repaid in about three months. Address M 504, Tribune.

CAPITAL.

Closed corporation, unable to fill orders on present capital, offers unusual investment opportunity to a limited number of principals with $5,000 or more capital. Business is well established and supplies a demand of every large manufacturer and producer; also have U. S. government contract. Is without practical competition, insuring substantial profits.

Conservative business people, capable of acting promptly when a preferred investment is presented, address N 555, Tribune, for particulars.

CAPITAL—TWO MEN WITH 1ST CLASS references and years of practical experience manufacturing have quite a start [in a Wis. city] toward "a great money making, patent protected process, permanent and legitimate manufacturing proposition," being held back by lack of capital, desire to get in touch with honorable man, financially able to invest or interest capital to the amount of $100,000; with this added to our present investment can show NET YEARLY PROFIT of better than $50,000 and can double this profit in 5 years. This business is good during war or peace and will stand the closest investigation. Address E K 311, Tribune.

CAPITAL—A COMPANY WITH ESTABlished business has contracts in the U. S. and foreign countries amounting to thousands of dollars, and needs $30,000 to expand and increase its output; it has an attractive money-back proposition for conservative investors and those seeking profitable investment. This is not war munition but staple article [machine], not seasonable but always in great demand. We invite rigid investigation. Principals only. Address E M 86, Tribune.

CAPITAL WANTED—5 MEN WITH $1,000 each, every dollar secured, money not used to promote, but purchase material; millions can be sold at a handsome profit; cost to make 40 cents; wholesales for $1.50; contracts standing; nothing on the market like it; a great labor saver; no experiment; I have sold enough to prove its value; I have $5,500 invested in patent, dyes, and material; also party to superintend the manufacturing, take charge of shipping, and be secretary and treasurer; latter must be able to give bond. Address N 526, Tribune.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY IS offered few principals with from $12,000 to $20,000 in business offering very substantial returns; only one-fourth of investment accepted at this time. Security for investment is absolutely insured. Business men only. Brokers kindly refrain from answering. Address E L 295, Tribune.

CAPITALISTS AND MANUFACTURERS—I have an invention which will revolutionize every industry and trade in the states [including automobiles]. Its merits justify a 300 per cent profit on manufacturing cost. Patent rights are for sale. No progressive man or capitalist should fail to investigate. A fortune for each trade. Bank and government references. At least $300,000 required. Principals only. Address M 568, Tribune.

PACKARD

USED CAR DEPARTMENT ANNUAL PRE-INVENTORY SALE
during the remaining days of August.

Prices on motor cares are lower now, we believe, than they will ever be again until after the war—and they are sure to go up.

If you are in the market, we cordially urge your inspection of these values.

No. 727—Packard 2-35 Twin-Six 7-passenger touring car just like new, having been driven less than 2,000 miles. Many extras, paint is without a mar or blemish. Goodyear cord tires all around. A car that is equal to any emergency, powerful, and one that will give prestige to the man who drives it—$3,300.

Packard 1-35 Twin-Six 7-passenger Touring Car fully guaranteed and elegantly painted standard Packard blue, with cream striping and looks like new. This car will render the utmost of useful performances with the least possible expenditure of time and money. The best car to be had at our price of $2,300.

1912 Packard 6-48 7-passenger cabside limousine. Very nicely upholstered in whipcord and in good coach and mechanical condition. Completely equipped. Good tires all around. $975. [No. 287]

1-38 Packard 5 passenger Touring car, complete and ready to be put into active service immediately. The mechanical condition is very good. This car is exceedingly comfortable, easy to handle and has plenty of power. An ideal family car. $775. [No. 639]

1917 Stearns-Knight 8, 7-passenger Touring Car in practically new condition, having been driven only about 6,000 miles. This car runs very quietly [has the famous Silent Knight motor], is economical to maintain, exceptionally well built and presents a very smart appearance. Many extras, including seat covers, speedometer, clock and two extra tires. Unusual value at our price of $1,400.

1916 Pathfinder 6-cylinder, 7-passenger Touring Car. The mileage is very low and the car is in fine coach and mechanical condition. A splendid, well-built sturdy car at a very reasonable price—$800.

CHANDLER

A rebuilt and repainted Chandler, Model '17, Seven Passenger touring car, is the best value in the motor world today. It has Bosch Magneto, Gray & Davis Starting and Lighting system, full floating axle, annular ball bearings, a large, roomy, luxuriously comfortable seven passenger body, pantasote top with "jiffy" curtains to provide for your comfort in stormy weather. It is a far better purchase than a new car at the same money. We want you to see this rebuilt CHANDLER before you make your purchase. We will take your Ford or Dodge as part payment.

Our price on this car is $1,000.00. Don't delay—investigate the CHANDLER car at once and convince yourself that this advertisement is the truth. Address E K 55, Tribune.

DANIELS "8"

THE promised materialization of the extra high grade coöperative apartment building in the exclusive residential district on the North Side in the immediate neighborhood of the Lake Shore drive, which was announced late last week, clearly was the feature of a fairly good real estate market.

The announcement is particularly interesting in view of the failure of several similar projects in that district during the past two years, following the announcement that plans had practically been completed for their construction. The fact, however, that the site has been acquired, the contract let for the construction of the building, the preliminary work of construction begun, and a loan arranged for in that connection, may be accepted as reasonably conclusive evidence that the present project for the construction of two nine-story buildings at the northwest corner of Scott and Stone streets, which is being promoted by the real estate firm of A. J. Pardridge and Harold Bradley, will be carried to a successful conclusion.

$1,000 a Foot.

The building, which will be of an attractive design, will occupy a lot with a frontage 131 feet on Scott street with a depth of 86 feet, known as the Le Moyne property, which was acquired about two months ago, the Chicago Title and Trust company taking title as trustee. The consideration was not disclosed, but the sale is said to have been on the basis of $51,000 a front foot.

While the Chicago Title and Trust company holds title, the ownership of the property is actually vested in the heads of five prominent Chicago families who will occupy apartments in the building. The rentals from the other eleven tenants who do not participate in the ownership are expected to defray taxes, interest, and all running expenses, with the result that the owners will enjoy their apartments free of cost and will also have a substantial sum in addition, as well as being benefited by the increase in the value of their holdings following the reduction of the building loan.

Elaborate Court Planned.

The buildings will be of the court type, the court being treated as a formal garden with a pool and pergolas. Each of the buildings will contain eight typical apartments, those to be offered for rent comprising eleven rooms and five baths, renting for $400 a month. The apartments to be occupied by the five owners of the building will be of a much more elaborate character, and the arrangement of rooms will follow the wishes of the owners. Some of them are expected to set a new high standard for Chicago apartments in the elaborateness of arrangements and of finish throughout.

Thus, several of the owners' apartments are provided with two bathrooms for the principal bedroom, madam's bathroom being a luxurious dressing room as well, provided with mirror lined clothes presses, hat and shoe cases innumerable, while a smaller bathroom takes care of the husband's simpler requirements.

$12,000 for One Apartment.

A feature of the building will be a triplex apartment which will be the most elaborate apartment in Chicago and will command an annual rental of $12,000, exceeding the highest rental heretofore paid for any apartment in the city. On the first floor of this apartment are to be living rooms and the service quarters only, comprising in the master's quarters a large reception room and private stairway, the dining room, long living room, library, breakfast room, morning room, and billiard room. On the second floor are the master's chambers and guest rooms, while the roof is to be arranged with attractive garden effects as the children's play yard.

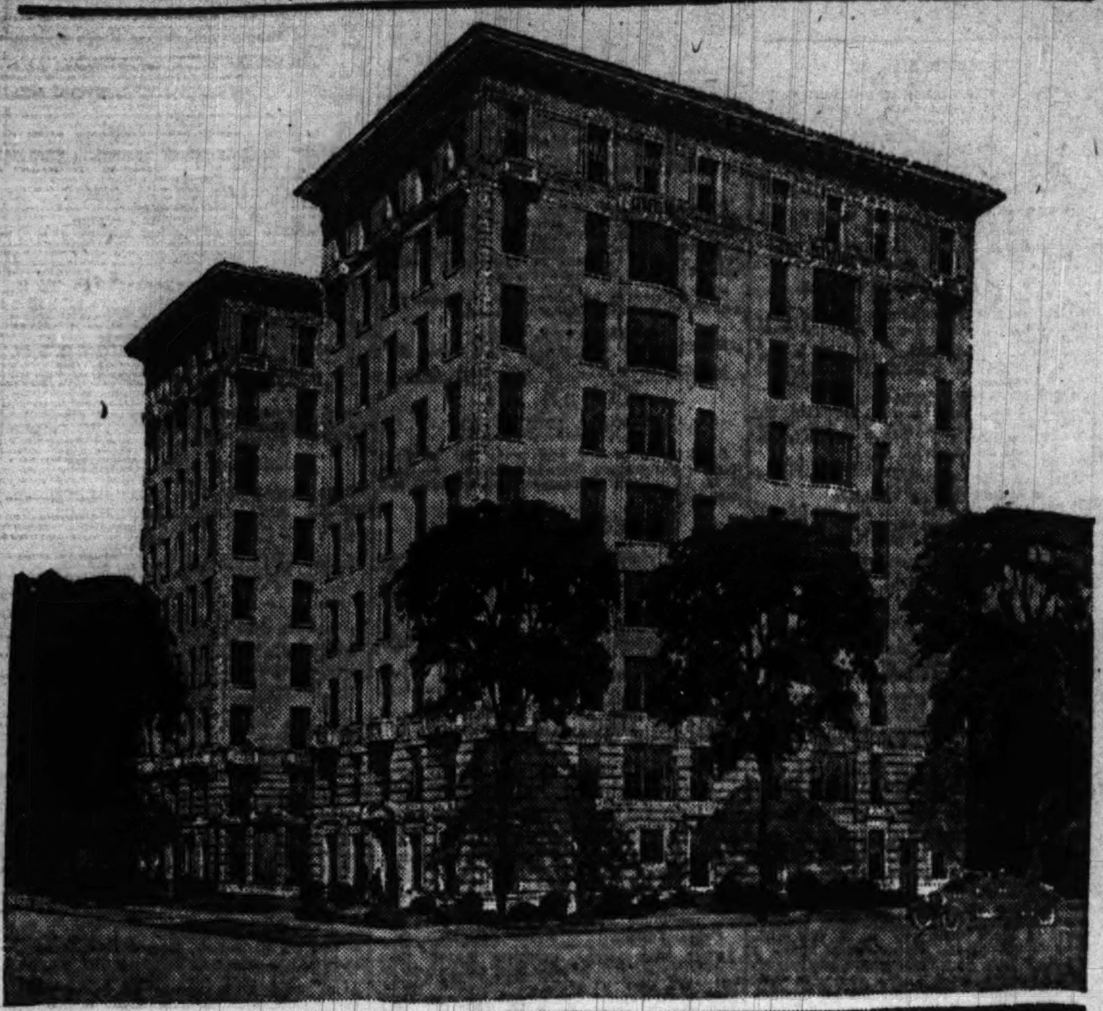
The contract for the construction of the building, which was designed by the architectural firm of Ecklund, Fugard & Knapp, has been let to the McLennan Construction company, while Greenebaum Sons Banking and Trust company has underwritten a bond issue loan of $375,000 running ten years at 6 per cent in connection with the construction of the building. The buildings are expected to cost $610,000, and the work of razing the five old dwellings on the lot has begun.

John H. Coulter Buys Oak Park Residence

The residence property at the southwest corner of Iowa street and East avenue, Oak Park, has been sold by James F. S. Peters to John H. Coulter for $22,500, subject to $12,000 incumbrance.

CO-OPERATIVE APARTMENT DE LUXE

Apartment Building for Exclusive North Side Residential District, Near Lake Shore Drive, to Be Erected by Scott Street Association.



Leases and Loans.

There was nothing really important in either leases or loans last week, and general conditions in both fields are quite in line with the general tone of the real estate market.

George Ward, who has conducted the Kamera shop at 439 South Wabash avenue in the Auditorium building for the last fourteen years, has leased space on the second floor of the Jackson boulevard frontage of the new Kimball building at the southwest corner of Wabash avenue for a term rent of $15,000. He will take possession Sept. 1. The lease was negotiated by Emmet N. Wilson.

J. G. Kirk & Co. have leased for the Cowles Trust Agreement company to Mickeseil Bros. the building at 178 North La Salle street for a term rent of $12,000; also for A. McArthus to I. Briscan the store and basement, 169 West Lake street, for a term rental of $12,000; also for J. L. Kesner to U. S. Leather company floor at 108 Lake street for a term rent of $5,000.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. have leased through L. W. Bowen of John R. Magill & Co. from E. J. Stransky and Louis Brill the six-story and basement building, 741 to 745 West Van Buren street, term at an annual rental of $7,000. The same broker also leased for G. W. Murphy to Lotus Manufacturing company, two story building, 1124-1126 North boulevard, Oak Park, term at a rental of $6,000; for the Welsbach company to Carlson Machine company, third floor, 613 West Washington boulevard, term at a rental of $2,625.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee for a loan of $110,000, five years at 6 per cent, to William S. Page, secured upon the property at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Foster avenue, 170 x150 feet, being improved with the Saddle and Cycle View apartments.

Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company have made a bond issue loan of $50,000 five years at 6 per cent to Harry Salvat on the 85x210 feet, south front, on Forty-seventh street, 240 feet east of Drexel boulevard, being improved with a large garage.

The same lenders have made a loan of $55,000 six years at 6 per cent to Dr. F. Anderson on the property at the southwest corner of Vincennes avenue and Seventy-fourth street, 174x142 feet.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $54,000 one year at 6 per cent to Lawrence J. Cooper on the property at the northeast corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-second place, 156x200 feet, with flat improvements.

Pugh Assigns Lease on Three Buildings

There was filed for record last week the assignment by James A. Pugh to Frederick J. Hillman of Springfield, Mass., a public accountant, of the leasehold interest in the three buildings on East Illinois street, at Peshtigo court, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $1,000,000. The buildings were leased by the Chicago Canal and Dock company, of which Mr. Pugh is president, the leases running for terms of about twenty years from 1907 to 1909 at total term rentals of $2,449,761. They have been occupied by the Pugh Terminal Warehouse company and the Pugh Stores company. Mr. Hillman is said to have come here as the representative of President McDonald of the First National bank of Chicopee Falls, Mass., who is understood to have loaned Mr. Pugh $50,000 some time ago.

U. of C. Phi Kappa Sigma Buys Home for $35,000

The Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity has just closed the purchase of the house at 5733 University avenue, formerly the residence of Prof. Buck of the University of Chicago. It is an attractive three story brick structure containing about fifteen rooms, and occupies a lot 40x170 feet on the east side of the street. It was acquired as a new home for the society, which has been located at 5635 Woodlawn avenue. The property was acquired from Haseltine Smith for a reported consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $16,000. Title was taken by Horatio C. King of New York, Effingham B. Morris of Philadelphia, and Claude A. Swanson of Washington, D. C., trustees of the fraternity's endowment fund.

STORE PROPERTY TAKES LEAD IN ACTIVE MARKET

532 South State Street Holding Is Sold for $125,000.

Business property made an unusually good showing during the week, both in respect to volume as well as character of the properties dealt in. It probably was the best feature of a really good market in which the number of recorded transfers for the first time in several weeks exceeded those for the corresponding week a year ago. It was a decidedly encouraging market.

A downtown transaction, the first for some time, covered the property at 532 South State street, lot 25x101 feet, improved with old four story buildings, which was sold by Morton B. Harris to James G. Kellogg, vice president of the Kellogg Switchboard company. A nominal consideration was given, but the actual price is reported to have been $125,000, subject to an incumbrance of $50,000. Mr. Kellogg is said to have made the purchase as an investment. W. K. Young & Bro. were the brokers.

Haymarket Theater Sold.

The Haymarket theater building and the leasehold interest on the 80x186½ feet of ground at 722 West Madison street on which it stands have been acquired by Francis and Augustus Beidler and their sister, Mrs. Emma Beidler Camp, the owners of the fee, from Clara A. Avery et al., thus merging the leasehold and fee. The building was erected by the lessees about thirty years ago and is one of the landmarks of the west side. It is a five story building, containing four stores on the ground floor and offices and lodge halls on the upper floors. With the exception of the Auditorium the Haymarket theater is the largest in Chicago. The Beidlers were the original lessors, the lease having been executed about thirty-five years ago. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of about $50,000.

Another interesting West Madison street deal, made a matter of record, was the sale by David Beidler of Los Angeles, Cal., to Mrs. Anna E. Herr of the property twenty-four feet west of Ann street. The property has a south frontage of 90¼x200 feet and is L shaped, with a frontage of fifty feet on Ann street. A three story warehouse occupies 65x100 feet of the frontage, with a two story store and flat building on the remaining twenty-five feet, while two brick residences occupy the Ann street frontage. While a nominal consideration is given, the actual figure is said to have been $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $18,000. Jackson Bros. were the brokers.

Milwaukee Avenue Deal.

There was filed for record the transfer by Francis A. Harper to Arthur S. Nathan and Louis A. Rise of the property in Milwaukee avenue 275 feet southeast of Robey street, lot 50x125 feet, northeast front, improved with a four story store and flat building, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000, but the actual figure is said to have been about $50,000. It is stated the upper floors will be remodeled for loft purposes. In part payment the purchaser conveyed a four flat building in Englewood and vacant at Beverly Hills.

Charles F. Hurburgh of Galesburg, Ill., has purchased from Catherine McCarthy the three story business block at 1311-13 Clybourn avenue for a reported consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $11,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment 640 acres of land in Harding county, S. D., valued at $12,000. Mr. Hurburgh will reconstruct the Clybourn avenue building, converting it into a fireproof structure, and will construct a two story brick building on 45x75 feet in the rear to cost about $15,000. Thomas Conran & Co. represented both parties.

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 183, of which 140 were in the city and 43 outside, including 10 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

Lake View	6	Thornton	2
Jefferson	24	Stickney	7
North Town	7	Ridgeville	1
South Town	8	Norwood Park	8
Hyde Park	17	Rogers Park	4

MANUFACTURING SITES SHOW NEW LIFE IN MARKET

There were a few noteworthy transactions in manufacturing property closed during the week, in one of which Central Manufacturing district, as trustee, conveyed to Burt Freisleben a plot of 110x330 feet, east front, on Iron street, 345 feet north of East Thirty-seventh street. The grantee took title for the Central Bag company, of which he is president, which has occupied the property for about two years. The improvements comprise a three story building occupying the entire frontage of the lot. While a consideration of $10 is given in the transfer, the actual figures are said to have been about $175,000. In connection with the transaction the bag company secured $73,000 of the purchase money for ten years at 6 per cent by trust deed to Silas H. Strawn.

Record was made of the purchase by the Sargent company, paint manufacturers, with headquarters at Cleveland, from Julius Kroening and Lisette Peters of two parcels, north front, on Twentieth street, 315 feet east of Jefferson street, 45x100 feet, and from the Scherhofen Investment company, by trustee, of 45x100 feet, south front, on Twentieth place, in the rear of the above. A consideration of $6,000 was given for this last named piece and $1,900 for twenty feet on Twentieth street, a nominal consideration being given for the other piece. The property acquired is near the present plant of the company, and, while it is said that no definite plans are had regarding improving it, it is thought it probably will be improved with a five story warehouse building.

Darling & Co., fertilizers, have bought from Stephen A. Allis the property at the southwest corner of Ashland avenue and Forty-second street, 54x120 feet in extent, the price being withheld. The company's present plant is directly across the street on Ashland avenue. It is understood an addition will be erected on the land just acquired.

New York Rushes to Beat Law on High Buildings

New York has been passing through the same experience in seeking to take advantage of a building ordinance about to expire and permitting the construction of much higher buildings than the one about to come into operation, as did Chicago in 1910, just prior to the coming into effect of the present ordinance restricting the height of buildings to 200 feet instead of the 260 feet permitted under the old ordinance.

The new zoning law went into effect in New York a little over a year ago. It imposes severe restrictions in the construction of lofty office buildings, and in order to get in under the old law, which was without a height limit, there was a wholesale rush on the part of property owners to secure permits. The result was that in New York City proper permits were taken out during July of a year ago to cost $49,305,230. For July of the present year the total of the permits amounted only to $1,894,095, a falling off of 96 per cent.

APARTMENTS A LEADING FEATURE OF WEEK'S SALES

$175,000 Deal in Kenwood Leads Realty Business.

Transactions in apartment property comprised one of the most important features of the week's market, the showing being an unusually good one, both as regards the number of transactions reported or made matters of record as well as the character of the properties included in the week's business.

The most important transaction was the big sale of high grade Kenwood property by W. K. Young & Bro. It covered the property at 4718-26 Greenwood avenue, which was sold by Charles F. Hellgren to Henry E. Miller for a reported consideration of $175,000. The building, which occupies a lot 100x271 feet, is of English basement semi-court type and contains twenty-one apartments of five to eight rooms.

$21,000 Gross Rental.

It is said to have a gross annual rental of $21,000. It was conveyed subject to an incumbrance of $80,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment two modern six apartment buildings at 5435-37 Michigan avenue, lot 60x161 feet, and 5358-60 Indiana avenue, lot 74x161 feet, with a gross rent roll of about $12,000.

The same brokers also sold for Dr. F. Anderson and Robert Cowie to Morton B. Harris the eighteen flat building at the southwest corner of Seventy-fourth street and Perry avenue for a reported consideration of $60,000, subject to $35,000; also the fourteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Wentworth avenue and Seventy-fourth street for a reported consideration of $65,000, subject to an incumbrance of $31,500.

Another large deal in high grade Kenwood property was the sale by Sherman T. Cooper, the builder, to John M. Johnson of the new nine apartment building at the northeast corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-eighth street. The building occupies a lot 115.8x122 feet, the apartments containing seven to eleven rooms with three and four baths and having a gross annual rental of $16,700, and while a normal consideration was given in the deed, subject to an incumbrance of $75,000 the actual cash figures are said to have been in the neighborhood of $150,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a country home of ten acres at Lake Geneva.

South Side Sale.

In another south side deal, Murray Wolbach sold to Forest M. Myers the high grade six apartment building on 57½x125 feet of ground at 6751-53 Clyde avenue, for a reported consideration of $32,000, the building having an annual gross rental of $5,360. Mr. Wolbach took in part payment three parcels of improved and four parcels of west side vacant. Newton W. Hopkins of Byron M. Hopkins represented both parties and will have charge of the property.

The twenty-four apartment building of four and five rooms on a lot 153x125 feet at the southwest corner of Drake avenue and Ainslie street has been conveyed by Abe Smith to Biscoe Hindman, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $60,000. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of between $11,000 and $12,000.

There also was filed for record the conveyance by Vincent M. Huntington to Thomas J. Fay of Knox, Ind., of the twenty-four apartment building of two, three, and four rooms on a lot 50x183 feet at the northwest corner of Lotus avenue and Fulton street, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $62,500, the purchaser conveying Indiana farm lands in part payment.

West Side Deal.

A noteworthy deal in west side flat property just closed is the sale by Murray Wolbach to Mrs. Isabella Morgan of the new twelve apartment building of four rooms at the southwest corner of South Homan avenue and West Congress street, lot 53x147 feet, for a reported consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $30,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment the two story stone front building at 3852 West Monroe street, at a valuation of $8,000.

The six flat building on 50x127 feet of ground, south front, in Galt avenue, 239 feet north of Clarendon avenue, has been sold by John T. Wheeler to Christian B. Stauffer, consideration nominal, subject to $22,500, the purchaser conveying in part payment a two story frame house at 924 Buena Park terrace. Baird & Warner were the brokers.

New Outlying Theater Building Is Planned

It is announced that work will soon begin on what it is claimed will be one of the largest theater buildings in the outlying part of the city. It will be erected at the northeast corner of Marshfield avenue and West Forty-seventh street, by James Svehla, a furniture dealer, and is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. The plans, which have been prepared by Architects George L. and C. W. Rapp, provide for a building two stories high, which will occupy a lot 121x208 feet, and will contain in addition to the theater four stores and a number of offices.

ARDMORE GETS NEW SUBDIVISION OF EIGHTY ACRES

Arthur Kruggel Buys Johanna Finke $50,000 Tract.

Despite the general dullness in subdivision property there was considerable of an interesting nature reported last week. In one transaction involving suburban land Arthur Kruggel of McCollam & Kruggel purchased from Johanna Finke a tract of eighty acres adjoining the right of way of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago electric road at Ardmore for a reported consideration of $50,000. It is to be subdivided into large lots. It is the third subdivision placed on the market this year in that vicinity by McCollam & Kruggel.

Eighty Acres Fetch $107,244.

The eighty acre tract between Division street and North avenue and east of Harlem avenue, which was offered at foreclosure sale in the suit by James J. Fitzgerald against Elmer E. Wilt et al. by Master in Chancery O'Donnell, was bid in by Mr. Fitzgerald for $107,244.

Record was made of the sale by the Central Trust company, trustee for the estate of John M. Tananevicz, bankrupt, to Walter F. Zawlewicz of a tract of twenty-eight acres in Riverside for a reported consideration of $24,500. In connection with the transaction the purchaser gave a trust deed to secure $15,000 three years at 6 per cent. There also was sold to the forest preserve district a tract of about thirteen acres along the Desplaines river in Riverside. Fred D. Hummel represented the trust company, Adolph Weiner the forest preserve district, and Herman Wollner & Son Mr. Zawlewicz.

Eighty Acre Subdivision.

It is announced that William H. Britigan has been given the marketing of the Joseph A. Holpuch tract, comprising the eighty acres bounded by Belmont avenue, Diversey boulevard, and Kostner and Kolmar avenues, which Mr. Holpuch acquired about two years ago for a reported $200,000. The property, which has been conveyed to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, comprises sixteen blocks with a total of 660 lots, and is rapidly being improved with sidewalks, sewers, and water. The fact that the city council authorized extension of the car line in Diversey boulevard, with the possibility of the Chicago and Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul roads opening stations at Belmont and Diversey, makes this property particularly attractive.

$16,000 Home Sold to J. S. Llewellyn

An interesting sale of Kenwood residence property was the purchase by James S. Llewellyn, secretary of the Chicago Malleable Castings company, from Harriet J. Martin of the property at 4828 Kimbark avenue. The sale was negotiated by James J. Parker & Co.

TO MANUFACTURERS—BEHIND IN THEIR DELIVERIES:

A manufacturing plant with a well equipped machine shop (employing 60 to 80 men) has taken care of its own special requirements for the next three or four months and now desires to get in touch with a manufacturer in the Chicago district who needs additional facilities to meet deliveries.

Our shop is designed to handle the machining of practically anything in iron or brass, and is ideally arranged to turn out small parts in large quantities.

Some manufacturer of machinery, small machines or parts, plumbing and steam fitters equipment, or kindred lines who requires extra facilities to fill orders will find this shop admirably adapted to help him out.

Present conditions are such that this opportunity will not be open for long, and those interested are urged to communicate with us at once.

TALKING MACHINES, RECORDS.

CAUTION—Beware of concerns or individuals making an unwarranted use of the word—Victrola. The Victrola is either a genuine Victrola or else it is simply an imitation. Genuine Victrolas may be obtained from us for as low a price as $15. If you get a genuine Victrola you will never regret your purchase. A genuine Victrola alone has the Victrola tone and is made only by the Victor Talking Machine Co. Suitable monthly terms may be arranged.
LYON & HEALY, Wabash-av. at Jackson-blvd.

TOMORROW OUR NEW STORE, THE FINEST WEST OF THE LOOP, will be open to our thousands of friends who have made possible our larger and more cheerful quarters. We shall continue to sell the highest types of Talking Machines and new records at cut prices. The only thing we mix with our sales is courtesy.
